Castro Seeks 500 Bulldozers

American Prisoner Group Will Arrange For Ransom

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—A committee of prisoners captured in the recent invasion of Cuba will be sent to the United States Sunday to arrange for the ransom of their companions, Prime Minister Fidel Castro said today.

Castro, speaking on television from Havana, said the 1,200 prisoners captured in the April 17 attack would be exchanged "in increasing order of importance" for 500 bulldozers.

The Cuban prime minister said he had reports that the United States was considering dealing through the Red Cross, but that this was not necessary. "We don't need intermediaries," he said, adding, "Mr. Kennedy now has the floor."

When he made the disclosure, Castro had been in the midst of a speech to Cuban government officials, foreign diplomats and unionists. They were attending a meeting to celebrate his winning of the Lenin Peace Prize.

He also startled his audience when he said the Cuban navy had evidence that a launch that disappeared May 6 with a loss of 17 lives had been sunk by "a submarine of the Central Intelligence Agency."

"It is, of course, difficult to prove, but our conclusion was that our vessel was sunk by a penetrating torpedo," Castro said.

He added that prior to the disappearance of the launch—the R43—the navy had received an SOS saying, "They sank us, they sank us."

After repeating his proposal to trade prisoners for bulldozers "as compensation for the damage caused by the invasion forces," Castro asked his audience whether he had its approval. The crowd cheered noisily.

Castro also offered to trade the leader of the invasion forces—Capt. Manuel Artime—for Francisco (The Hook) Molina, a Cuban now awaiting sentence in New York City on a second degree murder conviction.

Molina was convicted of slaying 9-year-old Magdalena Urdaneta of Venezuela during a gunbattle between pro and anti-Castro elements in a Manhattan restaurant.

The Molina case has been widely played up in Cuba as a politically inspired judicial decision based on U. S. hatred of Castro.

The prime minister said the most important prisoners now in Cuba would be returned last, but only after he had received the last lot of bulldozers.

Besides Artime, Castro is holding Jose Miro Torra, son of Jose Miro Cardona, who is head of the anti-Castro revolutionary council, and Carlos Varona, son of Antonio Varona, who is another exile leader.

Other U.S., Soviet Talks May Follow

Top Level Series May Depend On First 'Impression'

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's meeting with Premier Khrushchev at Vienna next month may be the first of a series of U.S.-Soviet summit level talks extending over the years of the Kennedy administration.

How the relationship between the two men develops will depend much on the impressions they make upon each other in their conference in the Austrian capital, June 3 and 4. But it is already apparent that Kennedy's whole approach to talking with Khrushchev is quite different from that which has prevailed in other U. S. administrations since World War II.

The central element in Kennedy's attitude appears to be a conviction that top level talks with the leader of the Communist bloc are desirable and may be useful in easing East-West tensions provided the atmosphere in which they are held is reasonably favorable to calm discussion of outstanding world issues. Some administration officials now say that such meetings should be regarded as normal and should be considered worthwhile even if they fail to produce spectacular positive results.

Already there is speculation in diplomatic quarters that if the Vienna discussions go smoothly Khrushchev may invite Kennedy to visit the Soviet Union. The center of this speculation is Geneva where Secretary of State Dean Rusk met Friday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

The two foreign ministers talked over plans for the Vienna meeting as well as the problem of Laos, which is the subject of a 14-nation conference at Geneva. The substance of their exchange was not disclosed but press dispatches quoted diplomatic sources at Geneva as pointing out that Khrushchev visited the United States in September 1959 and owes an invitation to an American president to visit the Soviet Union.

During most of the Eisenhower administration the former president and the late secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, resisted summit conferences pressures on the ground there must first be assurance of positive agreement lest failure to reach agreement at the summit should increase East-West tension.

President Harry S. Truman had met with dictator Joseph Stalin at Berlin at the end of the war in Europe but during the rest of the Truman administration there was no enthusiasm in Washington for further summit sessions.

Eisenhower later modified his own position and the policies which he and Dulles had worked out toward a summit conference in the summer of 1959 in part at least as a result of Khrushchev's threats and pressures to change the status of West Berlin. Having met the Soviet premier in the 1955 summit conference at Geneva, Eisenhower invited him to visit the United States. The two men conferred at Camp David, Md., with the result that Khrushchev shelved for a while his threats against Berlin. Eisenhower agreed to a formal summit conference at Paris.

The Paris summit a year ago this month collapsed at the outset when Khrushchev turned a torrent of abuse against Eisenhower and branded him a false friend because of the U2 spy plane incident two weeks earlier.

Cease-Fire Order Given By DeGaulle

Insurgent Leader Flown From Prison To Site Near Talks

EVIAN-LES-BAINS, France (AP)—France and the Algerian rebels opened peace talks today and the De Gaulle government made two side conciliatory gestures.

1. French forces in Algeria were ordered to cease at 6 p.m. all offensive operations against the rebels they have been fighting for almost seven years.

2. Algerian rebel chieftain Ahmed ben Bella was flown from a fortress prison the Ile d'Aix to a site closer to the peace talks in this Lake Geneva resort city.

It was reported from Algeria that word has already been passed to the 500,000 soldiers in the territory to fire only in self defense. It was understood that patrols would continue in the territory, but only for reconnaissance purposes.

Ben Bella was taken off the island in the Bay of Biscay by helicopter along with his companions, Hocine ait Ahmed and Mohamed Khidder. All three men had been seized in 1956 when their Moroccan airliner en route to Tunisia was intercepted by French fighter planes over the Mediterranean and forced to land at Algiers.

The improved conditions ordered for the three men will allow them to contact the rebel delegation in Geneva by telephone. At some later stage Ben Bella may also be allowed to sit in on the peace talks.

Three other imprisoned rebel leaders were also taken from Fresnes Prison in Paris this morning.

The long awaited peace negotiations opened here in a scheduled hotel guarded by hundreds of heavily armed policemen.

In Algeria and Paris, city streets were noisy with the bombings and gunfire of both violent European settlers opposed tot he peace negotiations and Algerian rebels agitating against the French.

Nearly 30,000 troops and riot police guarded the port city of Algiers after a night of violence in which 23 bombs and grenades exploded.

The only reported casualties were two passersby injured by a grenade hurled in the streets of Bab-el-Oued, Algier's worker section.

Castro Seen 'Fading' As Cuba Leader

Powerful Minority Now Ruling, Says Writer Back In U.S.

Robert Berrellez, Associated Press correspondent in Havana imprisoned during the abortive Cuban invasion, flew back to the United States Friday night with the first planeload of repatriated Americans. Here is his report on the present situation in Cuba.

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A powerful minority, with a fading picture of Fidel Castro as leader, rules Cuba now.

This minority, born out of the nucleus of well-trained Cuban Communists who went into the hills with Castro to support his revolution against deposed dictator Fulgencio Batista in 1958, is bent on carrying the new revolutionary dogma to every corner of Latin America.

The objective: eventual destruction of "imperialism." the Socialistic term for the United States, without global war.

What part Fidel Castro personally will play in this is questioned by many.

These are the impressions gathered by this reporter from influential Cuban politicians, professionals, trained observers and the man-in-the-street during a 25-day imprisonment in one of Cuba's most ill-famed penitentiaries—La Cabana military fortress.

Together with 51 other American repatriates and about the same number of other passengers, we rode to freedom Friday from Havana.

The majority seemed hopeful of returning to a "free Cuba" someday. But most all were at a loss to explain how, or when.

This question was no mystery to the nearly 2,000 Cubans left in La Cabana when I left the military jail last May 12. To a man they were sure either direct American intervention or an invasion by the Organization of American States would liberate them. They seemed to have discarded any hope an internal upheaval would liberate them.

They knew that the abortive April invasion had destroyed a well-organized underground poised with smuggled arms to strike the minute an invasion came.

"They didn't tell us," bitterly cried one underground movement man in prison. "They ruined us and months and months of work, money and material are gone just because they didn't tell us they were coming. What's wrong with your people?"

Racial Bars Are Broken On Bus Ride

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A Greyhound bus pulled out of here today with a racially mixed group on board. The young Negroes and white people had waited at the station almost 18 hours trying to get on board the bus for Montgomery.

The only passengers were the almost two dozen members of the racially integrated group.

Bus officials said the trip to Montgomery, 100 miles south of here, would take about 2½ hours.

The group got aboard a bus on its fourth try since 3 p.m. Friday. Earlier efforts were stymied when drivers refused to go on the road with them.

"I have only one life to give and I don't intend to give it for CORE or the NAACP," Joe Cavanaugh, a Greyhound bus driver, told the group as they tried to board his bus for Montgomery.

The bus did not leave as the integrationists stood around the loading platform, following their usual pattern of waiting.

Cavanaugh said he had heard of "a big caravan" waiting down the road to stop any attempt at integrated bus riding in Alabama.

The prospects of the youths riding integrated out of here aboard a regularly scheduled bus appeared dim as this city entered its seventh straight day of mounting racial tension.

Then they settled down in the white waiting room and said they wouldn't try again until daylight. They made no effort to board buses leaving late Friday night and early today.

The youths entered the station, carrying tickets to Montgomery, Ala., at 2:45 p.m. Friday. They said they intended to stay "until we get a bus to Montgomery."

Drivers, apparently fearful of violence, refused to take out buses carrying the integrated group.

Buses for Montgomery weren't cancelled—they just didn't leave the station—when the group tried to board them.

The threat of violence remained, as it has since a white mob jumped the so-called "freedom riders" of the Congress of Racial Equality last Sunday, and beat some of them unmercifully. The integrated CORE group was testing bus station segregation in the South.

Hope Raised On Kennedy, Mr. K Parley

World Looking To Vienna Talks For Curbing Tensions

LONDON (AP) — The world hoped today the Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting in Austria two weeks from now would ease international tension. But there was caution, about expecting any momentous results.

"It's the Vienna Waltz," said the conservative London Daily Sketch over a cartoon showing the U. S. President and the Soviet premier dancing together.

India's philosopher-statesman, Vice President Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan, said the future of humanity is at stake in these cruel times.

"One of our ancient scriptures tells us that when danger is near, salvation also is near," he said in a New Delhi banquet speech that put the moral support of his neutral nation behind the coming meeting.

He spoke at a state dinner for visiting U. S. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Home told reporters that to meet Kennedy "is a salutary experience for anybody, and we hope very much that good will come out of this meeting."

There was no direct comment from French President Charles de Gaulle. Members of his official family said he had neither any objections nor any enthusiasm for the meeting. Kennedy will meet with De Gaulle in Paris and go directly from these talks to see Khrushchev.

The government press bureau in Bonn said West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer welcomes the meeting and thinks Khrushchev and Kennedy should get to know one another personally.

The Japanese foreign office also approved of the summit meeting as a chance to slacken world tension.

A Yugoslav spokesman said the Tito government hopes the conference will contribute to peace and better cooperation.

The British press unanimously applauded the meeting plan. The London Daily Express said the gap since an American and a Soviet leader last met has been too long and unprofitable.

Vienna Talks Get Reaction In Congress

Core Of Uneasiness Beneath Generally Cautious Optimism

Beneath the expressions of support for Kennedy and the generally cautious optimism reflected in comment, there is a core of uneasiness about what might happen at Vienna.

This seems to be based primarily on the unpredictability of Khrushchev and his demonstrated ability to make propaganda out of almost any occasion. Nobody has forgotten his breakup of the Paris conference a year ago nor his abusive treatment of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Death Claims Joe Howard, Song Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Joe Howard, vaudeville star who wrote more than 500 songs including "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," died on the stage of the Civic Opera House Friday night while doing a benefit performance.

The famous song and dance man, who made his home in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., had just finished singing an encore featuring some of his hits when he was stricken.

The curtain closed and some in the audience were unaware the collapse was not part of the act. But his wife, Miriam and a number of doctors in the audience rushed back stage where he was pronounced dead.

Death came in the city where Howard wrote many of his song hits and musical comedies in the early 1900s. Mrs. Howard remarked later "what a glorious way to die—in the town where he first made it big."

The veteran performer marked his 50th anniversary in show business in 1949 and had remained active to the last, appearing recently in a number of Florida clubs and hotels and doing benefits. Mrs. Howard said he was 79 though published reports had often listed him as somewhat older.

South Korea's Yun Will Stay As President

Bows To Pleas Of Generals To Give Junta Legal Status

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Bowing to pleas of rebel generals, President Yun Po-sun today withdrew his one-day old resignation to give South Korea's new military regime constitutional status.

The elder statesman, 63, announced he had agreed to stay on as the civilian figurehead chief-of-state to avoid "international repercussions."

Foreign diplomats are accredited to the president and U. S. officials take the view that Yun remaining in office would make recognition of the new regime automatic.

The president announced withdrawal of his resignation at a news conference flanked by the two top leaders of the ruling junta—Lt. Gen. Chang Do-young, who named himself premier and defense minister earlier in the day, and Maj. Gen. Pak Jung-hi.

Gen. Chang, 38, in taking over as premier named a 15-man cabinet—all military men.

The presence of the revolutionary leaders at his side did not stop Yun from expressing regrets about the revolt that overthrew the elected government.

The military coup d'etat seems to give the people many encouraging hopes for the future although it was quite regrettable and I wish it had never occurred in this country," he said.

And he warned that he would resign again if the new regime takes a direction of which he disapproves.

In lightning raids during the night South Korea's military rulers jailed members of deposed Premier John M. Chang's cabinet and generals who refused to back Tuesday's coup.

The ousted premier, 61, reportedly talked himself out of arrest. He defied military police trying to take him to prison and demanded they produce a warrant signed by junta leader, Gen. Ghang.

Arrive In Miami

52 American Prisoners Repatriated From Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The first American prisoners repatriated from Fidel Castro's Cuba, including the last U.S. newsmen there, arrived in Miami Friday night — some glad, some fighting mad and some fearfully silent.

Fifty-two Americans were in the group of 101 passengers who arrived aboard a chartered airliner. Also aboard were 46 Cuban refugees.

The Americans included four newsmen, five Catholic priests and three nuns.

There were cheers and applause when many of the repatriates walked from the plane. Some refused to identify themselves, explaining they feared for the safety of relatives still in Cuba or property on the island.

Among those returning were Harold K. Milks, chief of Associated Press Caribbean services, and Robert Berrellez, Associated Press correspondent in Havana; Ruby Hart Phillips, New York Times correspondent, and Martin P. Houseman of United Press International.

Churchmen aboard the plane included Father Lorenzo Spirali, founder of Villaneova University; Father Edward McCarthy, prior of Hufnagel and Father Emelio Castro.

Other repatriates were Grace

President Cancels West Virginia U. Talk

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) -- Although President Kennedy will not be able to keep his speaking date at West Virginia University graduating exercises June 5, he has agreed to speak at the university later in the year.

Kennedy had to cancel his scheduled commencement address at Morgantown because of the meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in Vienna and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in London.

Gov. Barron is expected to fill in for the President.

$50 Million Damage Set In Manila Blaze

MANILA (AP)—A spectacular fire, the worst to hit Manila in 50 years, razed more than four blocks of the city's market district today, injuring scores of persons and causing more than $50 million property damage.

More than 200 persons were arrested for looting and police said they suspected arson as the cause of the fire.

Decline In Jobless Claims Best In Weeks

The biggest weekly decline in claims for unemployment compensation in several months was recorded this week at the East Liverpool office of the Ohio State Employment Service.

Harry L. Dinsmore, manager, said claims filed last week totaled 903, a decline of 134 from the previous week's 1,037. Claims for the week ending May 6 totaled 1,046 and 1,051 for the week ending April 29.

This week's claims included 725 regular and 178 on the extended federal program. The regular claims included 59 new, a drop of almost 50 per cent from last week's 110, and 666 continuing.

Hancock Kidnaping Case Termed 'Hoax'

The story of a 20-year-old Youngstown man who reported he was kidnapped at gunpoint and forced to drive from the Mahoning County city into Hancock County Tuesday has been established as a hoax by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Donald Beard told authorities he was forced to drive 60 miles from Youngstown to a point between Newell and New Cumberland where he was robbed of $10 before the gunman left him.

West Virginia State Police and Hancock County sheriff's deputies set up roadblocks in the area Tuesday night and used bloodhounds in a search for the reported kidnaper.

Beard was quizzed at length by the FBI and the Wheeling office said it has been established that his story is a hoax.

Beard was found by a passing motorist lying in a field off Route 5 near the Ohio Turnpike overpass about five miles west of Warren at midnight Thursday. He was examined at a hospital in Warren and later released to his wife and mother.

Together with 51 other American repatriates and about the same number of other passengers, we rode to freedom Friday from Havana.

The majority seemed hopeful of returning to a "free Cuba" someday. But most all were at a loss to explain how, or when.

This question was no mystery to the nearly 2,000 Cubans left in La Cabana when I left the military jail last May 12. To a man they were sure either direct American intervention or an invasion by the Organization of American States would liberate them. They seemed to have discarded any hope an internal upheaval would liberate them.

They knew that the abortive April invasion had destroyed a well-organized underground poised with smuggled arms to strike the minute an invasion came.

"They didn't tell us," bitterly cried one underground movement man in prison. "They ruined us and months and months of work, money and material are gone just because they didn't tell us they were coming. What's wrong with your people?"

Racial Bars Are Broken On Bus Ride

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A Greyhound bus pulled out of here today with a racially mixed group on board. The young Negroes and white people had waited at the station almost 18 hours trying to get on board the bus for Montgomery.

The only passengers were the almost two dozen members of the racially integrated group.

Bus officials said the trip to Montgomery, 100 miles south of here, would take about 2½ hours.

The group got aboard a bus on its fourth try since 3 p.m. Friday. Earlier efforts were stymied when drivers refused to go on the road with them.

"I have only one life to give and I don't intend to give it for CORE or the NAACP," Joe Cavanaugh, a Greyhound bus driver, told the group as they tried to board his bus for Montgomery.

The bus did not leave as the integrationists stood around the loading platform, following their usual pattern of waiting.

Cavanaugh said he had heard of "a big caravan" waiting down the road to stop any attempt at integrated bus riding in Alabama.

The prospects of the youths riding integrated out of here aboard a regularly scheduled bus appeared dim as this city entered its seventh straight day of mounting racial tension.

Then they settled down in the white waiting room and said they wouldn't try again until daylight. They made no effort to board buses leaving late Friday night and early today.

The youths entered the station, carrying tickets to Montgomery, Ala., at 2:45 p.m. Friday. They said they intended to stay "until we get a bus to Montgomery."

Drivers, apparently fearful of violence, refused to take out buses carrying the integrated group.

Buses for Montgomery weren't cancelled—they just didn't leave the station—when the group tried to board them.

The threat of violence remained, as it has since a white mob jumped the so-called "freedom riders" of the Congress of Racial Equality last Sunday, and beat some of them unmercifully. The integrated CORE group was testing bus station segregation in the South.

Hope Raised On Kennedy, Mr. K Parley

World Looking To Vienna Talks For Curbing Tensions

LONDON (AP) — The world hoped today the Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting in Austria two weeks from now would ease international tension. But there was caution, about expecting any momentous results.

"It's the Vienna Waltz," said the conservative London Daily Sketch over a cartoon showing the U. S. President and the Soviet premier dancing together.

India's philosopher-statesman, Vice President Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan, said the future of humanity is at stake in these cruel times.

"One of our ancient scriptures tells us that when danger is near, salvation also is near," he said in a New Delhi banquet speech that put the moral support of his neutral nation behind the coming meeting.

He spoke at a state dinner for visiting U. S. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Home told reporters that to meet Kennedy "is a salutary experience for anybody, and we hope very much that good will come out of this meeting."

There was no direct comment from French President Charles de Gaulle. Members of his official family said he had neither any objections nor any enthusiasm for the meeting. Kennedy will meet with De Gaulle in Paris and go directly from these talks to see Khrushchev.

The government press bureau in Bonn said West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer welcomes the meeting and thinks Khrushchev and Kennedy should get to know one another personally.

The Japanese foreign office also approved of the summit meeting as a chance to slacken world tension.

A Yugoslav spokesman said the Tito government hopes the conference will contribute to peace and better cooperation.

The British press unanimously applauded the meeting plan. The London Daily Express said the gap since an American and a Soviet leader last met has been too long and unprofitable.

Repairs have been started to the roof and sprinkler system.

$50 Million Damage Set In Manila Blaze

MANILA (AP)—A spectacular fire, the worst to hit Manila in 50 years, razed more than four blocks of the city's market district today, injuring scores of persons and causing more than $50 million property damage.

Businessmen hard hit by the fire included textile retailers and wholesalers.

More than 200 persons were arrested for looting and police said they suspected arson as the cause of the fire.

President Cancels West Virginia U. Talk

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) -- Although President Kennedy will not be able to keep his speaking date at West Virginia University graduating exercises June 5, he has agreed to speak at the university later in the year.

Kennedy had to cancel his scheduled commencement address at Morgantown because of the meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in Vienna and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in London.

Gov. Barron is expected to fill in for the President.

Vienna Talks Get Reaction In Congress

Core Of Uneasiness Beneath Generally Cautious Optimism

Beneath the expressions of support for Kennedy and the generally cautious optimism reflected in comment, there is a core of uneasiness about what might happen at Vienna.

This seems to be based primarily on the unpredictability of Khrushchev and his demonstrated ability to make propaganda out of almost any occasion. Nobody has forgotten his breakup of the Paris conference a year ago nor his abusive treatment of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Death Claims Joe Howard, Song Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Joe Howard, vaudeville star who wrote more than 500 songs including "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," died on the stage of the Civic Opera House Friday night while doing a benefit performance.

The famous song and dance man, who made his home in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., had just finished singing an encore featuring some of his hits when he was stricken.

The curtain closed and some in the audience were unaware the collapse was not part of the act. But his wife, Miriam and a number of doctors in the audience rushed back stage where he was pronounced dead.

Death came in the city where Howard wrote many of his song hits and musical comedies in the early 1900s. Mrs. Howard remarked later "what a glorious way to die—in the town where he first made it big."

The veteran performer marked his 50th anniversary in show business in 1949 and had remained active to the last, appearing recently in a number of Florida clubs and hotels and doing benefits. Mrs. Howard said he was 79 though published reports had often listed him as somewhat older.

South Korea's Yun Will Stay As President

Bows To Pleas Of Generals To Give Junta Legal Status

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Bowing to pleas of rebel generals, President Yun Po-sun today withdrew his one-day old resignation to give South Korea's new military regime constitutional status.

The elder statesman, 63, announced he had agreed to stay on as the civilian figurehead chief-of-state to avoid "international repercussions."

Foreign diplomats are accredited to the president and U. S. officials take the view that Yun remaining in office would make recognition of the new regime automatic.

The president announced withdrawal of his resignation at a news conference flanked by the two top leaders of the ruling junta—Lt. Gen. Chang Do-young, who named himself premier and defense minister earlier in the day, and Maj. Gen. Pak Jung-hi.

Gen. Chang, 38, in taking over as premier named a 15-man cabinet—all military men.

The presence of the revolutionary leaders at his side did not stop Yun from expressing regrets about the revolt that overthrew the elected government.

The military coup d'etat seems to give the people many encouraging hopes for the future although it was quite regrettable and I wish it had never occurred in this country," he said.

And he warned that he would resign again if the new regime takes a direction of which he disapproves.

In lightning raids during the night South Korea's military rulers jailed members of deposed Premier John M. Chang's cabinet and generals who refused to back Tuesday's coup.

The ousted premier, 61, reportedly talked himself out of arrest. He defied military police trying to take him to prison and demanded they produce a warrant signed by junta leader, Gen. Ghang.

Arrive In Miami

52 American Prisoners Repatriated From Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The first American prisoners repatriated from Fidel Castro's Cuba, including the last U.S. newsmen there, arrived in Miami Friday night — some glad, some fighting mad and some fearfully silent.

Fifty-two Americans were in the group of 101 passengers who arrived aboard a chartered airliner. Also aboard were 46 Cuban refugees.

The Americans included four newsmen, five Catholic priests and three nuns.

There were cheers and applause when many of the repatriates walked from the plane. Some refused to identify themselves, explaining they feared for the safety of relatives still in Cuba or property on the island.

Among those returning were Harold K. Milks, chief of Associated Press Caribbean services, and Robert Berrellez, Associated Press correspondent in Havana; Ruby Hart Phillips, New York Times correspondent, and Martin P. Houseman of United Press International.

Churchmen aboard the plane included Father Lorenzo Spirali, founder of Villaneova University; Father Edward McCarthy, prior of Hufnagel and Father Emelio Castro.

Other repatriates were Grace

Hancock Kidnaping Case Termed 'Hoax'

The story of a 20-year-old Youngstown man who reported he was kidnapped at gunpoint and forced to drive from the Mahoning County city into Hancock County Tuesday has been established as a hoax by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Donald Beard told authorities he was forced to drive 60 miles from Youngstown to a point between Newell and New Cumberland where he was robbed of $10 before the gunman left him.

West Virginia State Police and Hancock County sheriff's deputies set up roadblocks in the area Tuesday night and used bloodhounds in a search for the reported kidnaper.

Beard was quizzed at length by the FBI and the Wheeling office said it has been established that his story is a hoax.

Beard was found by a passing motorist lying in a field off Route 5 near the Ohio Turnpike overpass about five miles west of Warren at midnight Thursday. He was examined at a hospital in Warren and later released to his wife and mother.

Congress

Democrats think he will be able to take care of himself.

In this connection, Rep. Thomas M. Pelly, R-Wash., said Democratic leaders ought to try to persuade Kennedy to call off the conference.

"We should not send an apprentice president to deal with a wily, seasoned, world-wise leader like Khrushchev," Pelly said in a statement.

On the other hand, Sen. Hubert H Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, said he isn't worried about Kennedy's being able to hold his own.

"The President is well-informed unemotional and firm," Humphrey said. "He will give a good account of himself under any circumstances."

But among both Democrats and Republicans there was the feeling that Kennedy is going into the talks at a disadvantage because of the Soviet man-in-space accomplishment, the Cuban invasion disaster and the situation in Laos.

Gloomily, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said that Khrushchev "seems to have most of the marbles."

Weather Delayed Work

Clean, Paint And Fix-Up Drive Launched Citywide

Crossing its fingers against a continuance of wet, cold weather that already has delayed the drive, the Chamber of Commerce is preparing to launch the annual citywide "Clean - Up, Paint - Up, Fix-Up" campaign.

Posters and window banners have been distributed to participating merchants to help publicize the drive. Householders and businessmen will be asked to brighten their buildings and grounds in time for Memorial Day.

The campaign was to have opened in early May, but was delayed because of inclement weather.

East Liverpool residents will be asked to make minor repairs to fences, walks, steps and other parts of their premises that deteriorated during the hard winter. They also will be asked to apply new coats of paint, where needed, to homes and business places, clean up lawns and gardens and trim hedges and shade trees.

The municipality's major share of the annual spring cleanup concluded Friday when the incinerator department finished work on hauling trash out of every neighborhood in the city.

"We hope householders and business places throughout the community will take advantage of favorable weather to give their premises a bright new appearance in time for Memorial Day and the approach of summer," a Chamber spokesman said.

Conscience Money Received By Police

It seems she missed the basket when she tried to throw a quarter into an automatic toll collector on the Connecticut Turnpike.

She started to get out to retrieve it, but a long line of motorists behind her began to honk their horns. So she drove off.

Later, she began to brood — maybe she had better make certain the state received the money. Thus, the check.

"Everything else, clothes, furniture, dishes and prized possessions gathered in more than 20 years as a foreign correspondent were left in the hands of Castro's militiamen."

Mrs. Phillips said she learned only 10 minutes before the plane departed that she could leave. She appeared exhausted.

"We don't know what we are going to do now," said the Kineseys, who formerly lived at Mullins, S.C. Their orange grove in Camaguey Province, where they had lived for 27 years, was expropriated.

Sanz, a stockbroker in Havana, said he spent 10 days in La Cabana prison.

"I was released accidentally. I left with a bunch who went out to make room for others. The G-2 didn't know who all left. The next day they looked for me again."

Swiss Ambassador Walter Bossi and three other Swiss Embassy officials escorted most of the Americans to the airport. Milks and several others had been in asylum in the Swiss Embassy.

He Wasn't One To Be Jolted Out Of Hobby

CINCINNATI (AP) — Attendants at Christ Hospital are convinced that 29-year-old Joe Smith isn't one to be jolted out of a hobby.

Smith, an Aurora, Ind., resident who is interested in citizen's band radio rigs, was burned when an antenna he was installing touched an 11,000-volt wire. But, while hospitalized, he set up his radio equipment — minus roof antenna — and began daily conversations with other radio enthusiasts.

Democrats think he will be able to take care of himself.

In this connection, Rep. Thomas M. Pelly, R-Wash., said Democratic leaders ought to try to persuade Kennedy to call off the conference.

"We should not send an apprentice president to deal with a wily, seasoned, world-wise leader like Khrushchev," Pelly said in a statement.

On the other hand, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, said he isn't worried about Kennedy's being able to hold his own.

"The President is well-informed unemotional and firm," Humphrey said. "He will give a good account of himself under any circumstances."

But among both Democrats and Republicans there was the feeling that Kennedy is going into the talks at a disadvantage because of the Soviet man-in-space accomplishment, the Cuban invasion disaster and the situation in Laos.

Gloomily, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said that Khrushchev "seems to have most of the marbles."

Weather Delayed Work

Clean, Paint And Fix-Up Drive Launched Citywide

Crossing its fingers against a continuance of wet, cold weather that already has delayed the drive, the Chamber of Commerce is preparing to launch the annual citywide "Clean - Up, Paint - Up, Fix-Up" campaign.

Posters and window banners have been distributed to participating merchants to help publicize the drive. Householders and businessmen will be asked to brighten their buildings and grounds in time for Memorial Day.

The campaign was to have opened in early May, but was delayed because of inclement weather.

East Liverpool residents will be asked to make minor repairs to fences, walks, steps and other parts of their premises that deteriorated during the hard winter. They also will be asked to apply new coats of paint, where needed, to homes and business places, clean up lawns and gardens and trim hedges and shade trees.

The municipality's major share of the annual spring cleanup concluded Friday when the incinerator department finished work on hauling trash out of every neighborhood in the city.

"We hope householders and business places throughout the community will take advantage of favorable weather to give their premises a bright new appearance in time for Memorial Day and the approach of summer," a Chamber spokesman said.

Sheriff Back From Trial

Sheriff Russell J. VanFossan of Lisbon and an FBI agent from Youngstown returned Friday night from Florida where they testified in the trial of the ex-husband of an East Liverpool woman and another man implicated in the $12,000 armed robbery of a Miami laundry in 1959.

The sheriff said the trial of George Jackman and Donald Watkins, a former North Miami attorney and an ex-judge, former husband of Mrs. Sarah Koffel, 27, of East Liverpool, apparently ended yesterday.

Mrs. Koffel, who was married to Kenneth Koffel, former Lisbon resident, in January, has pleaded guilty along with Watkins and Jackman, and four or five Negroes, to the holdup.

Mrs. Koffel also testified in Miami where she is free on bond. She will return here, but will be required to return to Miami for sentencing, it was indicated.

Mrs. Koffel was arrested March 13 by the FBI agent and the sheriff and waived extradition before Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard.

Democrats think he will be able to take care of himself.

In this connection, Rep. Thomas M. Pelly, R-Wash., said Democratic leaders ought to try to persuade Kennedy to call off the conference.

"We should not send an apprentice president to deal with a wily, seasoned, world-wise leader like Khrushchev," Pelly said in a statement.

On the other hand, Sen. Hubert H Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, said he isn't worried about Kennedy's being able to hold his own.

"The President is well-informed unemotional and firm," Humphrey said. "He will give a good account of himself under any circumstances."

But among both Democrats and Republicans there was the feeling that Kennedy is going into the talks at a disadvantage because of the Soviet man-in-space accomplishment, the Cuban invasion disaster and the situation in Laos.

Gloomily, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said that Khrushchev "seems to have most of the marbles."

Weather Delayed Work

Clean, Paint And Fix-Up Drive Launched Citywide

Crossing its fingers against a continuance of wet, cold weather that already has delayed the drive, the Chamber of Commerce is preparing to launch the annual citywide "Clean - Up, Paint - Up, Fix-Up" campaign.

Posters and window banners have been distributed to participating merchants to help publicize the drive. Householders and businessmen will be asked to brighten their buildings and grounds in time for Memorial Day.

The campaign was to have opened in early May, but was delayed because of inclement weather.

East Liverpool residents will be asked to make minor repairs to fences, walks, steps and other parts of their premises that deteriorated during the hard winter. They also will be asked to apply new coats of paint, where needed, to homes and business places, clean up lawns and gardens and trim hedges and shade trees.

The municipality's major share of the annual spring cleanup concluded Friday when the incinerator department finished work on hauling trash out of every neighborhood in the city.

"We hope householders and business places throughout the community will take advantage of favorable weather to give their premises a bright new appearance in time for Memorial Day and the approach of summer," a Chamber spokesman said.

Conscience Money Received By Police

It seems she missed the basket when she tried to throw a quarter into an automatic toll collector on the Connecticut Turnpike.

She started to get out to retrieve it, but a long line of motorists behind her began to honk their horns. So she drove off.

Later, she began to brood — maybe she had better make certain the state received the money. Thus, the check.

Congress

Democrats think he will be able to take care of himself.

In this connection, Rep. Thomas M. Pelly, R-Wash., said Democratic leaders ought to try to persuade Kennedy to call off the conference.

"We should not send an apprentice president to deal with a wily, seasoned, world-wise leader like Khrushchev," Pelly said in a statement.

On the other hand, Sen. Hubert H Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, said he isn't worried about Kennedy's being able to hold his own.

"The President is well-informed unemotional and firm," Humphrey said. "He will give a good account of himself under any circumstances."

But among both Democrats and Republicans there was the feeling that Kennedy is going into the talks at a disadvantage because of the Soviet man-in-space accomplishment, the Cuban invasion disaster and the situation in Laos.

Gloomily, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said that Khrushchev "seems to have most of the marbles."

Weather Delayed Work

Clean, Paint And Fix-Up Drive Launched Citywide

Crossing its fingers against a continuance of wet, cold weather that already has delayed the drive, the Chamber of Commerce is preparing to launch the annual citywide "Clean - Up, Paint - Up, Fix-Up" campaign.

Posters and window banners have been distributed to participating merchants to help publicize the drive. Householders and businessmen will be asked to brighten their buildings and grounds in time for Memorial Day.

The campaign was to have opened in early May, but was delayed because of inclement weather.

East Liverpool residents will be asked to make minor repairs to fences, walks, steps and other parts of their premises that deteriorated during the hard winter. They also will be asked to apply new coats of paint, where needed, to homes and business places, clean up lawns and gardens and trim hedges and shade trees.

The municipality's major share of the annual spring cleanup concluded Friday when the incinerator department finished work on hauling trash out of every neighborhood in the city.

"We hope householders and business places throughout the community will take advantage of favorable weather to give their premises a bright new appearance in time for Memorial Day and the approach of summer," a Chamber spokesman said.

Conscience Money Received By Police

It seems she missed the basket when she tried to throw a quarter into an automatic toll collector on the Connecticut Turnpike.

She started to get out to retrieve it, but a long line of motorists behind her began to honk their horns. So she drove off.

Later, she began to brood — maybe she had better make certain the state received the money. Thus, the check.

Mrs. Koffel was arrested March 13 by the FBI agent and the sheriff and waived extradition before Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard.

Plans were also discussed for the Daily Vacation Bible School to be held in June. Mrs. Robert Paisley offered prayer.

Lunch was served. The tables were decorated with spring flowers. Mrs. Vivian Cline and Mrs. James Paisley were co-hostesses. Next meeting is June 15.

Quartet Program Set In Ohio Township

Ohio Township volunteer firemen will sponsor a barbershop quartet program Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the fire hall with proceeds to be used for the building fund.

Firemen made plans at a meeting Thursday night. Noah Luster, president, resigned. Nomination and election of officers will be held at the meeting June 6.

The Tri-State Firemen's Association will meet Thursday evening at the Glenmoor station. The first aid course, sponsored by Ohio Township firemen, began May 8 for 10 weeks at the fire hall.

Sheriff Back From Trial

Sheriff Russell J. VanFossan of Lisbon and an FBI agent from Youngstown returned Friday night from Florida where they testified in the trial of the ex-husband of an East Liverpool woman and another man implicated in the $12,000 armed robbery of a Miami laundry in 1959.

The sheriff said the trial of George Jackman and Donald Watkins, a former North Miami attorney and an ex-judge, former husband of Mrs. Sarah Koffel, 27, of East Liverpool, apparently ended yesterday.

Mrs. Koffel, who was married to Kenneth Koffel, former Lisbon resident, in January, has pleaded guilty along with Watkins and Jackman, and four or five Negroes, to the holdup.

Mrs. Koffel also testified in Miami where she is free on bond. She will return here, but will be required to return to Miami for sentencing, it was indicated.

Mrs. Koffel was arrested March 13 by the FBI agent and the sheriff and waived extradition before Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard.

Be Of Good Cheer, Graduates!

A scene typical of America will be repeated thousands of times in the next few weeks.

Young men and women will put on long robes and quaint caps called mortarboards and go through a ritual known as commencement exercises. The ritual will be witnessed by parents, relatives and other well-wishers.

In many instances, it will be the third such occasion for students whose certification as graduates is the purpose of the exercises. They will have been graduated from high school, then from college and finally from some university in which they have completed special academic preparation.

But at whichever stage of preparation they are being graduated in 1961, there still will be some things they won't have been able to learn in classrooms and libraries. It is well, all things considered, that this is so. If it were otherwise, the young would be robbed prematurely of those things of which time will rob them eventually, all in good order.

THEY WOULD BECOME like Winston Churchill in the sere of the leaf, instead of like the budding young Britisher who knew all the answers when he was 20. They would become like the mellowed Harry Truman who now goes into his diatribes against demons in the GOP on command, like an old fire horse demonstrating reflexes that never quite fade away.

Or they would become like Somerset Maugham, retiring from a talent not yet exhausted from the sheer exhaustion of having used it so much and so often. They would be old before they had been young. They would be so preoccupied with summer they would forget to acknowledge spring.

They would know that the dread events currently frightening them and the goblins dangled before their eyes are never as bad as their imaginations make them seem to be. They would know that most of the things they will be afraid of in their lifetimes will not happen; that most of their worries will be in their imagination.

Even the rise and fall of dictators they would know to be like the ebb and flow of the tides — a coming and going of power.

THEY WOULD SEE a repetitive pattern in private and public corruption, as they would see — granted enough perspective— a pattern repeated endlessly in manners, dress, spirituality and lack of spirituality.

They would learn never to be shocked or taken by surprise by current events, because they would know the events are but the repetition of history in the same way that human life is but the repetition of human life.

It is good, then, for the young not to be robbed prematurely of their motivations to change everything for the better. If it comes to their ears that some of the things they intend to do are not likely to be done and some of the things they believe to be true are false, they should be of good cheer.

Some of their projects will succeed and many of the things they believe to be true will come true because they believed them. This is the secret of progress.

SOMEWHERE between the extremes of protest and reconciliation is the Golden Mean — the path on which progress will be made.

Somewhere between the too-hopeful hopefulness of the commencement orators and their most cynical detractors lies the ultimate truth of the matter, but graduates should not be concerned with ultimate truth at the beginning.

Having learned much, they should have learned how much there is to learn, and no one can ask more from education than that. They will have to learn all the rest in their own time.

The Power Of Faith

by Howard Brodie

The faith of William Booth, who saw weakness and poverty as a pawnbroker's assistant in 19th Century England, strengthened him to form the Salvation Army that today serves man over the world.

William dedicated his life to Christ at 15 and went "forth to serve my God." He preached. In his late forties, he founded the Army with his wife, overcoming financial difficulties, ridicule and abuse to be honored by the king.

Today, these "sons and daughters of Him Whose name and Whose nature is 'love' " offer services that include the Anti-Suicide League, emergency housing, employment bureaus, nurseries, hospitals, homes for aged, youth camps, care for convicts, unwed mothers and alcoholics.

Integration Hypocrisy

By David Lawrence

Washington Functions Are Studied

An agitation started by spokesmen for the Kennedy administration is stirring up quite a controversy not only over the admission of Negroes to private clubs but their inclusion at cocktail parties and dinners in private homes.

David Lawrence

The idea of token participation seems to have been rejected as unsatisfactory by many advocates of integration, the argument being that to select a few is a kind of hypocrisy and that full participation on the basis of the proportion to population is much more equitable.

About 54 per cent of the population of the national capital is Negro, so it is being argued that there must be equality and that a failure to provide an equal number of Negroes at cocktail parties and at official as well as private dinners is a form of discrimination.

Two members of the Kennedy Cabinet have spoken out on the subject of admission of Negroes to private clubs but there has been no indication from them as to the quantitative formula to be used in determining how many should be admitted. Or is there any clarification as yet as to what the Kennedy administration intends to do to coerce the private clubs to do its bidding. Taking away tax exemptions is one device often mentioned.

The public discussion was started by Attorney General Robert Kennedy and Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg. Mr. Kennedy in a television interview spoke of private clubs here that do not admit Negroes, and added:

"And, as I say, if we're going to practice what we preach — we're going to have to take steps forward in all sections of the United States."

Secretary Goldberg, in a public address recently in New York, said: "I find it difficult to understand why, in the houses I have frequented socially, the dinner parties, the cocktail parties, I have rarely seen Negroes as guests.

"This is particularly marked among intellectuals and liberals in our large cities, particularly in New York City and Chicago.

"Are there no Negro writers, composers, artists, academicians with whom one can break bread, with whom one can engage in intellectual discourse?"

THERE ARE, of course, many of us, irrespective of race or creed or color, who are never able to engage in intellectual discourse anyway, but, assuming that there are a fortunate few who can do so, the question arises as to what the administration has to do with it.

The Supreme Court of the United States in recent decisions has upheld freedom of association for individuals, but this was in a case involving alleged Communists, rather than non-Communists, so perhaps it doesn't apply to everybody.

Maybe the first thing to do is to get the facts. If there be inside the Kennedy administration many officials who are capable of engaging in "intellectual discourse," then indeed it might be asked whether lately they have been inviting any Negro couples to their cocktail parties and dinners.

So far as is known, the times that Negroes are prominent in official functions are rare—usually only when ambassadors from African nations are being entertained.

Certainly no one has heard of an equal number of Negroes and whites being present at any official dinners and receptions to which the general public have been invited.

MANY OFFICIAL functions have been held in Washington recently at which no Negroes were present. In political campaign years, there are some, of course.

Political dinners by the Republicans have for decades included some of the Negro politicians and their wives. Only in more recent times have the Democrats in the North done the same. But, as far as is known, the Kennedy administration has not invited any quotas of Negroes for cocktail parties or dinners, though it could be that no functions have been held as yet at which "Negro writers, composers, artists, academicians" could find anyone with whom they could engage in "intellectual discourse."

What's needed around Washington, to be sure, are some standards and formulas to take care of the weighty problem of the invitation lists for dinners and cocktail parties — there doesn't seem to be enough worries to go around besides Loas and Cuba.

You Almost Hate To Mention It

Perhaps it is becoming too easy to blame everything that takes the United States by surprise on the Central Intelligence Agency.

But it also may be true that what has happened to CIA is the result of too strident a buildup by people trying to put too good a face on what was essentially just another federal agency.

CIA's latest failure to keep responsible officials in Washington informed about coming events was the coup d'etat in South Korea. But perhaps worse than failure to see the overthrow coming was failure to warn against the weakness of the government that was overthrown.

If it had been Communist mischief-makers instead of South Korean militarists who jerked the rug from under John Chang's regime, the United States now would have something bigger than Laos or South Viet Nam to think about. Washington was taken by surprise.

But is this possibly not the fault of CIA at all? Is it possible this super hush-hush agency has been the victim as well as the beneficiary of deep secrecy that concelaed what it was unable to do as well as what it was doing?

Even J. Edgar Hoover's prestige-packed Federal Bureau of Investigation must confess there are some things it is unable to do, and one of its director's fixed points of insistence has been that his bureau's limitations should be respected. For instance, both he and Allan Dulles, chief of CIA, have pointed out that they are not responsible for what happens if the information they furnish is not acted on. But Mr. Dulles hasn't made it clear he had any information on either Cuba or Korea.

Director Dulles cannot match the unprecedented prestige of Director Hoover, who is virtually immune to criticism. But on the other hand Director Dulles has never made it as clear as Mr. Hoover that he recognizes the limitations of his agency. That would seem to be the next order of business while awaiting the outcome of the investigation of CIA now in progress.

It would take some of the sting out of the next sock in the nose U.S. prestige will get without advance warning if CIA were to be on record with an admission of its inability to live up to all the press notices it was given.

Stronger Than Korean Students?

With no apology for the way they feel about it, many Americans are full of misgivings about their government's position on a military uprising in Korea. It will uphold the Korean government, and Americans wonder what it will use to do the upholding.

They are fearful of strong positions taken in countries the United States cannot dominate by force—and that excludes every country the United States is trying to help. They understand why America's spokesmen have to stand behind constitutionally established regimes, but they do not understand why it is necessary to take untenable positions.

It would seem, in view of what happened to Syngman Rhee after so many years of U.S. support, that if a mob of undisciplined students could oust Rhee it should be no trick for the Korean army to pull the rug from under a much weaker successor, John Chang.

Without being guilty of doing anything to weaken Chang, the United States surely could be sure it did nothing to weaken itself if the time had come for Chang to step down.

Perhaps Chang is right, but in the turbulent politics of nations that wait for the next dominant force to assert itself explosively, being right is not as important as being the top dog when the fur flies.

Americans are growing weary of being right and losing. They are not sure that their spokesmen always have the God-given gift of knowing in every situation what is right.

Labor Consultant Reports Sought

By Victor Riesel

In the name of the United States, Arthur Goldberg, secretary of labor, has gone into court to force a corporation and a private detective agency, dealing in labor relations, to make public their intimate agreements and money dealings.

Victor Riesel

If Mr. Goldberg succeeds he'll set a precedent which could affect literally a million firms doing nationwide business — even if they don't hire such an agency but do retain the garden variety labor-public relations advisors.

These the government people refer to as the "middleman" in employers' dealings with their workers and their unions.

This action began when the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor-Management Reports discovered that the Olson Rug Co. of Chicago and the Illinois State Detective Agency Inc., which have been associated for many decades, have not filed any reports. This is required, says the government, under the Landrum-Griffin Act.

THE GOVERNMENT contends, in effect, that the private-eye agency sent men into the rug plant to report on the activities of the Textile Workers Union, workers' attitudes towards the union and its secret bargaining strategy.

As the story unravels, the detective agency sent four men into the plant. They worked in the mill fairly regularly. One seemed so devoted to labor that he was chosen by the rank-and-file to sit as a member of the workers' bargaining committee.

The union's chief, William Pollock, has charged that all information obtained by the undercover men found its way back to company officials. Thus there no union strategy secrets.

Olson Rug Co. executives retorted that they've dealt with the detective agency for over a quarter of a century. They asserted that the operatives really were there to see that there was no wastage, say, of yarn, or damage to machinery. They denied spying on the union.

The Bureau of Labor-Management Reports, under Commissioner John Holcombe, said that for the moment all this was academic. What Holcombe wanted was full reports from the firm and the detectives on their activity. And he quoted the proper section of the new law.

Both the rug firm and the detective agency stated they were not covered by the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959. They refused to fill out the forms.

THIS WAS the first employer challenge. There has been some defiance by two or three unions. However, 55,000 labor reports have been filed. Up to the moment there are only 374 reports from labor consultants and others who advise on labor-public relations. In addition, 187 employers have filed reports.

After Commissioner Holcombe did a fast count on this score, he went through all the classified yellow pages of big-city telephone directories. He sought out consultants by any name.

He unloosed a vast mailing on them telling of the section of the law which required their reports. He broadcast. He made speeches. He wrote information pamphlets.

That was all he could do. Finally an inquiry came from someone seeking information on the Illinois State Detective Agency, Inc. The public is entitled to all such information on the ownership, financial details, etc., of any "middleman" consultant, or any firm hiring one, or any of the 55,000 unions on file. So Holcombe searched his files. He did not find any rug company or detective agency documents.

THAT'S WHEN he demanded they comply. That's when they refused. And that's when he reported to Arthur Goldberg, who went into the Washington, D.C., District Court seeking a ruling which should be of vital interest to all corporations which retain even the most scrupulous labor and public relations consultants.

The labor secretary wants annual reports, "receipts of any kind, received directly or indirectly from the employer." Also a statement of all expenditures. Also a "detailed statment of the date, place, terms and conditions" of agreements or "arrangements" between the employer and the "middleman." Where it was made. What is the nature of the activities after the agreement.

Objective of these activities is sought, too. What information the "middleman" seeks on labor matters in general and the union in particular for his client.

If this court action succeeds, the labor relations consulting business, be it by a law firm or public relations outfit on Madison Avenue, will be in a goldfish bowl forever.

A Note Of Optimism

By Clyde H. Farnsworth

The economy is in a solid upturn, which will carry the nation's total output of goods and services to a yearly rate of between $525 billion and $530 billion by the end of 1961, Dr. Walter W. Heller, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, claims.

The gross national product rate for the first quarter this year was $499.5 billion.

At the same time he rules out a tax cut this year and indicated that the Kennedy administration easy money policy for a long-term interest rates will probably remain in force for a while.

Dr. Helller, one of the most influential economic advisers in the administration, said the recession hit a double-month trough in February and March, adding that April industrial production figures were "solid confirmation" of an upturn.

The Federal Reserve Board last week reported industrial production rose sharply in April to the highest level in six months.

HE SAID the upturn is in line with earlier forecasts of the council, a top level economic advisory body. Although it is too early to tell right now, he said, "There is always the chance the pace of the recovery will exceed our expectations."

Much hinges on the attitude of the "fickle consumer," Dr. Heller said. He said he had indications that consumers may be replacing durable goods more briskly than in the past.

The 45-year-old former chairman of the University of Minnesota Department of Economics said definite strength is coming from the public sector, where federal, state and local outlays in the fourth quarter will be running $8 billion to $9 billion higher than in the fourth quarter last year.

Another important factor, he said, has been the economy's "natural rhythm" by which he meant such cyclical movements as inventory reduction and accumulation.

He said there is a slowdown right now in the rate of inventory depletion. He declined to pinpoint when inventories might start building up again but indicated this might be some time during the third quarter.

At the same time he stressed that confidence inspired by the administration's affirmative attack against the recession has played a positive role in the recovery.

The Kennedy anti-recession program has included temporary federal extension of state unemployment compensation payments and loans and grants to depressed areas to attract industry and create jobs.

There may be additional public works programs, Dr. Heller indicated, although the President won't reach a final decision until he completes his current review of the military and space budgets.

THE COUNCIL chairman spoke of the possibility of a "trigger" public works program to be authorized by Congress and put into effect only if unemployment does not decline below certain levels.

Also possible is the enactment of a similar idea in the tax field. In 1957, Dr. Heller, known in academic circles as a tax authority, suggested that Congress approve a tax reduction bill before it is needed, then put it on the shelf unitl recessionary signs are detected.

Dr. Heller characterized the main economic problems facing the nation as how to boost aggregate demand so that slack is taken up in productive capacity and how to reduce unemployment.

Letters To The Editor

On behalf of the East Liverpool High School students, I wish to commend the Junior Chamber of Commerce for their part in our Junior-Senior Prom.

The activities provided for us were very well organized and very much appreciated by all those who attended. I'm sure the parents of all the students attending the after-prom must feel grateful to the Junior Chamber for the wonderful work they are doing for the students of East Liverpool High School.

For the benefit of those who do not know what the post-prom party consists of, I shall give you a brief description of what took place at the 1961 affair.

As we students arrived at Westgate, the members of the J. C. C. assisted us from our cars and then proceeded to park them. The car keys were left at the door with attendants and kept in small bags with number checks so everyone received the correct keys. When entering the building, everyone registerd and was announced over the loudspeaker as they entered the auditorium. No student was permitted to leave the premises after registering. If anyone did leave his parents were notified at the time of his departure. To my knowledge no one even wanted to leave.

A movie was shown, starting at 12:30 and ending at approximately 2. At 1 Del Sinchak's orchestra provided music for dancing in the gym until the entertainment began at 3. Also at 1 a buffet lunch was being served in the cafeteria by the J. C.'s and their wives. Several acts, consisting of a "Rock and Roll" group, a magician, a banjo player and a comedian provided the entertainment. After the entertainment, Del Sinchak resumed playing in the gym until the students started to leave at 6 in the morning.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

War over President Kennedy rocking in rocker without union label has cooled off but poll shows many rocking chair users are in a dither. Some are so nervous they are trying to rock sidewise.

Mortimer Topblower, a rocking-chair man for 30 years, admitted today he had done all his rocking without looking for a label. "There's something about a rocker that takes a man's mind off everything but rocking," he said today. "I've thought of the chair as a comfort without dreaming such a piece of furniture could cause embarrassment and a loss of prestige."

Mortimer says that he once knew a man, politically inclined, who had rocked forward only three times and backwards twice in a new rocking chair before he jumped out, white as a sheet, screaming, "I forgot to search this chair for a union label.

"He couldn't find any label whatever and went into a state of shock for fear news would leak out," Topblower continued.

"When he recovered he had the chair burned publicly and issued a statement promising to have a committee go over his porch hammock, summerhouse-seats and fishing chair to make sure they were properly labeled and not just something the doctor ordered to help him relax."

Mr. Topblower said he had heard of a rocking-chair user who was rocking away perfectly at ease and happy until he found a picket line thrown around him. "This guy was stubborn," he said, "He refused to give in and was picketed for 23 weeks, holding out all the time." Asked what shape the rocking chair was in at end, he replied, "It wasn't good but you should have seen the occupant."

President would spend $10 million a year to curb juvenile baddies. All the job needs is plenty of paddles, hickory sticks and shingles, all of which can be bought for a few dollars and without federal aid.

U.S. Supreme Court says embezzlers must report for income tax all stolen money. This upsets 1946 ruling that taxable income does not include embezzled riches. Belief is that new opinion will apply to future embezzlers as it would be unfair to prosecute crooks who relied on 1946 law. Ya mean we should never disappoint a theif! Chief Justice Warren says there has been much confusion and that it is time to correct the situation. As we get it no man about to loot an estate or corporation should be required to go ahead until he knows his rights.

Owner of Saggy, belittled as poorly bred Sire of Carry Back, points out that he is perfectly bred descendant of Equipoise and Hyperion. Points out too that Saggy beat Citation and once set a world sprint record.

Veep Johnson's Asiatic big show should bring bids for the movie rights.

The faith of William Booth, who saw weakness and poverty as a pawnbroker's assistant in 19th Century England, strengthened him to form the Salvation Army that today serves man over the world.

William dedicated his life to Christ at 15 and went "forth to serve my God." He preached. In his late forties, he founded the Army with his wife, overcoming financial difficulties, ridicule and abuse to be honored by the king.

Today, these "sons and daughters of Him Whose name and Whose nature is 'love'" offer services that include the Anti-Suicide League, emergency housing, employment bureaus, nurseries, hospitals, homes for aged, youth camps, care for convicts, unwed mothers and alcoholics.

Integration Hypocrisy

By David Lawrence

Washington Functions Are Studied

An agitation started by spokesmen for the Kennedy administration is stirring up quite a controversy not only over the admission of Negroes to private clubs but their inclusion at cocktail parties and dinners in private homes.

David Lawrence

The idea of token participation seems to have been rejected as unsatisfactory by many advocates of integration, the argument being that to select a few is a kind of hypocrisy and that full participation on the basis of the proportion to population is much more equitable.

About 54 per cent of the population of the national capital is Negro, so it is being argued that there must be equality and that a failure to provide an equal number of Negroes at cocktail parties and at official as well as private dinners is a form of discrimination.

Two members of the Kennedy Cabinet have spoken out on the subject of admission of Negroes to private clubs but there has been no indication from them as to the quantitative formula to be used in determining how many should be admitted. Or is there any clarification as yet as to what the Kennedy administration intends to do to coerce the private clubs to do its bidding. Taking away tax exemptions is one device often mentioned.

The public discussion was started by Attorney General Robert Kennedy and Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg. Mr. Kennedy in a television interview spoke of private clubs here that do not admit Negroes, and added:

"And, as I say, if we're going to practice what we preach we're going to have to take steps forward in all sections of the United States."

Secretary Goldberg, in a public address recently in New York, said: "I find it difficult to understand why, in the houses I have frequented socially, the dinner parties, the cocktail parties, I have rarely seen Negroes as guests.

"This is particularly marked among intellectuals and liberals in our large cities, particularly in New York City and Chicago.

"Are there no Negro writers, composers, artists, academicians with whom one can break bread, with whom one can engage in intellectual discourse?"

THERE ARE, of course, many of us, irrespective of race or creed or color, who are never able to engage in intellectual discourse anyway, but, assuming that there are a fortunate few who can do so, the question arises as to what the administration has to do with it.

The Supreme Court of the United States in recent decisions has upheld freedom of association for individuals, but this was in a case involving alleged Communists, rather than non-Communists, so perhaps it doesn't apply to everybody.

Maybe the first thing to do is to get the facts. If there be inside the Kennedy administration many officials who are capable of engaging in "intellectual discourse," then indeed it might be asked whether lately they have been inviting any Negro couples to their cocktail parties and dinners.

So far as is known, the times that Negroes are prominent in official functions are rare—usually only when ambassadors from African nations are being entertained.

Certainly no one has heard of an equal number of Negroes and whites being present at any official dinners and receptions to which the general public have been invited.

MANY OFFICIAL functions have been held in Washington recently at which no Negroes were present. In political campaign years, there are some, of course.

Political dinners by the Republicans have for decades included some of the Negro politicians and their wives. Only in more recent times have the Democrats in the North done the same. But, as far as is known, the Kennedy administration has not invited any quotas of Negroes for cocktail parties or dinners, though it could be that no functions have been held as yet at which "Negro writers, composers, artists, academicians" could find anyone with whom they could engage in "intellectual discourse."

What's needed around Washington, to be sure, are some standards and formulas to take care of the weighty problem of the invitation lists for dinners and cocktail parties — there doesn't seem to be enough worries to go around besides Laos and Cuba.

You Almost Hate To Mention It

Perhaps it is becoming too easy to blame everything that takes the United States by surprise on the Central Intelligence Agency.

But it also may be true that what has happened to CIA is the result of too strident a buildup by people trying to put too good a face on what was essentially just another federal agency.

CIA's latest failure to keep responsible officials in Washington informed about coming events was the coup d'etat in South Korea. But perhaps worse than failure to see the overthrow coming was failure to warn against the weakness of the government that was overthrown.

If it had been Communist mischief-makers instead of South Korean militarists who jerked the rug from under John Chang's regime, the United States now would have something bigger than Laos or South Viet Nam to think about. Washington was taken by surprise.

But is this possibly not the fault of CIA at all? Is it possible this super hush-hush agency has been the victim as well as the beneficiary of deep secrecy that concelaed what it was unable to do as well as what it was doing?

Even J. Edgar Hoover's prestige-packed Federal Bureau of Investigation must confess there are some things it is unable to do, and one of its director's fixed points of insistence has been that his bureau's limitations should be respected. For instance, both he and Allan Dulles, chief of CIA, have pointed out that they are not responsible for what happens if the information they furnish is not acted on. But Mr. Dulles hasn't made it clear he had any information on either Cuba or Korea.

Director Dulles cannot match the unprecedented prestige of Director Hoover, who is virtually immune to criticism. But on the other hand Director Dulles has never made it as clear as Mr. Hoover that he recognizes the limitations of his agency. That would seem to be the next order of business while awaiting the outcome of the investigation of CIA now in progress.

It would take some of the sting out of the next sock in the nose U.S. prestige will get without advance warning if CIA were to be on record with an admission of its inability to live up to all the press notices it was given.

Stronger Than Korean Students?

With no apology for the way they feel about it, many Americans are full of misgivings about their government's position on a military uprising in Korea. It will uphold the Korean government, and Americans wonder what it will use to do the upholding.

They are fearful of strong positions taken in countries the United States cannot dominate by force—and that excludes every country the United States is trying to help. They understand why America's spokesmen have to stand behind constitutionally established regimes, but they do not understand why it is necessary to take untenable positions.

It would seem, in view of what happened to Syngman Rhee after so many years of U.S. support, that if a mob of undisciplined students could oust Rhee it should be no trick for the Korean army to pull the rug from under a much weaker successor, John Chang.

Without being guilty of doing anything to weaken Chang, the United States surely could be sure it did nothing to weaken itself if the time had come for Chang to step down.

Perhaps Chang is right, but in the turbulent politics of nations that wait for the next dominant force to assert itself explosively, being right is not as important as being the top dog when the fur flies.

Americans are growing weary of being right and losing. They are not sure that their spokesmen always have the God-given gift of knowing in every situation what is right.

Labor Consultant Reports Sought

By Victor Riesel

In the name of the United States, Arthur Goldberg, secretary of labor, has gone into court to force a corporation and a private detective agency, dealing in labor relations, to make public their intimate agreements and money dealings.

Victor Riesel

If Mr. Goldberg succeeds he'll set a precedent which could affect literally a million firms doing nationwide business — even if they don't hire such an agency but do retain the garden variety labor-public relations advisors.

These the government people refer to as the "middleman" in employers' dealings with their workers and their unions.

This action began when the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor-Management Reports discovered that the Olson Rug Co. of Chicago and the Illinois State Detective Agency Inc., which have been associated for many decades, have not filed any reports. This is required, says the government, under the Landrum-Griffin Act.

THE GOVERNMENT contends, in effect, that the private-eye agency sent men into the rug plant to report on the activities of the Textile Workers Union, workers' attitudes towards the union and its secret bargaining strategy.

As the story unravels, the detective agency sent four men into the plant. They worked in the mill fairly regularly. One seemed so devoted to labor that he was chosen by the rank-and-file to sit as a member of the workers' bargaining committee.

The union's chief, William Pollock, has charged that all information obtained by the undercover men found its way back to company officials. Thus there no union strategy secrets.

Olson Rug Co. executives retorted that they've dealt with the detective agency for over a quarter of a century. They asserted that the operatives really were there to see that there was no wastage, say, of yarn, or damage to machinery. They denied spying on the union.

The Bureau of Labor-Management Reports, under Commissioner John Holcombe, said that for the moment all this was academic. What Holcombe wanted was full reports from the firm and the detectives on their activity. And he quoted the proper section of the new law.

Both the rug firm and the detective agency stated they were not covered by the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959. They refused to fill out the forms.

THIS WAS the first employer challenge. There has been some defiance by two or three unions. However, 55,000 labor reports have been filed. Up to the moment there are only 374 reports from labor consultants and others who advise on labor-public relations. In addition, 187 employers have filed reports.

After Commissioner Holcombe did a fast count on this score, he went through all the classified yellow pages of big-city telephone directories. He sought out consultants by any name.

He unloosed a vast mailing on them telling of the section of the law which required their reports. He broadcast. He made speeches. He wrote information pamphlets.

That was all he could do. Finally an inquiry came from someone seeking information on the Illinois State Detective Agency, Inc. The public is entitled to all such information on the ownership, financial details, etc., of any "middleman" consultant, or any firm hiring one, or any of the 55,000 unions on file. So Holcombe searched his files. He did not find any rug company or detective agency documents.

THAT'S WHEN he demanded they comply. That's when they refused. And that's when he reported to Arthur Goldberg, who went into the Washington, D.C., District Court seeking a ruling which should be of vital interest to all corporations which retain even the most scrupulous labor and public relations consultants.

The labor secretary wants annual reports, "receipts of any kind, received directly or indirectly from the employer." Also a statement of all expenditures. Also a "detailed statment of the date, place, terms and conditions" of agreements or "arrangements" between the employer and the "middleman." Where it was made. What is the nature of the activities after the agreement.

Objective of these activities is sought, too. What information the "middleman" seeks on labor matters in general and the union in particular for his client.

If this court action succeeds, the labor relations consulting business, be it by a law firm or public relations outfit on Madison Avenue, will be in a goldfish bowl forever.

A Note Of Optimism

By Clyde H. Farnsworth

The economy is in a solid upturn, which will carry the nation's total output of goods and services to a yearly rate of between $525 billion and $530 billion by the end of 1961, Dr. Walter W. Heller, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, claims.

The gross national product rate for the first quarter this year was $499.5 billion.

At the same time he rules out a tax cut this year and indicated that the Kennedy administration easy money policy for a long-term interest rates will probably remain in force for a while.

Dr. Heller, one of the most influential economic advisers in the administration, said the recession hit a double-month trough in February and March, adding that April industrial production figures were "solid confirmation" of an upturn.

The Federal Reserve Board last week reported industrial production rose sharply in April to the highest level in six months.

HE SAID the upturn is in line with earlier forecasts of the council, a top level economic advisory body. Although it is too early to tell right now, he said, "There is always the chance the pace of the recovery will exceed our expectations."

Much hinges on the attitude of the "fickle consumer," Dr. Heller said. He said he had indications that consumers may be replacing durable goods more briskly than in the past.

The 45-year-old former chairman of the University of Minnesota Department of Economics said definite strength is coming from the public sector, where federal, state and local outlays in the fourth quarter will be running $8 billion to $9 billion higher than in the fourth quarter last year.

Another important factor, he said, has been the economy's "natural rhythm" by which he meant such cyclical movements as inventory reduction and accumulation.

He said there is a slowdown right now in the rate of inventory depletion. He declined to pinpoint when inventories might start building up again but indicated this might be some time during the third quarter.

At the same time he stressed that confidence inspired by the administration's affirmative attack against the recession has played a positive role in the recovery.

The Kennedy anti-recession program has included temporary federal extension of state unemployment compensation payments and loans and grants to depressed areas to attract industry and create jobs.

There may be additional public works programs, Dr. Heller indicated, although the President won't reach a final decision until he completes his current review of the military and space budgets.

THE COUNCIL chairman spoke of the possibility of a "trigger" public works program to be authorized by Congress and put into effect only if unemployment does not decline below certain levels.

Also possible is the enactment of a similar idea in the tax field. In 1957, Dr. Heller, known in academic circles as a tax authority, suggested that Congress approve a tax reduction bill before it is needed, then put it on the shelf unitl recessionary signs are detected.

Dr. Heller characterized the main economic problems facing the nation as how to boost aggregate demand so that slack is taken up in productive capacity and how to reduce unemployment.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

War over President Kennedy rocking in rocker without union label has cooled off but poll shows many rocking chair users are in a dither. Some are so nervous they are trying to rock sidewise.

Mortimer Topblower, a rocking-chair man for 30 years, admitted today he had done all his rocking without looking for a label. "There's something about a rocker that takes a man's mind off everything but rocking," he said today. "I've thought of the chair as a comfort without dreaming such a piece of furniture could cause embarrassment and a loss of prestige."

Mortimer says that he once knew a man, politically inclined, who had rocked forward only three times and backwards twice in a new rocking chair before he jumped out, white as a sheet, screaming, "I forgot to search this chair for a union label.

"He couldn't find any label whatever and went into a state of shock for fear news would leak out," Topblower continued.

"When he recovered he had the chair burned publicly and issued a statement promising to have a committee go over his porch hammock, summerhouse-seats and fishing chair to make sure they were properly labeled and not just something the doctor ordered to help him relax."

Mr. Topblower said he had heard of a rocking-chair user who was rocking away perfectly at ease and happy until he found a picket line thrown around him. "This guy was stubborn," he said. "He refused to give in and was picketed for 23 weeks, holding out all the time." Asked what shape the rocking chair was in at end, he replied, "It wasn't good but you should have seen the occupant."

President would spend $10 million a year to curb juvenile baddies. All the job needs is plenty of paddles, hickory sticks and shingles, all of which can be bought for a few dollars and without federal aid.

U.S. Supreme Court says embezzlers must report for income tax all stolen money. This upsets 1946 ruling that taxable income does not include embezzled riches. Belief is that new opinion will apply to future embezzlers as it would be unfair to prosecute crooks who relied on 1946 law. Ya mean we should never disappoint a theif! Chief Justice Warren says there has been much confusion and that it is time to correct the situation. As we get it no man about to loot an estate or corporation should be required to go ahead until he knows his rights.

Letters To The Editor

On behalf of the East Liverpool High School students, I wish to commend the Junior Chamber of Commerce for their part in our Junior-Senior Prom.

The activities provided for us were very well organized and very much appreciated by all those who attended. I'm sure the parents of all the students attending the after-prom must feel grateful to the Junior Chamber for the wonderful work they are doing for the students of East Liverpool High School.

For the benefit of those who do not know what the post-prom party consists of, I shall give you a brief description of what took place at the 1961 affair.

As we students arrived at Westgate, the members of the J. C. C. assisted us from our cars and then proceeded to park them. The car keys were left at the door with attendants and kept in small bags with number checks so everyone received the correct keys. When entering the building, everyone registerd and was announced over the loudspeaker as they entered the auditorium. No student was permitted to leave the premises after registering. If anyone did leave his parents were notified at the time of his departure. To my knowledge no one even wanted to leave.

A movie was shown, starting at 12:30 and ending at approximately 2. At 1 Del Sinchak's orchestra provided music for dancing in the gym until the entertainment began at 3. Also at 1 a buffet lunch was being served in the cafeteria by the J. C.'s and their wives. Several acts, consisting of a "Rock and Roll" group, a magician, a banjo player and a comedian provided the entertainment. After the entertainment, Del Sinchak resumed playing in the gym until the students started to leave at 6 in the morning.

Parking Plan Bill Due Study

Mayor Bert H. Goodballet said today he plans to make a thorough study before arriving at a decision on his action on legislation enacted by Council Tuesday night to spend $60,000 to convert the Ceramic Theater site into a metered parking lot.

The mayor said he has not formed any conclusions one way or the other on the ordinance, but will make an investigation of the costs involved and the amortization outlook in particular before taking official action.

The mayor has 10 days to act after the bill is presented to him following Council action. But that 10-day period for executive consideration has not started yet because the ordinance has not been delivered to the mayor. Law allows the mayor to approve the ordinance, veto it or allow it to become law without his signature.

Council split, 4-3, on final reading of the legislation. If none of the councilmen changes his position, there would not be enough votes to override a veto, should one develop.

The legislation provides the city will issue notes for the initial purchase cost and the expense of razing the structure, blacktopping the site and installing parking meters. The purchase price is set at $45,000, with $15,000 for other expenses.

After the first year, the city would issue bonds with which to retire the notes. Then the bonds would be retired over a 10-year period ending in 1972, the legislation provides.

Bettis Describes Bill On Children Bad Legislation

State Rep. Warren Bettis today termed "bad legislation" a bill that provide that no children shall be placed or accepted for placement in homes or with foster parents without the consent of the Division of Social Administration.

Bettis, who voted against the measure in the House, said it is "an additional grab for power by the Department of Welfare," and that it provides for a penalty for temporary placement of a child with a relative, by blood or marriage.

"For example, if a child is placed with a grandparent and for some reason remains there for a period of years, the grandparent, under this bill, shall be fined not less than $500 nor more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than six months or both for taking care of their own grandchild. It is my intention to testify against the bill in Senate hearings."

Bettis also explained his vote in helping to override Gov. Michael DiSalle's veto of a measure to shift road funds to local use.

He said he feels municipal, county and township road systems, making up 85 per cent of the state roads, should receive additional support from revenues.

Bettis said the policy of paying operational costs of highway bureaus from a fund, earmarked for local use, should also be ended.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Exercise Beautifies Upper Arms

It looks as though sleeveless styles are here to stay ... so roll up your sleeves ladies, we're going to work on those sagging muscles on the underside of the upper arms. The bare truth is the triceps muscles which flank the upper arms do not stay shapely all by themselves.

Ida Jean Kain

What it takes to tone the triceps is applied kinesiology and elbow grease, equal parts. One is of little use without the other. The back part of the arm is known to be a dead area, muscularly speaking, because these muscles work only in certain positions and with certain movements.

In case you doubt this 'dead area' theory, pick up a heavy object in your right hand. Now feel with the free hand the soft part of the upper arm.

YOU'LL FIND those muscles are not doing a lick of work. It's the biceps on the front that bulge into action.

The kinesiology rule is that the triceps are used when the arms are extended and more level than they are perpendicular, or when there is force behind the arm movement in this position. So, scientifically working arm muscles, here we go!

Extend the arms in front of the body with speed and force. If you have a set of dumbbells to use, so much the better, since they add weight. Clench fists and punch out vigorously, keeping the arms at about shoulder level.

Holding arms out at shoulder level, elbows straight, make short up-and-down movements with the arm, keeping the range of movement just above and just below shoulder level. The range of movement must be very limited or you miss the mark. If you doubt that this exercise is effective, feel the triceps with one hand.

To increase the force of this movement, turn this into a ball-bouncing routine. The exercise is to hold the arms at chest level in front of the body and bounce a lively tennis ball — the ball will bounce about five feet in the air and the trick is to bounce and catch the ball 100 times a minute, and to do this twice daily.

RESISTANCE exercise is doubly effective. From a lying-on-your-right-side position, with your right hand, grasp left arm between shoulder and elbow. The action is pull backward with the upper arm, at the same time resisting the pull by the firm grasp and downward pull of the lower hand and arm. Repeat three to five times, alternately pulling and relaxing. Change sides and repeat.

The only effective exercises, of course, are those you take. The secret of success is to choose two or three exercises and to take them daily.

6 Senior Girl Scouts Given Marion Award At Midland

Six girls of the Senior Girl Scout Troop 164 of the Midland Girl Scout District received the Marion Award in a ceremony Tuesday evening at the Presentation Catholic Church.

They include Karen Petchel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Petchel; Kathleen Stahl and Jeanne Stahl, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James Stahl; Sandy Crytzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Crytzer; Joanne Siranovich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Siranovich, and Patricia Benek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Benek, all of Industry, R. D. 1.

The ceremony was conducted by Fr. Robert Wallace of Pittsburgh, who represented Bishop John Wright.

The award is given to Girl Scouts by the church in recognition of advancement in their knowledge and understanding of the Catholic faith.

Training of the award began about six months ago, including a field trip to Pittsburgh where they visited St. Raphael's, St. Paul's Cathedral, Sacred Heart and St. Scholastica's Churches, the North Catholic Cemetery and the Stephen Foster Memorial and the University of Pittsburgh campus.

The Marion Award is the first of its kind given in Beaver County.

Parents of the girls and members from other Midland troops were present. Others attending included Mrs. George Mastrovich, chairman of the Midland Girl Scout District Committee; Mrs. Richard Carr of New Brighton, field director; Mrs. James Stahl, and assistant leader of the troop, and Mrs. Crytzer, former leader. Mrs. Richard Herter is the leader.

The ceremony was followed with the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, with Fr. Francis E. Paul, pastor, and Fr. Thomas Rodgers, an assistant, participating.

Mrs. Mastrovich announced that beginning this fall Brownies, Intermediate Scouts and Girl Scouts will be eligible to participate in other Catholic religion awards, which will take about two years to complete the achievements.

Mrs. Mastrovich said literature is expected from other denominations in regards to awards that Brownies and Girl Scouts can earn for various achievements.

The council will make inquiries as to the establishment of a public landing on the river.

The dam is scheduled for completion in the 1961-63 biennium.

The council also discussed the dangers to wildlife in the use of weed-killing sprays along highways. Next meeting is July 21.

The smaller tanner crab are very numerous and some have been processed in Japan. Some experts say they are "delicious," but the high labor cost in preparing them is a barrier.

Guest Of Lions Club Speaks On Electric Appliance Trend

"The home of tomorrow is available today with the use of modern electrical wiring, heating and appliances," Miss Mary Ellen Summers, home economist for the Ohio Power Co., told the Lions Club Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

All of the present appliances will be supplemented by more modern electric heating, air conditioning, remote control wiring, dimmer switches for lights, intercom, fire and burglary alarm systems and electrically - heated sidewalks and driveways to end snow shoveling.

Miss Summers reviewed the growth of the electrical industry, pointing out the residential electrical consumption in the past decade has been increased by 25 per cent, and the total number of electrically - served homes has increased from 15 to 44 million.

The annual electrical consumption for homes has climbed from 400 to over 2,700 kilowatt hours and owners are stepping up the consumption at the rate of 220 kilowatt hours per year, she continued.

Today the majority of homes have appliances that some years ago were considered luxuries, Miss Summers said, explaining that surveys show 92 per cent have refrigerators, 74 per cent have television and 62 pre cent have vacuum sweepers.

Many other devices still are considered a luxury but are increasing in use, she added.

A modern wiring system is essential in providing for better living, Miss Summers said, declaring "No combination of products is any better than the wiring system."

Specific factors in designing a wiring system include the size of the family, the size of the home and electrical codes in effect. The first step must be to determine the load and then consider the additional load for new devices and extra capacity for any future anticipated loads, she explained.

"Good lighting and good living go together," she pointed out, declaring lighting may be of general, local or decorative illumination. Lighting ranges from the livingroom, bedroom, bath, closets, kitchens, dens, recreation rooms and garages to the outdoors and one room may contain all three types.

Discussing heating installations, Miss Summers said there are 135 in East Liverpool and sales are 100 per cent more than last year although home starts have been fewer.

With the recommended insulation, electric heating saves on cleaning, maintenance and depreciation, she continued, pointing out the two main types are resistance and heat pump. However, electric warm air furnaces now also are being used.

Miss Summers was introduced by Don Baxter, program chairman. Howard E. Tice, president, presided.

Parking Plan Bill Due Study

Mayor Bert H. Goodballet said today he plans to make a thorough study before arriving at a decision on his action on legislation enacted by Council Tuesday night to spend $60,000 to convert the Ceramic Theater site into a metered parking lot.

The mayor said he has not formed any conclusions one way or the other on the ordinance, but will make an investigation of the costs involved and the amortization outlook in particular before taking official action.

The mayor has 10 days to act after the bill is presented to him following Council action. But that 10-day period for executive consideration has not started yet because the ordinance has not been delivered to the mayor. Law allows the mayor to approve the ordinance, veto it or allow it to become law without his signature.

Council split, 4-3, on final reading of the legislation. If none of the councilmen changes his position, there would not be enough votes to override a veto, should one develop.

The legislation provides the city will issue notes for the initial purchase cost and the expense of razing the structure, blacktopping the site and installing parking meters. The purchase price is set at $45,000, with $15,000 for other expenses.

After the first year, the city would issue bonds with which to retire the notes. Then the bonds would be retired over a 10-year period ending in 1972, the legislation provides.

Bettis Describes Bill On Children Bad Legislation

State Rep. Warren Bettis today termed "bad legislation" a bill that provide that no children shall be placed or accepted for placement in homes or with foster parents without the consent of the Division of Social Administration.

Bettis, who voted against the measure in the House, said it is "an additional grab for power by the Department of Welfare," and that it provides for a penalty for temporary placement of a child with a relative, by blood or marriage.

"For example, if a child is placed with a grandparent and for some reason remains there for a period of years, the grandparent, under this bill, shall be fined not less than $500 nor more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than six months or both for taking care of their own grandchild. It is my intention to testify against the bill in Senate hearings."

Bettis also explained his vote in helping to override Gov. Michael DiSalle's veto of a measure to shift road funds to local use.

He said he feels municipal, county and township road systems, making up 85 per cent of the state roads, should receive additional support from revenues.

Bettis said the policy of paying operational costs of highway bureaus from a fund, earmarked for local use, should also be ended.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Exercise Beautifies Upper Arms

It looks as though sleeveless styles are here to stay ... so roll up your sleeves ladies, we're going to work on those sagging muscles on the underside of the upper arms. The bare truth is the triceps muscles which flank the upper arms do not stay shapely all by themselves.

Ida Jean Kain

What it takes to tone the triceps is applied kinesiology and elbow grease, equal parts. One is of little use without the other. The back part of the arm is known to be a dead area, muscularly speaking, because these muscles work only in certain positions and with certain movements.

In case you doubt this 'dead area' theory, pick up a heavy object in your right hand. Now feel with the free hand the soft part of the upper arm.

YOU'LL FIND those muscles are not doing a lick of work. It's the biceps on the front that bulge into action.

The kinesiology rule is that the triceps are used when the arms are extended and more level than they are perpendicular, or when there is force behind the arm movement in this position. So, scientifically working arm muscles, here we go!

Extend the arms in front of the body with speed and force. If you have a set of dumbbells to use, so much the better, since they add weight. Clench fists and punch out vigorously, keeping the arms at about shoulder level.

Holding arms out at shoulder level, elbows straight, make short up-and-down movements with the arm, keeping the range of movement just above and just below shoulder level. The range of movement must be very limited or you miss the mark. If you doubt that this exercise is effective, feel the triceps with one hand.

To increase the force of this movement, turn this into a ball-bouncing routine. The exercise is to hold the arms at chest level in front of the body and bounce a lively tennis ball — the ball will bounce about five feet in the air and the trick is to bounce and catch the ball 100 times a minute, and to do this twice daily.

RESISTANCE exercise is doubly effective. From a lying-on-your-right-side position, with your right hand, grasp left arm between shoulder and elbow. The action is pull backward with the upper arm, at the same time resisting the pull by the firm grasp and downward pull of the lower hand and arm. Repeat three to five times, alternately pulling and relaxing. Change sides and repeat.

The only effective exercises, of course, are those you take. The secret of success is to choose two or three exercises and to take them daily.

Send a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope for "Keep Upper Arms Young And Beautiful." Address your request to Ida Jean Kain, in care of this newspaper. Postcard requests cannot be answered.

How To Make Good Things Happen

We had finished a good dinner and were chatting in the apartment of my friend Judson Sayre 25 stories above Chicago's fabulous Lake Shore Drive. The huge picture windows opened upon a magnificient panorama of Lake Michigan, the drive and the glittering metropolis. Jud was discussing some problems on the agenda for the next day.

DR. PEALE

"Well, I hope you will have a good day," I said. "Don't worry, I will," he confidently asserted. "You will, eh? How do you know. How come you're so certain?"

His answer struck my mind with a powerful impact. He said, "With God's help I make good things happen every day."

WHEN I first met Jud Sayre we were undergraduates at Ohio Wesleyan University. He came from what we used to call a "one-horse Ohio town" — and so did I. His family always had to scrimp for money and so did mine. It was the frequent experience in our young lives to be down to the bottom dollar.

But, nevertheless, I never had seen a boy with any more on the ball. There was something about Jud that impressed and attracted me even then, and we have been devoted friends ever since.

"You sure have come a long way," I said. "Back at Ohio Wesleyan did you ever think you would live in a swanky layout like this?"

"Sure I did. I made up my mind I was going to. I wanted to do something in the world — and you can if you think you can!"

"How did you ever manage to accomplish so much?" I asked. "How did you get so far ahead of me?"

"Come with me and I will show you." And taking me into his bathroom, he pointed to a shaving mirror. "Each morning while shaving I look at my face in that mirror and say out loud: 'With God's help I am going to make great things happen today.' "

HIS CONFIDENCE fascinated me — the more so since his formula for accomplishment jibes excitingly with a plan I have used increasingly in my own experience.

I am convinced that an entire day is conditioned to large extent by how you begin it. Elbert Hubbard said that if you remain pleasant until 10 a. m. you are likely to get through the remainder of the day pleasantly.

Naturally, some days are bound to be harder than others. Inevitably some will be very difficult and some may even bring pain or sadness. But to the person with a creative viewpoint even those tough days can be good ones.

We learn much and grow stronger through suffering and difficulty. By always taking a positive attitude toward each day, you can make good days out of bad days.

Personally I use a self-conditioning technique each morning before getting out of bed, which you may want to try. As soon as I wake up I repeat a line from Psalm 139: "When I awake, I am still with Thee." These words will remind you that God who has watched over you all night long will still be with you all day too.

Then I repeat a verse from the 118th Psalm. "This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it." This affirmation really helps in many ways.

FOR EXAMPLE, maybe the sky is overcast, the weather blustery with high winds and heavy rain. We are all affected by the moods of nature. But you can rise above them, and above discouragement, or any other negative mood of human nature, by realizing that once more you have this wonderful opportunity called a day. Don't let it go bad on you. You can do good things with it. You can make much of it.

And then just before getting up and getting at it, I offer a little prayer: "Lord, help me do my best today; give me a good day. Help me to make it a good day for others."

It is a wonderful way of starting the day. Try it tomorrow morning and you can "with God's help, make good things happen every day."

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Reading Family Doesn't Watch TV

While at lunch the other day I got to talking (or rather listening) to a young father who is editor and publisher of a county paper. "At our home," he said, "we are a reading family." The children are 13, 11, 11, 7, 4. The parents read, the children read, the father and mother read to the younger ones. "How do you manage TV?" I asked. "We have none," Dad replied. "None of us would have time for it; we all want so much to read. "Our eldest daughter," he continued, "must do so much reading for her school homework that she's worried because she can't read more books for mere pleasure.

Dr. Garry Meyers

"THE SECOND GIRL doesn't have so much homework and can read many books for fun. She will carry a favorite book to school, which she says she can pull out of her desk and read after she has finished regular assignments.

"The other day she asked me to increase her allowance, said she would use it to buy some books she would like to have. She seems to find her greatest enjoyment from reading."

I also learned that the three older children all excel at school.

"The seven - year - old reads even better than the older sisters did at his age. He can easily attack any new word and sound it out for himself," the father remarked. "Before he began school I spent a lot of time with him on basic sounds from words with familiar meaning and he learned his letters before school."

I EXPRESSED my enthusiasm over all this wise young father told me. We agreed it was to be regretted that so many teachers in the first or second grade still advise parents not to teach the child at home his letters on their simplest sounds. Then we agreed that such foolish advice from teachers is slowly passing.

Seeing eye to eye, we furthermore agreed that the child who is a skillful, avid reader in the grades is getting ready to do well on college entrance tests, by and by, since they are heavily loaded with demands for knowing meanings of words. We were also in accord that we ourselves are greatly helped in our own writing by our constant reading.

Wouldn't you like to "drop in" on this family and find the parents and the children all reading from books or listening to stories?

My bulletins, "Why Read to Baby and Young Child" and "Home Helps for Poor Readers I & II," may be had by sending a self - addressed stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

Former City Man Prepares For Jehovah Witness Rally

The former president of an interstate trucking company, Earl Singer, is now on the receiving end of many truckloads of food that will soon be rolling into Yankee Stadium for another assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses June 20-25.

Singer, former resident of East Liverpool, is the former president of YELP Service, Inc. which operates throughout Ohio, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia.

He is serving as refreshments manager for the Witnesses, who are using Yankee Stadium for the fifth time since 1950. At each of the previous assemblies Singer held the same post.

So he is not overly concerned with the monumental task of ordering supplies for over 200,000 sandwiches, 50,000 cups of coffee in addition to soft drinks and other eatables to be consumed during the six-day event expected to attract more than 70,000 by Sunday, June 25.

With Fred Ritchey, circuit minister for the Witnesses in Eastern Ohio, he will organize 3,500 unpaid volunteer workers to assist.

For more than half of his 55 years, he has been an ordained minister of Jehovah's Witnesses. A graduate of the Watch Tower Bible School of Gilead at South Lansing, N. Y., Singer has served for many years as a circuit minister in eastern states.

He has directed assemblies in Pittsburgh, Houston, Philadelphia, Washington and Boston, as well as handling his "specialty," the refreshments department, each time in New York.

The June convention is called "United Worshipers District Assembly." It will be the first of a series of similar assemblies in the United States, Canada, and Europe this summer.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Reading Family Doesn't Watch TV

While at lunch the other day I got to talking (or rather listening) to a young father who is editor and publisher of a county paper. "At our home," he said, "we are a reading family." The children are 13, 11, 11, 7, 4. The parents read, the children read, the father and mother read to the younger ones. "How do you manage TV?" I asked. "We have none," Dad replied. "None of us would have time for it; we all want so much to read. "Our eldest daughter," he continued, "must do so much reading for her school homework that she's worried because she can't read more books for mere pleasure.

"THE SECOND GIRL doesn't have so much homework and can read many books for fun. She will carry a favorite book to school, which she says she can pull out of her desk and read after she has finished regular assignments.

"The other day she asked me to increase her allowance, said she would use it to buy some books she would like to have. She seems to find her greatest enjoyment from reading."

I also learned that the three older children all excel at school. "The seven - year - old reads even better than the older sisters did at his age. He can easily attack any new word and sound it out for himself," the father remarked. "Before he began school I spent a lot of time with him on basic sounds from words with familiar meaning and he learned his letters before school."

I EXPRESSED my enthusiasm over all this wise young father told me. We agreed it was to be regretted that so many teachers in the first or second grade still advise parents not to teach the child at home his letters on their simplest sounds. Then we agreed that such foolish advice from teachers is slowly passing.

Seeing eye to eye, we furthermore agreed that the child who is a skillful, avid reader in the grades is getting ready to do well on college entrance tests, by and by, since they are heavily loaded with demands for knowing meanings of words. We were also in accord that we ourselves are greatly helped in our own writing by our constant reading.

Wouldn't you like to "drop in" on this family and find the parents and the children all reading from books or listening to stories?

My bulletins, "Why Read to Baby and Young Child" and "Home Helps for Poor Readers I & II," may be had by sending a self - addressed stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

Former City Man Prepares For Jehovah Witness Rally

The former president of an interstate trucking company, Earl Singer, is now on the receiving end of many truckloads of food that will soon be rolling into Yankee Stadium for another assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses June 20-25.

Singer, former resident of East Liverpool, is the former president of YELP Service, Inc. which operates throughout Ohio, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia.

He is serving as refreshments manager for the Witnesses, who are using Yankee Stadium for the fifth time since 1950. At each of the previous assemblies Singer held the same post.

So he is not overly concerned with the monumental task of ordering supplies for over 200,000 sandwiches, 50,000 cups of coffee in addition to soft drinks and other eatables to be consumed during the six-day event expected to attract more than 70,000 by Sunday, June 25.

With Fred Ritchey, circuit minister for the Witnesses in Eastern Ohio, he will organize 3,500 unpaid volunteer workers to assist.

For more than half of his 55 years, he has been an ordained minister of Jehovah's Witnesses. A graduate of the Watch Tower Bible School of Gilead at South Lansing, N. Y., Singer has served for many years as a circuit minister in eastern states.

He has directed assemblies in Pittsburgh, Houston, Philadelphia, Washington and Boston, as well as handling his "specialty," the refreshments department, each time in New York.

The June convention is called "United Worshipers District Assembly." It will be the first of a series of similar assemblies in the United States, Canada, and Europe this summer.

BEHIND THE SIGN

What is the story behind this "For Sale" sign? Is it just a house that's for sale, or is this a tale of happiness or sorrow—of success or defeat?

Let's hope this story has a happy ending! But this isn't a world of make-believe we live in. God made us human beings, not puppets. He has given us minds and bodies, nerves and muscles—and weakness as well as strength.

Maybe the story behind this house is a happy one. Maybe it's a sad one. Regardless, the people who lived here, like all of us, will be able to accept both good fortune and bad if there is yet another house in their lives.

The House of the Lord, the Church, has been built to endure through the ages. Here we will always have a home—during our lives on earth as well as throughout eternity.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

CFA Okays Loan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Community Facilities Administration announced today approval of a $600,000 loan to Ohio Northern University in Ada to aid in construction of housing for 134 men and 81 women.

What is the story behind this "For Sale" sign? Is it just a house that's for sale, or is this a tale of happiness or sorrow—of success or defeat?

Let's hope this story has a happy ending! But this isn't a world of make-believe we live in. God made us human beings, not puppets. He has given us minds and bodies, nerves and muscles—and weakness as well as strength.

Maybe the story behind this house is a happy one. Maybe it's a sad one. Regardless, the people who lived here, like all of us, will be able to accept both good fortune and bad if there is yet another house in their lives.

The House of the Lord, the Church, has been built to endure through the ages. Here we will always have a home—during our lives on earth as well as throughout eternity.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Dodgers Cut Giants' Lead

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers defeated San Francisco 8-7 Friday night, shaving the Giants' National League lead to two games while gaining a virtual second place tie with Cincinnati. The Reds defeated Milwaukee 3-2 and Philadelphia dropped Pittsburgh 4-1. Chicago's Cubs defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 1-0 behind the seven-hit pitching of Glen Hobbie.

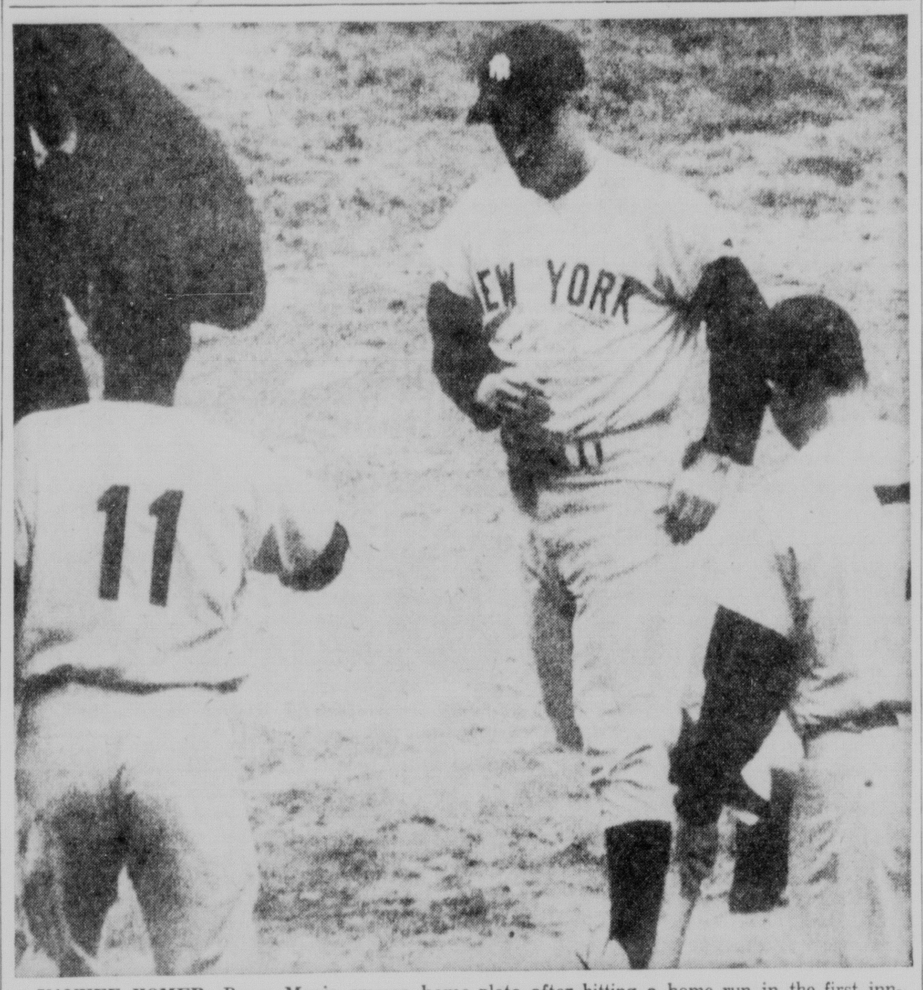
An infield hit by Maury Wills and a double by Wally Moon gave the Dodgers the deciding run in the ninth inning against losing reliever Billy O'Dell (1-2). Johnny Roseboro had capped a four-run eighth for the Dodgers, giving them the lead with a three-run homer that made it 7-6.

Starter Juan Marichal blanked the Dodgers on three hits for five innings, then gave up a three-run homer by rookie Willie Davis in the sixth. The Giants bounced back in the seventh when Harvey Kuenn's three-run double broke a 3-3 tie. Kuenn drove in the Giants' last four runs, hitting a solo homer in the ninth off winning reliever Ron Perranoski (2-0).

The Reds, once easy pickin's for the Braves and right-hander Lew Burdette, beat Milwaukee for the fourth time in four tries this season behind the five-hit pitching of Jim O'Toole (4-3).

Jim Woods' first homer of the year broke a 1-1 tie and triggered a two-run fifth inning for the last place Phils, who have won only three of their last 15 games. Pirate right-hander Bob Friend (4-4) lost his fourth in a row. Art Mahaffey (4-3) was the winning pitcher.

The Cubs scored in the first inning on a single and Ernie Banks' two-out pop up that dropped for a double when Card shortstop Daryl Spencer lost it in the sun. Chicago managed just two more hits off southpaw Ray Sadecki (2-3). It was the 10th major league shutout for Hobbie (2-4).



YANKEE HOMER. Roger Maris crosses home plate after hitting a home run in the first inning of the Yankees' game with the Indians at Cleveland Friday night. The home run off Cleveland pitcher Jim Perry gave the Yanks two runs. Hector Lopez was on base. The Indians won, 9-7. (UPI Telephoto)

Perfect Weather Due

Nine Colts Wait Preakness Today

By GEORGE BOWEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Nine colts race for gold and glory in the Preakness today under clear skies and perfect track conditions.

"I hope it's a five-horse blanket finish and that Carry Back's nose is in front," said that horse's trainer, Jack Price.

Carry Back's success in five out of eight major races this season puts him in the lead for the 3-year-old championship of 1961.

The son of Saggy originally cost $700. He has put $512,868 into the pockets of owner Katherine Price, and he will be shooting for another $126,200 as first prize in the Preakness.

The bulk of his earnings this year have come at the expense of Crozier, who will be taking another crack at him. Carry Back beat Crozier in two $100,000 races in Florida and then in the $125,000 Kentucky Derby May 6.

When the betting is over, the fans are expected to make Carry Back close to an even money favorite with Crozier second choice. After that, there will be a lot of nail biting over whether to put down a deuce on Globemaster, Sherluck or Dr. Miller.

Starting time is 5:45 p. m., Eastern Daylight Tibe. There will be television and radio broadcast (CBS).

Boardman Wins District Meet As 2 Records Fall

SALEM — Chiefly on the strength of three firsts by talented "Harold "Bud" Frazier, the Boardman Spartans rolled up 34-1-3 points to edge Alliance by a mere 5-12 of a point and win the Class AA District track and field meet before a crowd of over 3,-500 fans Friday at Salem's Reilly Stadium.

Salem and Niles tied for third place with 18 1-12 points each. Four Quakers qualified for the state meet in Columbus May 26-27. They are Rick Sulea who won the pole vault, Ron Janovec who placed fourth in the shot put, Don Davidson who tied for first in the high jump, and Herb Call who took a third in the high hurdles.

The other two Columbiana County schools in the meet, East Palestine and Beaver Local, failed to place a man in any of the top four places, thus missing out on a trip to the state meet.

East Palestine placed 20th with a total of 2 1-12 points. Ronnie Watt was fifth in the mile and Robinson was in a four-way tie for fourth in the pole vault.

Beaver Local was one of 11 schools in the 32-team field which failed to score.

Two district records were shattered yesterday. Youngstown Ursuline' Joe Housteau, the top scholastic shotput man in the state this year, cut loose with a heave of 57 ft.-6¾ in. to erase the old mark of 55 ft.-9 in. set in 1953 by Tony Conkle of East Palestine.

Big Jim Davidson of Alliance broke the district record in the discus with his heave of 163 ft.-11 in. while nipping Carey Brown of Youngstown East who was just two feet behind at 161 ft.-11 in.

Both Davidson and Brown shattered the old district record with plenty to spare. The old standard was 158 ft.-5 in. set in 1958 by George Johnson of Warren Harding.

Frazier was named the most valuable of the meet. The Spartan flash copped the high hurdles in 15.3, the low hurdles in 20 flat, and the 220 in 22.4.

The Warren Panthers, who walked away with the 1960 meet by scoring 61 points, dropped all the way to 12th this year with just seven points.

Angels Sweep White Sox

Tribe's Rally Nips Yanks

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cleveland Indians rallied for five runs in the eighth inning and defeated the New York Yankees 9-7 Friday night. It was the third straight loss for the Yankees and left them five games behind the American League leading Detroit Tigers, who were idled by cold weather at Boston.

Cleveland and Minnesota, tied for third, edged within .004 percentage points of New York, with the Twins belting Kansas City 11-1. Baltimore defeated Washington 4-2 and the last place Los Angeles Angels, after losing seven in a row, swept a twi-night doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox 4-3 and 5-3.

The Yankees backed starter Bob Turley and Luis Arroyo, the first of the relievers, with home runs by Roger Maris, Yogi Berra and Hector Lopez at Cleveland and had a 7-4 lead going into the eighth. Then the Injuns came up with four consecutive hits, the fourth a tying two-run single by Chuck Essegian off losing reliever Tex Clevenger (3-2). The deciding run was forced home when Jim Coates hit Woody Held with a pitch with the bases loaded.

Vic Power, who had three of Cleveland's 15 hits, closed the scoring by stealing home — his first steal of the season — as the Indians beat the Yanks for the first time in 13 decisions going back to last July 10. Barry Latman (3-0) won it in relief.

The Twins blasted Kansas City's winning streak at five games as Dan Dobbek belted a pair of home runs, the first a grand slam that wrapped it up in a six-run third inning against Ed Rakow (0-1). Don Mincher also homered for the Twins while southpaw Jack Kralick won his fourth, against one defeat, with a seven-hit job.

Baltimore, after losing five in a row, replaced Kansas City in fifth place while ending the Senators' winning streak at five. The Birds did it with a three-run eighth inning—and they got 'em all without a hit, scoring the three on six walks by loser Tom Sturdivant (2-3) and relievers Dave Sisler and Marty Kutyna. Hoyt Wilhelm (5-1) won it with two hitless innings of relief.

The Angels won the opener on home runs by Steve Bilko and Gene Leek, with Leek's shot breaking a 3-3 tie in the sixth against reliever Russ Kemmerer (0-2). Right-hander Jerry Casale, who had lost 12 in a row, three this year, was the winner. Ryne Duren, once the Yankees' bullpen pride, saved both games for the Angels, who took the nightcap on Earl Averill's two-run homer in the third off Bob Shaw (3-2). Duren pitched 1 2-3 innings of hitless relief in the opener, then nailed the second game for Ken McBride (3-2) with two innings of no-hit, shutout relief.

Snead Leads Field By Six

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) —The way the principal character is frisking about the golf course they might well change the name of this tournament from the Sam Snead Festival to the Sam Snead Benefit.

Snead stood virtually unchallenged today at the start of the third round of the $10,000 event. He was six strokes ahead of runnerup Gary Player at the halfway mark of the 72-hole event with a brilliant 129. And there seemed to be little chance he would be caught. He has won this tournament five times in the 14-year history of the golf show.

The West Virginia slammer has been pro here since 1936. While Snead was the big show, his 64 Friday was second best among the scores of the 69 contestants (two withdrew). Stan Leonard, the Canadian, wielded a red-hot putter to turn in a 63 for a 36-hole total of 136 and third place.

Others among the top 10 were U.S. Open champion Arnold Palmer, who added a 67 to his opening 70 for a 137.

Yesterday's Stars

Pitching — Ryne Duren, Angels, saved both games in 4-3 and 5-3 twi-night double-header sweep over White Sox with 1 2-3 innings of no-hit relief in opener and two innings of no-hit relief in the nightcap.

Hitting — Dan Dobbek, Twins, drove in five runs with two homers, the first a wrap-up grand slam, in 11-1 romp over A's.

Fernandez, Wright Wait Bout On TV

NEW YORK (AP) —Jorge Fernandez of Argentina still thinks he whipped Emile Griffith twice last year but didn't get the decision. Now that Griffith owns the world welterweight boxing title, Jorge is anxious to prove his point.

While Griffith is getting ready to defend June 3 in Los Angeles against Gaspar Ortega, Fernandez will keep busy tonight by boxing Ted Wright of Detroit at St. Nicholas Arena.

Fernandez is rated No. 4 among the challengers by Ring and Wright No. 8. However, Fernandez' only fight this year was an April 8 decision over Denny Moyer.

Wright has fought four times this year. In his last outing, April 21 in Rome, he stopped Helmut Mistol.

Fernandez has a 72-5-1 record with 49 knockouts. Wright has a 36-5-4 record, plus one no contest bout. The Argentine is favored in the 10-round match, scheduled for 10 p.m. (EDT) to be carried by network (ABC) television.

Akron Loses Francis To Frisco In NBA

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—The Akron team of the National Basketball League lost another player Thursday when Jim Francis quit and said he planned to join the San Francisco entry in the new American Basketball League. The team earlier lost Jimmy Darrow, ace guard from Bowling Green, to St. Louis of the National Basketball Association.

Francis, former Dartmouth star, was the high scorer in the NBL last season with 745 points.

John Broadbent stroked a hot bat for the Beavers, going 3-for-4 with a double and two singles.

Dodgers Cut Giants' Lead

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers defeated San Francisco 8-7 Friday night, shaving the Giants' National League lead to two games while gaining a virtual second place tie with Cincinnati. The Reds defeated Milwaukee 3-2 and Philadelphia dropped Pittsburgh 4-1. Chicago's Cubs defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 1-0 behind the seven-hit pitching of Glen Hobbie.

An infield hit by Maury Wills and a double by Wally Moon gave the Dodgers the deciding run in the ninth inning against losing reliever Billy O'Dell (1-2). Johnny Roseboro had capped a four-run eighth for the Dodgers, giving them the lead with a three-run homer that made it 7-6.

Starter Juan Marichal blanked the Dodgers on three hits for five innings, then gave up a three-run homer by rookie Willie Davis in the sixth. The Giants bounced back in the seventh when Harvey Kuenn's three-run double broke a 3-3 tie. Kuenn drove in the Giants' last four runs, hitting a solo homer in the ninth off winning reliever Ron Perranoski (2-0).

The Reds, once easy pickin's for the Braves and right-hander Lew Burdette, beat Milwaukee for the fourth time in four tries this season behind the five-hit pitching of Jim O'Toole (4-3).

Jim Woods' first homer of the year broke a 1-1 tie and triggered a two-run fifth inning for the last place Phils, who have won only three of their last 15 games. Pirate right-hander Bob Friend (4-4) lost his fourth in a row. Art Mahaffey (4-3) was the winning pitcher.

The Cubs scored in the first inning on a single and Ernie Banks' two-out pop up that dropped for a double when Card shortstop Daryl Spencer lost it in the sun. Chicago managed just two more hits off southpaw Ray Sadecki (2-3). It was the 10th major league shutout for Hobbie (2-4).

Nine Colts Wait Preakness Today

By GEORGE BOWEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Nine colts race for gold and glory in the Preakness today under clear skies and perfect track conditions.

"I hope it's a five-horse blanket finish and that Carry Back's nose is in front," said that horse's trainer, Jack Price.

Carry Back's success in five out of eight major races this season puts him in the lead for the 3-year-old championship of 1961.

The son of Saggy originally cost $700. He has put $512,868 into the pockets of owner Katherine Price, and he will be shooting for another $126,200 as first prize in the Preakness.

The bulk of his earnings this year have come at the expense of Crozier, who will be taking another crack at him. Carry Back beat Crozier in two $100,000 races in Florida and then in the $125,000 Kentucky Derby May 6.

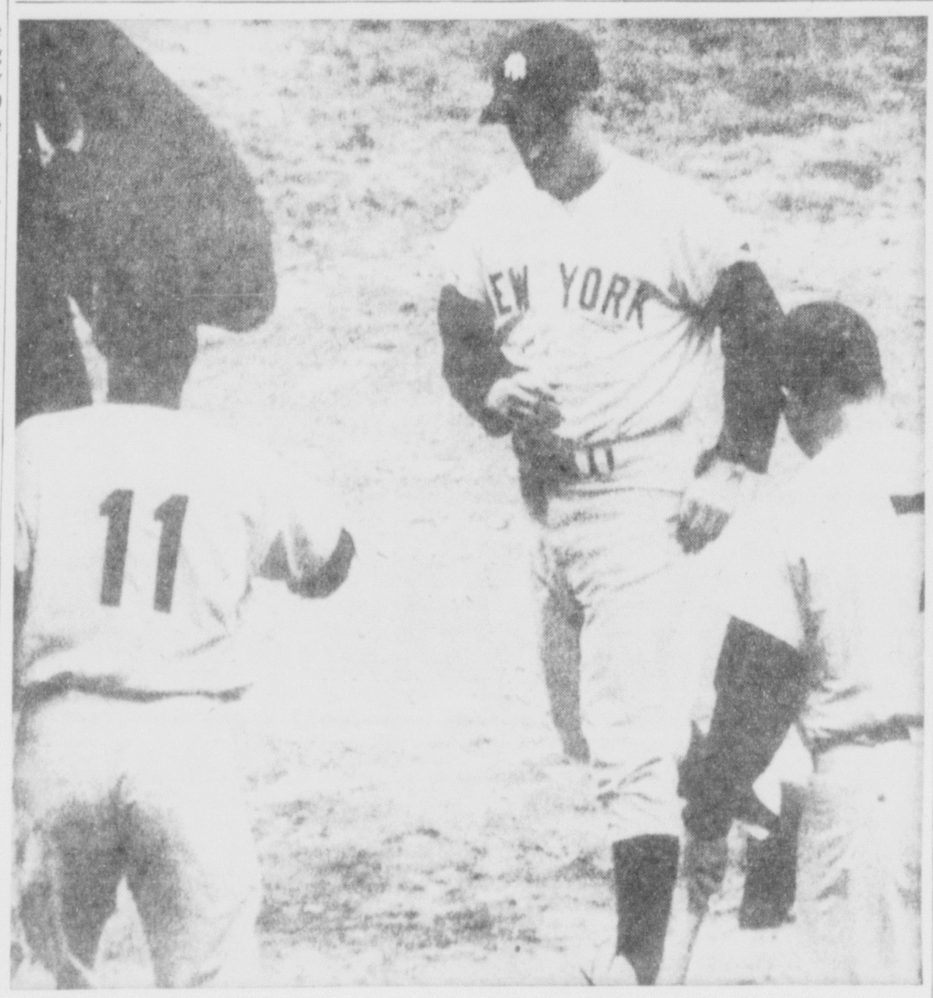
When the betting is over, the fans are expected to make Carry Back close to an even money favorite with Crozier second choice. After that, there will be a lot of nail biting over whether to put down a deuce on Globemaster, Sherluck or Dr. Miller.

Starting time is 5:45 p. m., Eastern Daylight Tibe. There will be television and radio broadcast (CBS).



YANKEE HOMER. Roger Maris crosses home plate after hitting a home run in the first inning of the Yankees' game with the Indians at Cleveland Friday night. The home run off Cleveland pitcher Jim Perry gave the Yanks two runs. Hector Lopez was on base. The Indians won, 9-7. (UPI Telephoto)

Boardman Wins District Meet As 2 Records Fall

SALEM — Chiefly on the strength of three firsts by talented "Harold "Bud" Frazier, the Boardman Spartans rolled up 34-1-3 points to edge Alliance by a mere 5-12 of a point and win the Class AA District track and field meet before a crowd of over 3,500 fans Friday at Salem's Reilly Stadium.

Salem and Niles tied for third place with 18 1-12 points each. Four Quakers qualified for the state meet in Columbus May 26-27. They are Rick Sulea who won the pole vault, Ron Janovec who placed fourth in the shot put, Don Davidson who tied for first in the high jump, and Herb Call who took a third in the high hurdles.

The other two Columbiana County schools in the meet, East Palestine and Beaver Local, failed to place a man in any of the top four places, thus missing out on a trip to the state meet.

East Palestine placed 20th with a total of 2 1-12 points. Ronnie Watt was fifth in the mile and Robinson was in a four-way tie for fourth in the pole vault.

Beaver Local was one of 11 schools in the 32-team field which failed to score.

Two district records were shattered yesterday. Youngstown Ursuline' Joe Housteau, the top scholastic shotput man in the state this year, cut loose with a heave of 57 ft.-6¾ in. to erase the old mark of 55 ft.-9 in. set in 1953 by Tony Conkle of East Palestine.

Big Jim Davidson of Alliance broke the district record in the discus with his heave of 163 ft.-11 in. while nipping Carey Brown of Youngstown East who was just two feet behind at 161 ft.-11 in.

Both Davidson and Brown shattered the old district record with plenty to spare. The old standard was 158 ft.-5 in. set in 1958 by George Johnson of Warren Harding.

Frazier was named the most valuable of the meet. The Spartan flash copped the high hurdles in 15.3, the low hurdles in 20 flat, and the 220 in 22.4.

The Warren Panthers, who walked away with the 1960 meet by scoring 61 points, dropped all the way to 12th this year with just seven points.

Angels Sweep White Sox

Tribe's Rally Nips Yanks

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cleveland Indians rallied for five runs in the eighth inning and defeated the New York Yankees 9-7 Friday night. It was the third straight loss for the Yankees and left them five games behind the American League leading Detroit Tigers, who were idled by cold weather at Boston.

Cleveland and Minnesota, tied for third, edged within .004 percentage points of New York, with the Twins belting Kansas City 11-1. Baltimore defeated Washington 4-2 and the last place Los Angeles Angels, after losing seven in a row, swept a twi-night doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox 4-3 and 5-3.

The Yankees backed starter Bob Turley and Luis Arroyo, the first of the relievers, with home runs by Roger Maris, Yogi Berra and Hector Lopez at Cleveland and had a 7-4 lead going into the eighth. Then the Injuns came up with four consecutive hits, the fourth a tying two-run single by Chuck Essegian off losing reliever Tex Clevenger (3-2). The deciding run was forced home when Jim Coates hit Woody Held with a pitch with the bases loaded.

Vic Power, who had three of Cleveland's 15 hits, closed the scoring by stealing home — his first steal of the season — as the Indians beat the Yanks for the first time in 13 decisions going back to last July 10. Barry Latman (3-0) won it in relief.

The Twins blasted Kansas City's winning streak at five games as Dan Dobbek belted a pair of home runs, the first a grand slam that wrapped it up in a six-run third inning against Ed Rakow (0-1). Don Mincher also homered for the Twins while southpaw Jack Kralick won his fourth, against one defeat, with a seven-hit job.

Baltimore, after losing five in a row, replaced Kansas City in fifth place while ending the Senators' winning streak at five. The Birds did it with a three-run eighth inning—and they got 'em all without a hit, scoring the three on six walks by loser Tom Sturdivant (2-3) and relievers Dave Sisler and Marty Kutyna. Hoyt Wilhelm (5-1) won it with two hitless innings of relief.

The Angels won the opener on home runs by Steve Bilko and Gene Leek, with Leek's shot breaking a 3-3 tie in the sixth against reliever Russ Kemmerer (0-2). Right-hander Jerry Casale, who had lost 12 in a row, three this year, was the winner. Ryne Duren, once the Yankees' bullpen pride, saved both games for the Angels, who took the nightcap on Earl Averill's two-run homer in the third off Bob Shaw (3-2). Duren pitched 1 2-3 innings of hitless relief in the opener, then nailed the second game for Ken McBride (3-2) with two innings of no-hit, shutout relief.

Snead Leads Field By Six

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) —The way the principal character is frisking about the golf course they might well change the name of this tournament from the Sam Snead Festival to the Sam Snead Benefit.

Snead stood virtually unchallenged today at the start of the third round of the $10,000 event. He was six strokes ahead of runnerup Gary Player at the halfway mark of the 72-hole event with a brilliant 129. And there seemed to be little chance he would be caught. He has won this tournament five times in the 14-year history of the golf show.

The West Virginia slammer has been pro here since 1936. While Snead was the big show, his 64 Friday was second best among the scores of the 69 contestants (two withdrew). Stan Leonard, the Canadian, wielded a red-hot putter to turn in a 63 for a 36-hole total of 136 and third place.

Others among the top 10 were U.S. Open champion Arnold Palmer, who added a 67 to his opening 70 for a 137.

Yesterday's Stars

Pitching — Ryne Duren, Angels, saved both games in 4-3 and 5-3 twi-night double-header sweep over White Sox with 1 2-3 innings of no-hit relief in opener and two innings of no-hit relief in the nightcap.

Hitting — Dan Dobbek, Twins, drove in five runs with two homers, the first a wrap-up grand slam, in 11-1 romp over A's.

Fernandez, Wright Wait Bout On TV

NEW YORK (AP) —Jorge Fernandez of Argentina still thinks he whipped Emile Griffith twice last year but didn't get the decision. Now that Griffith owns the world welterweight boxing title, Jorge is anxious to prove his point.

While Griffith is getting ready to defend June 3 in Los Angeles against Gaspar Ortega, Fernandez will keep busy tonight by boxing Ted Wright of Detroit at St. Nicholas Arena.

Fernandez is rated No. 4 among the challengers by Ring and Wright No. 8. However, Fernandez' only fight this year was an April 8 decision over Denny Moyer.

Wright has fought four times this year. In his last outing, April 21 in Rome, he stopped Helmut Mistol.

Fernandez has a 72-5-1 record with 49 knockouts. Wright has a 36-5-4 record, plus one no contest bout. The Argentine is favored in the 10-round match, scheduled for 10 p.m. (EDT) to be carried by network (ABC) television.

Francis, former Dartmouth star, was the high scorer in the NBL last season with 745 points.

3 Pros Say They Intend To Play In Puerto Rico

By FRANK ECK
Associated Press Sports Writer

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Stan Leonard have full intentions of playing in the International Cup matches, the Associated Press learned today.

The matches are set for San Juan, Puerto Rico, June 1-4, the same day as the Memphis Open which last June signed a Professional Golfers Association contract.

Memphis officials are insisting that Palmer, as U.S. Open champion; Player, because he has been a PGA tour winner this year, and Leonard, victor in the Western Open in Detroit last July, fulfill their PGA contracts to play in Memphis.

Palmer will represent the United States with Sam Snead as his partner. They won the team title last year in Dublin. Snead needed only PGA permission to play in Puerto Rico and received it.

"I'm terribly disappointed and hurt," said South Africa's Gary Player when asked about Bob Rosburg's statement in which the PGA tournament committee chairman blasted Player.

About Player, Rosburg had said, "here is a player who goes to this country from South Africa and thinks it is real nice to win $48,000 in four months in PGA tournaments, but then suddenly doesn't think he should play by PGA rules."

The San Juan matches are sponsored by the International Golf Association. It has no PGA affiliation.

Player, Palmer and Leonard face a six-month suspension and a $500 fine if they bypass Memphis for San Juan.

Man Reports Attack On Car

A Pughtown motorist reported to police late Friday night that a window of his car and the radio antenna were broken by a Pennsylvania motorist in an unexplained incident on E. 3rd St.

After receiving a license number of the Pennsylvania auto from James L. Allison Jr. of Pughtown, police halted a Midland man early this morning on Pennsylvania Ave., but no arrest was made. Two East Liverpool men were with the Midland motorist when the alleged vandalism occurred, police said.

No reason for the vandalism was reported.

Allison told police he was headed east on E. 3rd St. about 11:30 p. m. when a car bearing a Pennsylvania license pulled from Union St. in front of him. When he stopped to avoid a collision, the Pennsylvania auto backed into Union St. and Allison proceeded east to the Broadway intersection where he halted for a traffic signal, he told officers.

The Pennsylvanian pulled behind him and then alongside when Allison stopped. A man walked up to his side of the car, began using abusive language and broke the door window. He walked back to the right rear and broke off the antenna and then got in the car and drove away, Allison told police.

Man Beaten In Bar Fight

Wayne Coleman, 38, of 734 Oak St. was admitted to the hospital about two hours after the fight in Roy's Bar, 755 Dresden Ave., police reported.

Coleman suffered lacerations of the lips and jaw and was to be X-rayed this morning, hospital authorities told Police Capt. R. H. Pyle, who investigated.

Pyle said he learned of the incident when the hospital notified police about the victim being beaten in a fight. However, the officer said he was unable to question Coleman because of his condition.

Checking at the tavern, Capt. Pyle said he learned that Coleman entered the tavern about 7:30 p. m. "very intoxicated" and in a short time started a fight with another patron sitting at the bar.

The bartender told the officer the customer was a stranger in the bar but apparently knew Coleman since they greeted each other. However, he told Capt. Pyle he did not know the cause of the fight.

The unidentified man hit Coleman "a couple of times," the officer was told, and Coleman left the bar and went home. He remained at his home for about two hours before being taken to the hospital by his brother, Abe Coleman, the officer reported.

2 IN MEMORIAM

IN loving memory of our dear Mother, RUTH E. BROWN, who passed away 3 years ago today, May 20th, 1958.
I cannot say, and I will not say
That she is dead — she is just away!
She has wondered into an unknown land, and left us dreaming how very fair it needs must be, since she lingers there. And You—O—You, who the wildest yearn for the old time sleep and glad return, think of her farring on, as dear in the love of there as the love of here; Think of her still as the same, I say: She is not dead — She is just away!
Sadly missed by her Son and daughter, JERRY DIXON AND ALMA MAY.

3 Pros Say They Intend To Play In Puerto Rico

By FRANK ECK
Associated Press Sports Writer

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Stan Leonard have full intentions of playing in the International Cup matches, the Associated Press learned today.

The matches are set for San Juan, Puerto Rico, June 1-4, the same day as the Memphis Open which last June signed a Professional Golfers Association contract.

Memphis officials are insisting that Palmer, as U.S. Open champion; Player, because he has been a PGA tour winner this year, and Leonard, victor in the Western Open in Detroit last July, fulfill their PGA contracts to play in Memphis.

Palmer will represent the United States with Sam Snead as his partner. They won the team title last year in Dublin. Snead needed only PGA permission to play in Puerto Rico and received it.

"I'm terribly disappointed and hurt," said South Africa's Gary Player when asked about Bob Rosburg's statement in which the PGA tournament committee chairman blasted Player.

About Player, Rosburg had said, "here is a player who goes to this country from South Africa and thinks it is real nice to win $48,000 in four months in PGA tournaments, but then suddenly doesn't think he should play by PGA rules."

The San Juan matches are sponsored by the International Golf Association. It has no PGA affiliation.

Player, Palmer and Leonard face a six-month suspension and a $500 fine if they bypass Memphis for San Juan.

The check will be held daily from noon to 6 p.m., according to Jack Ashbridge, general chairman.

Man Beaten In Bar Fight

Wayne Coleman, 38, of 734 Oak St. was admitted to the hospital about two hours after the fight in Roy's Bar, 755 Dresden Ave., police reported.

Coleman suffered lacerations of the lips and jaw and was to be X-rayed this morning, hospital authorities told Police Capt. R. H. Pyle, who investigated.

Pyle said he learned of the incident when the hospital notified police about the victim being beaten in a fight. However, the officer said he was unable to question Coleman because of his condition.

Checking at the tavern, Capt. Pyle said he learned that Coleman entered the tavern about 7:30 p. m. "very intoxicated" and in a short time started a fight with another patron sitting at the bar.

The bartender told the officer the customer was a stranger in the bar but apparently knew Coleman since they greeted each other. However, he told Capt. Pyle he did not know the cause of the fight.

The unidentified man hit Coleman "a couple of times," the officer was told, and Coleman left the bar and went home. He remained at his home for about two hours before being taken to the hospital by his brother, Abe Coleman, the officer reported.

2 Tied For Lead At Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — There was no clear-cut leader as the $20,000 Hot Springs Open Golf Tournament reached its midway point. Bespectacled Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., and red-hot Doug Sanders were tied at the top with 36-hole totals of 136.

After second round play Friday, the field of 94 professionals was clipped to 60 with 18-hole rounds scheduled today and Sunday.

Sanders, winner of last week's Colonial at Fort Worth, and Rudolph both fired 4-under-par 68s to oust Buster Cupit and Art Wall Jr. from the lead they held after the first 18 holes.

Rudolph fired a smooth 33-35. Sanders used 31 putts and shot five birdies for 34-34—68.

Cupit, of Fort Smith, Ark., Bert Weaver of Daytona Beach, Fla., and Jerry Steelsmith of Glendale, Calif., were tied for third with 137s.

2 IN MEMORIAM

IN loving memory of our dear Mother, RUTH E. BROWN, who passed away 3 years ago today, May 20th, 1958.
I cannot say, and I will not say
That she is dead — she is just away!
She has wondered into an unknown land, and left us dreaming how very fair it needs must be, since she lingers there. And You—O—You, who the wildest yearn for the old time sleep and glad return, think of her farring on, as dear in the love of there as the love of here; Think of her still as the same, I say; She is not dead — She is just away!
Sadly missed by her Son and daughter, JERRY DIXON AND ALMA MAY.

3 CARDS OF THANKS

WE wish to express our heartfelt appreciation and sincere thanks for the many kindnesses extended to us during our recent bereavement. Special thanks to Rev. Robert Thomas and the Haugh Funeral Home. Also to those who sent floral offerings. Brothers and Sisters of Richard Morrell.

Youth Admits Theft Of Auto

An 18-year-old Klondyke youth was held for the Grand Jury under $1,500 bond Friday afternoon in Municipal Court after pleading guilty to a charge of driving an auto without the owner's consent.

David Bailey, 1798 Michigan Ave., was accused of the theft Thursday of a 1957 auto owned by David F. Beatty, 1936 Michigan Ave. Police said Bailey took Beatty's car out of the owner's garage about 11:30 a.m. Thursday and drove it until 3:30. He was nabbed by the owner when he returned the car to the garage, police said.

The youth fell under the jurisdiction of "adult" law by only five days. He turned 18 five days ago, his mother told Judge Samuel M. Chertoff. Prior to his 18th birthday, he would have been referred to Juvenile Court for the same offense.

In the course of the hearing, the judge discovered that the defendant is illiterate, except for the ability to sign his name. He questioned the boy's mother, who said classmates "made so much fun of him" in his early days in school that he dropped out of school altogether.

Under a new Ohio law, a defendant in a felony case who pleads guilty is required to sign a written acknowledgement of the plea at the preliminary hearing. It was during this proceeding the court learned Bailey is illiterate.

The judge lectured the mother on her son's lack of formal education and said the boy should have been tutored if he did not attend public school. He advised the mother to hire an attorney to defend her son and to take him to a doctor to have his mental capacity rated.

Notices Asked By VA In Address Changes

There are about 5 million veterans and dependents receiving benefit payments from the Veterans Administration every month.

About 200,000 don't get their checks promptly and some may never receive their check, according to A. G. Bille, contact representative.

Veterans, widows, veteran-students, etc., move from one address to another and fail to change their address with the Post Office and with the Veterans Administration. When these people don't file their changes of address, they don't get their checks on time. Many of these people may be depending on that check each month as a major source of their income. Filing a change of address should be done as soon as possible. In addition to filing a change of address at the Post Office, file a change of address form at the Veterans Administration. It will save a lot of time and trouble.

For further information, phone or contact A. G. Bille, Contact Representative-in-Charge, Veterans Administration Office, 227 N. 5th St., Steubenville, open from 8:15 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Youth Admits Theft Of Auto

An 18-year-old Klondyke youth was held for the Grand Jury under $1,500 bond Friday afternoon in Municipal Court after pleading guilty to a charge of driving an auto without the owner's consent.

David Bailey, 1798 Michigan Ave., was accused of the theft Thursday of a 1957 auto owned by David F. Beatty, 1936 Michigan Ave. Police said Bailey took Beatty's car out of the owner's garage about 11:30 a.m. Thursday and drove it until 3:30. He was nabbed by the owner when he returned the car to the garage, police said.

The youth fell under the jurisdiction of "adult" law by only five days. He turned 18 five days ago, his mother told Judge Samuel M. Chertoff. Prior to his 18th birthday, he would have been referred to Juvenile Court for the same offense.

In the course of the hearing, the judge discovered that the defendant is illiterate, except for the ability to sign his name. He questioned the boy's mother, who said classmates "made so much fun of him" in his early days in school that he dropped out of school altogether.

Under a new Ohio law, a defendant in a felony case who pleads guilty is required to sign a written acknowledgement of the plea at the preliminary hearing. It was during this proceeding the court learned Bailey is illiterate.

The judge lectured the mother on her son's lack of formal education and said the boy should have been tutored if he did not attend public school. He advised the mother to hire an attorney to defend her son and to take him to a doctor to have his mental capacity rated.

Notices Asked By VA In Address Changes

There are about 5 million veterans and dependents receiving benefit payments from the Veterans Administration every month.

About 200,000 don't get their checks promptly and some may never receive their check, according to A. G. Bille, contact representative.

Veterans, widows, veteran-students, etc., move from one address to another and fail to change their address with the Post Office and with the Veterans Administration. When these people don't file their changes of address, they don't get their checks on time. Many of these people may be depending on that check each month as a major source of their income. Filing a change of address should be done as soon as possible. In addition to filing a change of address at the Post Office, file a change of address form at the Veterans Administration. It will save a lot of time and trouble.

For further information, phone or contact A. G. Bille, Contact Representative-in-Charge, Veterans Administration Office, 227 N. 5th St., Steubenville, open from 8:15 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Six Famous Americans Tell: "My Secret of Relaxation"

AMERICA OUT-OF-DOORS

From the wisdom of their broad experience, these celebrities confirm the theme of this special issue: America out-of-doors makes for a healthy America!

The Secret of Mountain Hiking

By Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas

Hiking and mountain climbing are hobbies for everyone, young and old. One who starts early in life can enjoy Class 5 and Class 6 climbs (advanced categories) for years. The less difficult ones can be done at a slow pace throughout life. And hiking is for men and women in their 80s as well as for teen-agers. They are hobbies that give tone to the body. They also widen the horizons of the mind, opening up the wonders of nature that are all around us.

The Secret of Walking

By Harry S. Truman

As part of my daily routine, I usually take a walk of a mile-and-a-half, at a pace of 120 steps a minute, from 6:30 to 7 each morning . . . I learned to do this during my period of service in the National Guard and in the First World War.

I still walk at that pace, not because I wish to hurry but because, if you are going to take a walk for your physical benefit, it is necessary that you walk as if you are going some place.

After you are 50 years old, this is the best exercise you can take. Of course, some aging exhibitionists try to prove that they can play tennis or handball or anything else they did when they were 18. And every once in while one of them falls dead of a heart attack. I say that's not for me.

The Secret of the Sea

By Anne Morrow Lindbergh

The beach is not the place to work, to read, write, or think.

At first, the tired body takes over completely. As on shipboard, one descends into a deck-chair apathy.

And then, some morning in the second week, the mind wakes, comes to life again. . . It begins to drift, to play, to turn over in gentle, careless rolls like those lazy waves on the beach. One never knows what chance treasures these easy, unconscious rollers may toss up on the smooth white sand of the conscious mind.

But it must not be sought for or—heaven forbid!—dug for . . . To dig for treasures shows not only impatience and greed but lack of faith. Patience, patience, patience, is what the sea teaches. Patience and faith. One should lie empty, open, choiceless as a beach—waiting for a gift from the sea.

The Secret of Picnics

By Gov. Nelson Rockefeller

Picnics are a wonderful way to relax—on the terrace, the beach, in the woods, or under a shade tree on the lawn or meadow. Family and friends of all ages can enjoy them, whether they are simple and spontaneous or the result of careful planning. They are one of my favorite forms of outdoor recreation.

The Secret of Fishing

By Herbert Hoover

Fishing is the chance to wash one's soul with pure air, with the rush of the brook, or with the shimmer of the sun on the blue water. It brings meekness and inspiration from the decency of nature, charity toward tackle makers, patience toward fish, a mockery of profit and egos, a quieting of hate, a rejoicing that you do not have to decide a darn thing until next week. And it is discipline in the equality of men—for all men are equal before fish.

The Secret of Contemplation

By Bernard Baruch

In this age of distraction, with its hectic pace and complex problems, all of us need to pause now and then to review our activities and recover our bearings. There is no better way to do this than to take to the out-of-doors. Whenever I have felt the pressures building up, I have sought the peace and quiet of the South Carolina countryside where I was born. There, hunting or fishing or just sitting on my front porch watching a sunset, I have been able to clarify my thinking and refresh my body and spirit. Even an hour or two spent on a park bench provides a chance for detached contemplation to regain one's perspective.

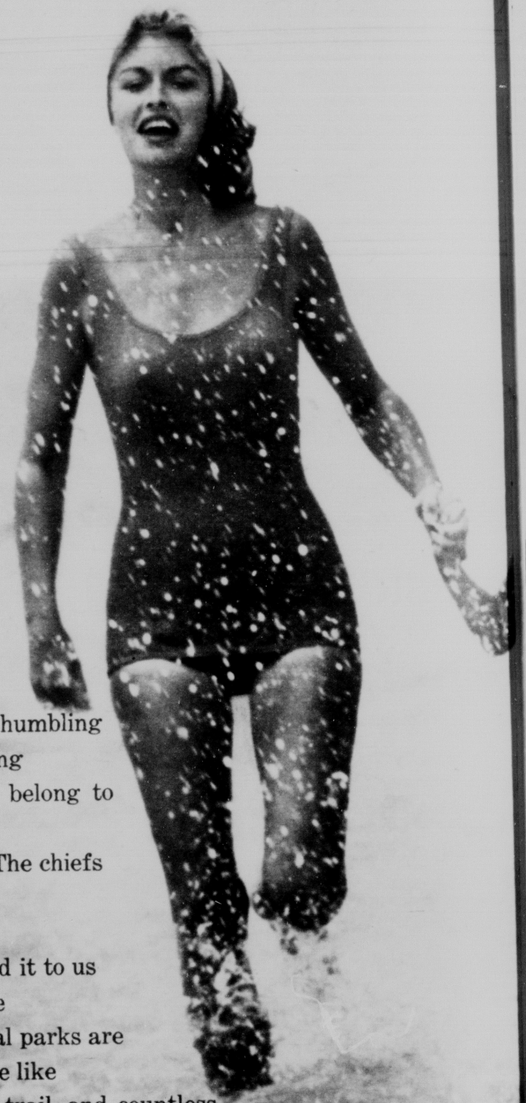
Our forefathers left us two legacies: nature's wondrous spectacles unspoiled, and a duty to pass them on to our descendants in the same primeval splendor



IN THE MIDST of our enjoyment of nature and outdoor life, may I suggest that we pause occasionally to consider a humbling fact. These mountains that we climb and these flowering meadows that we trample, they are ours to enjoy—but they belong to others, too. ¶A story is told of the first white men in the South Pacific who sought to buy an island from the natives. The chiefs conferred solemnly and reached a decision. "We hope you will use this land, but we cannot sell it," their spokesman said. "It belongs to others—to our forefathers who entrusted it to us and to our children who will soon inherit it. We have its use for only a little while." ¶We who have the use of our national parks are sharing a unique treasure. No other nation has anything quite like it. Offering thousands of camp sites, hundreds of miles of trail, and countless vistas of unparalleled beauty, our National Park System attracted over 60 million visitors last year. ¶Why do they come? I believe it is because in every man there is something left unsatisfied by our modern world. Give man food, a tight roof, a loving family—it is still not enough. So he builds a church, museum, hospital, or park. When all else fails, nature's perfection remains, with its invitation to wonder how it all came about, with its call to listen to the music of stillness. ¶The inspiration to be found in any of the 181 national park areas is yours for the asking. Here are resources not counted in stockpiles for defense or listed in secret plans for wartime. But here hides the birth of ultimate victory. Nature's beauty can restore your waning faith in yourself or your God. Nature's lessons can be borrowed: her directness in achieving her ends, her singleness of purpose, and the discipline which forgives no errors. We have need of such qualities. ¶The National Park System began, appropriately, with a camping trip. In 1870, several citizens were exploring the wilderness of Montana when their minds turned to America's destiny. Nibblin' Time...a most delicious habit!

A delicious nibble, the peanut. Grown by nature . . . picked, packed and lightly salted by Planters. Rich in protein, yet a dozen Cocktail® Peanuts contain fewer calories than an egg, an orange, or a glass of buttermilk. But best about Planters is the taste. civilization might eventually overwhelm even their wild mountains.

Those campers resolved to forestall the blight of hot-dog stands and pizza palaces, whose predecessors were already spreading across the prairies. With their combined influence and resources, they caused Congress to reserve those acres for public use, to be held for the benefit of future generations. The land they saved is now the Yellowstone National Park.

It was the first of its kind.

From that beginning, your system of parks expanded until a department called the National Park Service was established in 1916 under the Secretary of the Interior. The law called those parks "pleasuring places," and so they are and will remain as long as we who visit them remember what those natives of the South Pacific understood so well—that no generation owns its natural resources but merely uses them for a little while.

As fellow trustees of these vast resources, all Americans share various burdens. It is timely, I believe, to name some of them.

The matter of litter is one. Litter is a nuisance. Attendants at most park entrances offer visitors a litter bag. If it is available, please use it. Do your share to tidy up.

SOUVENIR hunters abound, particularly in the Petrified Forest of Arizona. Where huge tree trunks from a prehistoric age exhibit the miracle of wood turned to stone, petrified chunks lie invitingly on the ground. Park rangers and signs request visitors not to disturb them. Inspect their odd beauty, ponder their enigma, but leave them in their resting place to delight those who follow you.

In Yosemite National Park, an ancient Jeffrey pine leans away from the wind at the summit of Sentinel Dome, 8,000 feet above the sea. It has fought for its life against gale and blizzard until it is bent like a humpbacked crone. No other tree in the world is like it. Each line of root and branch proclaims such tenacity that the human spirit is lifted. Again, Park Service signs ask the public to protect it. Yet some vandal has cut a step into the trunk the better to climb it. Another drove an iron spike into its heart for motives unknown, and the scar is still visible. Thoughtless children abrade its bark with their heels, and this is done in full view of their parents.

Other desecrations mar our trusteeship. I know of giant Sequoias that are sick from the carving of linked initials in their bark. I know of a lady called Miss Liberty whose torch lights up New York harbor but whose skirt is smeared with lipsticked names and phrases.

Another affront is the thoughtless person who would introduce amusement establishments into primeval settings. In every mail, Park Service permission is sought for setting up bowling alleys, miniature golf courses, and soft-drink machines.

Summer is around the corner, and the open highway leads to the world's greatest outdoor school, our park system. Why not enroll and rediscover your heritage.

Visit Mesa Verde and view the Cliff Palace from whose 200 living rooms an Indian race vanished without a trace.

Or take a long stride into our history and visit Jamestown, Va., where our park commemorates the first permanent English colony in America, established 13 years before Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock.

Or visit Coronado National Memorial in Arizona and the Cabrillo Monument in California, named for intrepid Spaniards who, a half century ahead of the English, had already explored much of our Southwest and Far West.

See Independence Hall and the jewel of a park around it that has emerged from the rubble of old Philadelphia. Through events that took place there, this free nation was born, and the fetters of tyranny were shaken around the world.

JOIN THE BANDS of Civil War buffs who wander over memorable battlefields: Chickamauga, Fort Sumter, Gettysburg, Manassas, Shiloh, Vicksburg. Each name echoes with heroism and glorious sacrifice. Each park is a link in our chain of history.

From such visits come fragile stirrings of the human spirit that are called knowledge, refreshment, and esthetic enjoyment. These are profound experiences essential to mortal welfare.

Your help will protect these values for those to whom we leave them; your neglect will diminish them. Already, the elk are gone from Rocky Mountain and Glacier Parks, the Bighorn sheep have vanished from Big Bend and Mesa Verde, and the rare bird life of the Florida Everglades is not what it was.

With your aid, your Government can conserve and restore. As John Milton once said, "Accuse not nature; she hath done her part. Do thou but thine."

Nibblin' Time...a most delicious habit!

A delicious nibble, the peanut. Grown by nature . . . picked, packed and lightly salted by Planters. Rich in protein, yet a dozen Cocktail® Peanuts contain fewer calories than an egg, an orange, or a glass of buttermilk. But best about Planters is the taste. Crunched slowly, savored, Planters Peanuts are the best friend a cooling summer drink ever had! Delicious . . . in the vacuum can, nickel bag or 5¢ Jumbo Block!

New Ways to Enjoy Car Trips

Don't look upon that auto as just something to get you someplace—it's your traveling bedroom, closet, kitchen, and marina

By STANLEY H. BRAMS

NO MATTER what vintage or model, your automobile can be much more than a way to get you from here to there on your next vacation trip. Each year finds more ingenious ways created to make the car a genuine utility—meaning that it helps you live better and easier as it takes you over the highway.

It transports your vacation clothes and sports equipment, of course. Beyond that it can function as your bedroom at night or as the basic component of your shelter tent. It can function, too, as a surprisingly versatile power outlet—for shaving, warming beverages, playing your favorite records—and for other uses as well.

Take packing, for example. One auto manufacturer has a rubber-mounted roof-top luggage rack with base and side rails of stainless steel. Practically all other makes can be similarly equipped to handle odd-size cargo or overflow.

If you need still more space, think about a little trailer to pull along. There are any number on the market, light and roomy enough to handle all the gear you could reasonably want.

One such trailer has a dual advantage: it is a 200-pound cargo carrier (with 25 cubic feet of capacity) and also the base for a large canvas shelter, sleeping four persons inside its 11 feet of length and 6 feet, 4 inches of width (price, around $345).

In the past, it's been popular to tow your boat behind you, but now there are lightweight water craft which go right into a station wagon or onto the roof of other models. One craft packs into two canvas bags weighing about 40 pounds each and can be blown up into a raft-rowboat. Another example is an inflatable rubber canoe (about $160), and a third is a sailboat of polystyrene, haulable on a car-top carrier (about $120). There are even plans for a homemade 12-foot plywood boat made in two sections that nest together for movement in a station wagon.

All kinds of practical devices are on the market to make your trip more convenient. Most electric-shaver manufacturers have devised conversion plugs which fit cigarette-lighter recesses, so Dad can get an earlier start by shaving as he travels.

There are similarly powered water heaters—sticklike heating elements that can be dipped into a small container of water so Baby's bottle can be brought slowly to the desired temperature or hot water provided for instant coffee. The lighter recess also serves to power spotlights that find welcome use when trouble arises at night or when a camp site is reached after dark.

You also can buy refrigerating units that fit the car—some of them powered by bottled gas found in sporting-goods and hardware stores.

WANT TO SLEEP in the car? Rambler pioneered the idea of drop-back front seats which form a flat base long enough for any adult. Studebaker's Lark and some foreign cars offer the same facility.

If you want fresh air and insect protection, too, while you sleep, you may find that your car can be equipped with screens, some of fabric mesh, some of metal. These are available in various models by Chevrolet, Chrysler, Ford, Rambler, and other manufacturers.

Nervous about sleeping in your car? One woman pulls into open-all-night gas stations and obtains permission to sleep in the back parking area where she locks herself in her car, partially opens the windows, attaches net window screens, and closes her eyes—knowing there's a measure of protection during the night plus a handy washroom.

She stops around noon when motels are being cleaned up, asks permission to pay for a shower and a clean towel, and says she has never been turned away. Generally, this costs her 25 cents—a small outlay indeed for lodging along the road!

Or you can sleep on the roof. There are some package units that mount on top of your car and extend out to one side, creating enough room to sleep four quite comfortably, five feet off the ground (about $280). If you wish, you can curtain the support poles at the side and afford yourself dressing-room space.

TODAY'S popular half-wagon, half-bus vehicles are the basis of increasing numbers of camping and travel outfits specifically designed for them—tables which snap into place against one wall inside and can be taken out and fitted with legs for use anywhere; couches with bases that are storage drawers; complete kitchens; and so on. In a word, these vehicles can be used for vacation jaunts almost as if they were full-fledged trailers.

Tents which are, in effect, "hinged" to the automobile are quite commonplace, too. Sizes and shapes are in variety to suit any taste; their one point of similarity is that they derive support from the car in which they are transported and sometimes use the car as one of their walls.

Thus you can create about as much comfort and convenience in your car as your wallet can afford. Simply decide what you'd like to have on your next trip, and chances are it's ready and waiting for you at your car dealer, the store down the road, or the handyman's do-it-yourself supply place.

By hitching a tent to their Corvair sports wagon, these outdoorsmen have set up an ideal camp site. Easily attached, tents such as the one shown come in a host of shapes and sizes.

For less rugged individuals, this "motor home" by Dodge combines an auto and trailer in a single luxurious unit.

Those campers resolved to forestall the blight of hot-dog stands and pizza palaces, whose predecessors were already spreading across the prairies. With their combined influence and resources, they caused Congress to reserve those acres for public use, to be held for the benefit of future generations. The land they saved is now the Yellowstone National Park.

It was the first of its kind.

From that beginning, your system of parks expanded until a department called the National Park Service was established in 1916 under the Secretary of the Interior. The law called those parks "pleasuring places," and so they are and will remain as long as we who visit them remember what those natives of the South Pacific understood so well—that no generation owns its natural resources but merely uses them for a little while.

As fellow trustees of these vast resources, all Americans share various burdens. It is timely, I believe, to name some of them.

The matter of litter is one. Litter is a nuisance. Attendants at most park entrances offer visitors a litter bag. If it is available, please use it. Do your share to tidy up.

SOUVENIR hunters abound, particularly in the Petrified Forest of Arizona. Where huge tree trunks from a prehistoric age exhibit the miracle of wood turned to stone, petrified chunks lie invitingly on the ground. Park rangers and signs request visitors not to disturb them. Inspect their odd beauty, ponder their enigma, but leave them in their resting place to delight those who follow you.

Majestic mountains, fish-filled streams, rolling surf—this country offers them all to the family looking for fun, adventure, and economy

By ERWIN A. BAUER

10 Essentials for Family Summer Camping

1. Shelter, either a tent or a camper-type trailer. Wall or umbrella tents are best for larger groups.

2. Lightweight sleeping bag or air mattress for each person. Folding cots are optional.

3. A kitchen which includes a two-burner gasoline stove, portable refrigerator or cooler, lantern, and canvas fly leaf for "roof."

4. Set of nesting aluminum pots, pans, dishes, utensils.

5. Sand axe and small trench shovel. Gasoline can.

6. Supply of aluminum foil and plastic freezer bags.

8. First-aid kit and any medical supplies normally required at home—such as tooth paste, aspirin, laxative.

10. Camera and twice as much film as you plan to use.

THERE HASN'T BEEN anything like it since pioneer days. Armed with tents and tarpaulins, with portable stoves and folding cots, about one in every four Americans headed for the wide-open spaces last summer to go camping. And it's a good bet that even more of them will sleep under canvas sometime during 1961.

It's no mystery why camping is enjoying its greatest boom in history. For one thing it's a happy blend of adventure, escape, and relaxation—an elegant vacation that anyone can afford. With equipment which may cost less than a week's pay, and which will last through many seasons, camping opens up a whole new concept of spending leisure time. Nowadays, any family can enjoy our most magnificent scenery, can sample our fastest fishing, or visit countless historic shrines and showplaces—all on a shoestring.

One neophyte camper at Yellowstone Park last year summed up the sentiments of almost all campers. "Living in a tent," he said, "was the summer's most rewarding experience. Responsibilities seemed to evaporate for everyone in camp. Even chores became a pleasure."

Camping was never the happy, almost luxurious pastime it is today. Many designers and manufacturers now offer tents with metal ribs which practically jump into place. The station wagon has become the Conestoga of today. No less than a dozen different lightweight trailers which open up into small "apartments" are now on the market. And then there are folding stoves, portable refrigerators, dehydrated foods, inflatable mattresses, and nesting sets of dishes. The list is endless. But all the essentials for one family—tent, stove, sleeping bags, utensils—can be purchased for about $100.

America's carefree campers have still another advantage: more budget facilities are available to them than to any other vacationers. There are well-manicured camp sites in nearly all our national parks, and in many state and county parks. Camping is either completely free or permitted for a very nominal fee.

Besides these public lands, numerous company-owned and industrial lands are "open." The Weyerhaeuser Timber Co., for example, maintains 14 free camping parks in the Northwest.

The secret of any successful camping trip, whether it's for the weekend or for the entire summer, is in the planning. There are a number of good books on the subject. Beginners should try short trips at first, extending them as they gain experience. But both beginners and veterans should remember that midsummer is camping's biggest season, and that they will find some campgrounds filled to capacity. It's always wise to make reservations or to inquire ahead.

CAMPING itself is fun, but other activities should be considered. Some activities compatible with camping include fishing, hiking, boating, swimming, collecting (rocks, gems, seashells, fossils, etc.), photography, bird watching, mountain climbing, and even spelunking (cave exploring). Some campers carry Geiger counters to prospect for rare or radioactive metals. Some pan for gold. Other campers with small children carry playpens and toys. Still others might tote such luxury items as portable showers, toasters, rotisseries, or hi-fis.

But nothing is as important as selecting a good camping area, and herewith are some of America's best, selected on the basis of facilities and outdoor opportunities available for campers. They're not necessarily the largest or best-known camping areas (which sometimes are too crowded), but instead each one offers plenty of elbow room, except during peak periods of July and August when camp sites anywhere are most scarce.

■ Rocky Mountain National Park, Colo. Few places on earth have greater natural beauty or more spectacular Alpine scenery than this bit of high real estate astride the continental divide northwest of Denver. A wandering outdoorsman can pitch his camp near the timber line or deep in a green valley below. Well-marked trails for hikers lead to lonely lakes and good trout fishing. There's excellent mountain climbing, abundant wildlife to see, and extravagant photographic possibilities.

■ Cape Hatteras National Seashore Recreational Area, N. C. Here is something distinctly different in camping, a change of pace for campers used to a place on a blue Northern lake. This area is actually a 100-mile-long strip of sand beach along the outer bank from Nags Head to Hatteras Inlet and Ocracoke, and a number of neat camp sites ventilated with salty breezes have been established there by the Government. Besides the novelty of camping out on bleached white sand within the sound of the surf, there's superb fishing in the Atlantic and in Pamlico Sound, and beachcombing for mementos of old shipwrecks. Water birds are numerous, too. Area is crowded during August.

■ The Ozark Mountains of Southern Missouri and Arkansas. This is a picturesque region which in part might have been preserved out of the hickory-smoked past. From Government camp sites on the shores of giant reservoirs (such as Bull Shoals, Norfolk, Table Rock, Ouachita), a camper can explore the hardwood hills all around on little-used back-country roads. There are also lovely rivers (Buffalo, Current, White, Eleven Point, Gasconade) that drift through undisturbed wilderness. Both the rivers and reservoirs have good fishing, and this entire region is considered happy hunting grounds for antique collectors.

■ Quetico-Superior Wilderness, Minnesota and Ontario. This evergreen vacationland, which contains more water than dry ground, is unique because it's strictly for canoe campers. Here you load your duffel and equipment into a canoe or two and travel by paddle- and elbow-power. There's good fishing everywhere, wildlife is abundant, and you will find the Northwoods environment is completely unadulterated.

It's worth noting here that an outdoor family doesn't need its own equipment to enjoy camping in the Quetico-Superior forest. They can rent everything from tents and teapots to guides, sleep-

Family Weekly's Guide to Outdoor Cookery

By MELANIE DE PROFT, Food Editor

GRILLING is perhaps the easiest way to entertain a large number of people—and have fun doing it. It's a man's art and one job that the gals gladly relinquish, for a woman never looks her best working over a hot fire; a man never looks better!

The essentials for outdoor grilling are few—a grill, such as one of those pictured, fuel, the food for the feast, and, if possible, an inventive chef.

As for the fuel, charcoal lumps or briquets are preferred by most experts. At times you may want to use fruit wood or hardwood such as apple or hickory chips. Dampened hickory chips tossed on a charcoal fire just before the meat is placed on the grill adds an interesting flavor. Soft woods like pine give foods a tarry soot coating and do not produce a satisfactory bed of coals.

To build a cooking fire, start with a bed of charcoal, two to three inches deep. (It should last the entire cooking period.) Apply liquid- or solid-type charcoal lighter and ignite. The fire is ready for cooking when the coals have burned to a gray color with a ruddy glow underneath. Allow 30 minutes for your fire to become a bed of coals ready for grilling. Another way to start the fire is by beginning the bed with a little paper and kindling. Add a small amount of charcoal and, when it is burning, build the entire bed as directed.

The distance from the top of the coals to the food helps determine the degree of heat. More distance means less heat and slower grilling. Some grills have adjustable fireboxes that can raise or lower the bed of coals. In others, the position of the grilling rack adjusts.

Timing of cooking periods will vary with size of firebox, degree of heat, amount and direction of wind (be sure it isn't blowing smoke in your guests' faces), and the type of grill used. TIMING AND DISTANCE GIVEN IN THIS ARTICLE ARE ONLY GUIDES.

During grilling, when flare-ups occur (usually just at the start of cooking as a result of fat dripping onto the coals), douse flames with a small amount of water. Careful aim with a basting tube filled with water, or a water pistol, controls most blaze-ups.

The paraphernalia used in grilling can be simple or elaborate depending entirely on you, the chef. The following items are a few of the necessities:

—An apron that is big enough to keep grease spatters and soot away from your favorite sport clothes. (Add a chef's hat for fun.)

WHETHER IT'S plain or fancy, cooking outdoors makes any meal a party. Here's a selection of equipment to fit any budget and every occasion, whether it's preparing hot dogs at the beach or an elegant buffet on the patio.

The firebox of the portable cast-iron charcoal grill (upper left) has a detachable handle which raises or lowers the grill by resting it in notches in the legs, even as the 'burgers and buns brown. It's under $5. If there's a sudden shower, the legs of the wheeled grill (middle left) may be removed, and the grill set in a fireplace. Of porcelain-coated cast iron, it has a sliding door to regulate drafts, a well to collect the marinade used while meat is grilling, and a pouring spout.

If you'd rather cook with gas, the rotisserie-vertical broiler unit (middle right) may be dropped into a counter or fireplace top. Radiant metal mesh covers its vertical burners, thereby cutting grilling time for flavorful shish kabobs and other succulent treats. Both the electrically turned spit, with built-in thermometer, and the broiler racks come with the unit; it's available in chrome or four colors.

And, for sophisticated cooking, there's a two-faced cart (lower right) with two motor-driven spits, a roomy charcoal grill which tilts to drain steak juices into a drip pan to serve with the steak, and a storage compartment. The other face (shown here) is an electric range with oven, controlled-temperature griddle, and two surface heating units. There's even an outlet for the electric percolator. The cart is flanked by dropleaf cutting-serving boards. It's priced around $750—a far cry from the price of the portable grill—but then its talents are far superior.

OUTDOOR GRILLING—For Fun and Flavor

Marinated Black Pepper Steak

The amount of cracked pepper used on this steak depends completely on personal taste. As a rough guide, two teaspoonfuls for each side of a large steak isn't too much.

Purchase a sirloin steak, cut 1½ to 2 in. thick. (Allow ¾ to 1 lb. per person.) Put steak in a large, shallow pan, cover with steak marinade and allow to marinate several hours or overnight. Before grilling, remove steak from marinade and press coarsely crushed peppercorns liberally into both sides of steak. Grill 3 to 4 in. from coals, allowing about 15 min. for total grilling time; turn once. Test doneness by slitting meat near bone and noting color of meat. America's Best Camping Spots

Majestic mountains, fish-filled streams, rolling surf—this country offers them all to the family looking for fun, adventure, and economy

By ERWIN A. BAUER

10 Essentials for Family Summer Camping

1. Shelter, either a tent or a camper-type trailer. Wall or umbrella tents are best for larger groups.
2. Lightweight sleeping bag or air mattress for each person. Folding cots are optional.
3. A kitchen which includes a two-burner gasoline stove, portable refrigerator or cooler, lantern, and canvas fly leaf for "roof."
4. Set of nesting aluminum pots, pans, dishes, utensils.
5. Sand axe and small trench shovel. Gasoline can.
6. Supply of aluminum foil and plastic freezer bags.
7. Insecticide bomb for camp, insect repellent for campers.
8. First-aid kit and any medical supplies normally required at home—such as tooth paste, aspirin, laxative.
9. Compact kit which contains nails, baling wire, rope, flashlight, pliers, hammer, waterproof matches, candle.
10. Camera and twice as much film as you plan to use.

THERE HASN'T BEEN anything like it since pioneer days. Armed with tents and tarpaulins, with portable stoves and folding cots, about one in every four Americans headed for the wide-open spaces last summer to go camping. And it's a good bet that even more of them will sleep under canvas sometime during 1961.

It's no mystery why camping is enjoying its greatest boom in history. For one thing it's a happy blend of adventure, escape, and relaxation—an elegant vacation that anyone can afford. With equipment which may cost less than a week's pay, and which will last through many seasons, camping opens up a whole new concept of spending leisure time. Nowadays, any family can enjoy our most magnificent scenery, can sample our fastest fishing, or visit countless historic shrines and showplaces—all on a shoestring.

One neophyte camper at Yellowstone Park last year summed up the sentiments of almost all campers. "Living in a tent," he said, "was the summer's most rewarding experience. Responsibilities seemed to evaporate for everyone in camp. Even chores became a pleasure."

Camping was never the happy, almost luxurious pastime it is today. Many designers and manufacturers now offer tents with metal ribs which practically jump into place. The station wagon has become the Conestoga of today. No less than a dozen different lightweight trailers which open up into small "apartments" are now on the market. And then there are folding stoves, portable refrigerators, dehydrated foods, inflatable mattresses, and nesting sets of dishes. The list is endless. But all the essentials for one family—tent, stove, sleeping bags, utensils—can be purchased for about $100.

America's carefree campers have still another advantage: more budget facilities are available to them than to any other vacationers. There are well-manicured camp sites in nearly all our national parks, and in many state and county parks. Camping is either completely free or permitted for a very nominal fee.

Besides these public lands, numerous company-owned and industrial lands are "open." The Weyerhaeuser Timber Co., for example, maintains 14 free camping parks in the Northwest.

The secret of any successful camping trip, whether it's for the weekend or for the entire summer, is in the planning. There are a number of good books on the subject. Beginners should try short trips at first, extending them as they gain experience. But both beginners and veterans should remember that midsummer is camping's biggest season, and that they will find some campgrounds filled to capacity. It's always wise to make reservations or to inquire ahead.

CAMPING itself is fun, but other activities should be considered. Some activities compatible with camping include fishing, hiking, boating, swimming, collecting (rocks, gems, seashells, fossils, etc.), photography, bird watching, mountain climbing, and even spelunking (cave exploring). Some campers carry Geiger counters to prospect for rare or radioactive metals. Some pan for gold. Other campers with small children carry playpens and toys. Still others might tote such luxury items as portable showers, toasters, rotisseries, or hi-fis.

But nothing is as important as selecting a good camping area, and herewith are some of America's best, selected on the basis of facilities and outdoor opportunities available for campers. They're not necessarily the largest or best-known camping areas (which sometimes are too crowded), but instead each one offers plenty of elbow room, except during peak periods of July and August when camp sites anywhere are most scarce.

■ Rocky Mountain National Park, Colo. Few places on earth have greater natural beauty or more spectacular Alpine scenery than this bit of high real estate astride the continental divide northwest of Denver. A wandering outdoorsman can pitch his camp near the timber line or deep in a green valley below. Well-marked trails for hikers lead to lonely lakes and good trout fishing. There's excellent mountain climbing, abundant wildlife to see, and extravagant photographic possibilities.

■ Cape Hatteras National Seashore Recreational Area, N. C. Here is something distinctly different in camping, a change of pace for campers used to a place on a blue Northern lake. This area is actually a 100-mile-long strip of sand beach along the outer bank from Nags Head to Hatteras Inlet and Ocracoke, and a number of neat camp sites ventilated with salty breezes have been established there by the Government. Besides the novelty of camping out on bleached white sand within the sound of the surf, there's superb fishing in the Atlantic and in Pamlico Sound, and beachcombing for mementos of old shipwrecks. Water birds are numerous, too. Area is crowded during August.

■ The Ozark Mountains of Southern Missouri and Arkansas. This is a picturesque region which in part might have been preserved out of the hickory-smoked past. From Government camp sites on the shores of giant reservoirs (such as Bull Shoals, Norfolk, Table Rock, Ouachita), a camper can explore the hardwood hills all around on little-used back-country roads. There are also lovely rivers (Buffalo, Current, White, Eleven Point, Gasconade) that drift through undisturbed wilderness. Both the rivers and reservoirs have good fishing, and this entire region is considered happy hunting grounds for antique collectors.

■ Quetico-Superior Wilderness, Minnesota and Ontario. This evergreen vacationland, which contains more water than dry ground, is unique because it's strictly for canoe campers. Here you load your duffel and equipment into a canoe or two and travel by paddle- and elbow-power. There's good fishing everywhere, wildlife is abundant, and you will find the Northwoods environment is completely unadulterated.

It's worth noting here that an outdoor family doesn't need its own equipment to enjoy camping in the Quetico-Superior forest. They can rent everything from tents and teapots to guides, sleeping bags, and waterproof maps of the main canoe routes. All this is inexpensive, and it's high adventure, too.

■ Adirondack Forest Preserve, N. Y. Most campers find it hard to believe that this splendid bit of upside-down country still remains so undeveloped so close to all the Eastern centers of population. Actually more than half the citizens of America live within a day's drive of this preserve, via turnpike traveling. A number of camp sites are available except during August when the demand is heavy.

■ Glacier National Park, Mont. Just to drive across Going-to-the-Sun Highway through Glacier is a memorable experience, but to camp in the park is even more rewarding. Besides the magnificent scenery, there's good fishing, a vast network of hiking and riding trails, good pack-tripping deeper into the high country, and abundant wildlife to study. Other scenic areas are within easy driving in Montana (Flathead Lake, Bob Marshall Wilderness) as well as in British Columbia and Alberta.

■ Michigan's Upper Peninsula. Midwesterners have long known about this cool and scenic portion of Michigan surrounded by the Great Lakes. But with the new Straits of Mackinac Bridge, it's available to anyone. The state has numerous campgrounds, and camping rights can be obtained on many private lands for a small fee. The Peninsula has hundreds of lakes with good fishing. The iron and copper ports along the Superior shore line are interesting. And Isle Royale National Park in Lake Superior must be reached from here.

■ Lassen Volcanic National Park, Calif. California's other parks (Yosemite, Sequoia, Kings Canyon) are far better known, but Lassen is an "undiscovered" bonanza for serious campers. It's an excellent outdoor laboratory to study geology and the structure of the earth. Extensive hiking trails lead to fishing lakes and vast sweeps of high country created by erupting volcanoes. Other fine facilities exist in National Forest lands just adjacent.

■ Padre Island, Tex. Here's an unbroken strip of land similar to Hatteras at the extreme southern tip of Texas—from Corpus Christi to Port Isabel. It offers unlimited camping but only one established camp site, at the southern end. Excellent fishing is available in Brazos Santiago Pass and in the Laguna Madre all year long. This is also a top-notch shell-collecting area, and there are many spots of interest nearby in the Rio Grande Valley.

■ Custer State Park, S. Dak. In their haste to reach more celebrated regions farther west, Eastern vacationers hurry past the Black Hills, where much history was made and where campers can have the time of their lives. It's great country for hiking and riding. There's good fishing in a number of lakes, and buffaloes still roam at large here. Also in the vicinity are the famous Mount Rushmore stone carvings and the colorful gold towns of Lead and Deadwood.

Any list of good camping areas must include Yellowstone National Park, a matchless area of natural beauty abounding with wildlife, but extremely crowded through the summer; Grand Teton National Park, exquisite mountain country, but often quite crowded; Uinta Mountains, Utah, with more than 1,000 lakes; strange Crater Lake, Ore., and surrounding National Forest lands; Olympic National Park, Wash., and surrounding forest lands; Lake Mead National Recreational Area, Nev., a top boating and fishing area, too; Zion and Bryce Canyon National Parks, Dinosaur National Monument, Utah.

Some of the East's best camping areas include Shenandoah National Park, Va., and the Blue Ridge Parkway, where campgrounds are available but frequently congested during midsummer; White Lake Campground, N. H.; Baxter State Park, Me., in a beautiful wilderness; West Virginia's state parks (Holly River, Watoga, Douthat); Everglades National Park, Fla.; Great Smoky Mountains National Park, best in early summer and fall, extremely crowded in July and August.

Robert Taylor—Outdoorsman

He's nearly 50 with much of the same youthful handsomeness that made him a film favorite; his secret?—hunting, fishing, flying, and spinning yarns about them all

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

ON AUG. 5 of this year actor Bob Taylor will celebrate his 50th birthday.

Conservatively speaking, he looks 40.

"I rode horses almost as soon as I learned to walk," he says. "I shot my first jack rabbit when I was only nine years old."

His father, a doctor, had a lot of confidence in his only son. He simply wished him good luck when the boy left the house with a shotgun under his arm.

College and the beginning of a motion-picture career temporarily interrupted Bob's outdoor activities, but a chance meeting with Gary Cooper at Sun Valley, Idaho, not only rekindled his interest but sparked it to the point where nowadays, if it's during the hunting season, one needn't ask Bob's whereabouts when he isn't working.

"Coop never went anywhere without his guns," Bob recalled. "When we met in Sun Valley back in '39, he persuaded me to go with him on a pheasant hunt. I've been hunting ever since."

Bob admits a couple of close calls on his expeditions, the most frightening of which occurred a few years ago just north of Bakersfield, Calif., during the duck season.

He was using an over-and-under 12-gauge shotgun. In his coat, among his 12-gauge shells, he also had a 20-gauge shell left over from a previous hunting trip. Accidentally, he put it into the lower barrel.

"The first time I fired, nothing happened, so I put another shell into the chamber, this time a 12-gauge." The first shell had simply slipped down the barrel, and when Bob pulled the trigger again, both shells went off simultaneously—and the explosion ripped holes in both sides of the barrel.

"Fortunately," says Bob, "we were holding a flock of flying ducks in our sights, and I was just swinging the gun around when it happened. Had I been shooting straight on, the shot coming out of the side would have blown my companion's head off. It missed him by inches."

Still, Bob's hand quickly swelled to the size of a grapefruit. "Get back to the cabin and soak your hand," his companion, Harry Fleishman, ordered. "Then get another gun and come back."

"It was the best advice he could have given me," Bob recalls. "It's just like climbing back on a horse after you get thrown. If I hadn't done it, I might have been too scared to go hunting again."

Most of Bob's hunting is done on the property of a friend in north-central Wyoming, 30 miles out of Sheridan. "He let Ursula and me take over an old homestead cabin shortly after we were married," Bob explains. Then, to answer a still-unasked question, he adds, "Ursula has made a fine outdoorswoman. She doesn't particularly like to shoot anything, but she comes along to watch and isn't squeamish when an animal is killed."

His German-born wife also excels in helping Bob clean and dress game, start fires, and generally rough it in Wyoming, or wherever his love for the outdoors takes them. In fact, she's far more patient than Bob when it comes to at least one outdoor sport—fishing.

"I've fished since I was six years old," Bob says. "Almost every day after school I got on my pony to join a friend who lived in a cabin near the river. We used to catch grasshoppers and put them on a series of hooks which we left in the water overnight. Most of the time we caught carp too full of bones to be eaten. Once in a while we caught a catfish. They were delicious."

TODAY, Bob has one of the most complete assortments of fishing equipment of any star. And on a moment's notice he will go deep-sea fishing in the gulf of Baja, California, trout fishing in the Green River, or he'll saw a hole in the ice to throw a line in a lake near Pinedale, Wyo.

"The trouble is that if I can't catch anything, I soon lose my patience and quit," he admits.

Does fishing or hunting relax him?

"Not really," says Bob. "If I have a professional problem on my mind, I stay home and worry about it till it's taken care of. I guess hunting does provide some sort of therapy. While you are doing it, you can't really think of much else."

Bob's favorite outdoor pastime is flying. His twin-engine plane has become as much a means of transportation to Bob, Ursula, and their children (Terry, 5½, and Tessa, 1) as a car is to most families.

Bob first became interested in flying in 1939, when he was starring in the movie, "Flight Command." A year later he bought his own plane, then took lessons for a pilot's license.

During World War II, he was a flight instructor in the Navy. When he got out of the service, he progressed from a single-engine to a twin-engine plane because "it's a lot safer."

Today, he considers his recklessness during his

He recalls the day he and a friend suddenly decided to fly to the Southern California-Notre Dame football game in Indiana. By the time they reached the airport to take off at 5 a.m., the fog was so thick they couldn't even see the runway.

"When I went out with a flashlight to look for the end of the runway," Bob says, "I found it only after I accidentally stepped off the pavement. My friend helped me look for the numerals which identified the center of the runway. When we found them, we lined up the plane according to the compass and, still unable to see more than a couple of feet ahead of us, climbed back into the cabin and called the tower over the radio."

"WHEN YOU GO BY, will you be flying or taxiing?" a voice inquired.

"Thanks to being older and having a family, I outgrew this sort of stupidity," says Bob.

Ursula likes flying, and so does daughter Tessa,

AMERICA OUT-OF-DOORS

Family Weekly's Guide to Outdoor Cookery

By MELANIE DE PROFT, Food Editor

GRILLING is perhaps the easiest way to entertain a large number of people—and have fun doing it. It's a man's art and one job that the gals gladly relinquish, for a woman never looks her best working over a hot fire; a man never looks better!

The essentials for outdoor grilling are few—a grill, such as one of those pictured, fuel, the food for the feast, and, if possible, an inventive chef.

As for the fuel, charcoal lumps or briquets are preferred by most experts. At times you may want to use fruit wood or hardwood such as apple or hickory chips. Dampened hickory chips tossed on a charcoal fire just before the meat is placed on the grill adds an interesting flavor. Soft woods like pine give foods a tarry soot coating and do not produce a satisfactory bed of coals.

To build a cooking fire, start with a bed of charcoal, two to three inches deep. (It should last the entire cooking period.) Apply liquid- or solid-type charcoal lighter and ignite. The fire is ready for cooking when the coals have burned to a gray color with a ruddy glow underneath. Allow 30 minutes for your fire to become a bed of coals ready for grilling. Another way to start the fire is by beginning the bed with a little paper and kindling. Add a small amount of charcoal and, when it is burning, build the entire bed as directed.

The distance from the top of the coals to the food helps determine the degree of heat. More distance means less heat and slower grilling. Some grills have adjustable fireboxes that can raise or lower the bed of coals. In others, the position of the grilling rack adjusts.

Timing of cooking periods will vary with size of firebox, degree of heat, amount and direction of wind (be sure it isn't blowing smoke in your guests' faces), and the type of grill used. TIMING AND DISTANCE GIVEN IN THIS ARTICLE ARE ONLY GUIDES.

During grilling, when flare-ups occur (usually just at the start of cooking as a result of fat dripping onto the coals), douse flames with a small amount of water. Careful aim with a basting tube filled with water, or a water pistol, controls most blaze-ups.

The paraphernalia used in grilling can be simple or elaborate depending entirely on you, the chef. The following items are a few of the necessities:

—An apron that is big enough to keep grease spatters and soot away from your favorite sport clothes. (Add a chef's hat for fun.)

—Asbestos or well-padded gloves are the cook's best friend—use them regularly to prevent burns.

—Long-handled hand tools include forks, spoons, turners, tongs, and basting brushes. Flourish them with confidence—they're important.

—A basting tube to control flare-ups.

—A broiling basket to handle small or extra-tender foods and many large cuts of meat.

Whether it's plain or fancy, cooking outdoors makes any meal a party. Here's a selection of equipment to fit any budget and every occasion, whether it's preparing hot dogs at the beach or an elegant buffet on the patio.

The firebox of the portable cast-iron charcoal grill (upper left) has a detachable handle which raises or lowers the grill by resting it in notches in the legs, even as the 'burgers and buns brown. It's under $5. If there's a sudden shower, the legs of the wheeled grill (middle left) may be removed, and the grill set in a fireplace. Of porcelain-coated cast iron, it has a sliding door to regulate drafts, a well to collect the marinade used while meat is grilling, and a pouring spout.

Fancier is the copper-toned barbecue (lower left) with its hood shelter and motor-driven rotisserie spit. Its circular grill can be adjusted by the crank handle under the charcoal firebox. The wire basket (a separate unit but widely available) rotates on the spit as the chicken or roast browns.

For more ambitious chefs, there's a stainless steel grill (upper right) with motor-driven spit and a laminate-topped counter where the cook may assemble seasonings to baste the meat as it barbecues.

If you'd rather cook with gas, the rotisserie-vertical broiler unit (middle right) may be dropped into a counter or fireplace top. Radiant metal mesh covers its vertical burners, thereby cutting grilling time for flavorful shish kabobs and other succulent treats. Both the electrically turned spit, with built-in thermometer, and the broiler racks come with the unit; it's available in chrome or four colors.

And, for sophisticated cooking, there's a two-faced cart (lower right) with two motor-driven spits, a roomy charcoal grill which tilts to drain steak juices into a drip pan to serve with the steak, and a storage compartment. The other face (shown here) is an electric range with oven, controlled-temperature griddle, and two surface heating units. There's even an outlet for the electric percolator. The cart is flanked by dropleaf cutting-serving boards. It's priced around $750—a far cry from the price of the portable grill—but then its talents are far superior.

OUTDOOR GRILLING—For Fun and Flavor

Marinated Black Pepper Steak

The amount of cracked pepper used on this steak depends completely on personal taste. As a rough guide, two teaspoonfuls for each side of a large steak isn't too much.

Purchase a sirloin steak, cut 1½ to 2 in. thick. (Allow ¾ to 1 lb. per person.) Put steak in a large, shallow pan, cover with steak marinade and allow to marinate several hours or overnight. Before grilling, remove steak from marinade and press coarsely crushed peppercorns liberally into both sides of steak. Grill 3 to 4 in. from coals, allowing about 15 min. for total grilling time; turn once. Test doneness by slitting meat near bone and noting color of meat. To serve, cut steak diagonally into thin slices.

America's Best Camping Spots

ing bags, and waterproof maps of the main canoe routes. All this is inexpensive, and it's high adventure, too.

■ Adirondack Forest Preserve, N. Y. Most campers find it hard to believe that this splendid bit of upside-down country still remains so undeveloped so close to all the Eastern centers of population. Actually more than half the citizens of America live within a day's drive of this preserve, via turnpike traveling. A number of camp sites are available except during August when the demand is heavy.

■ Glacier National Park, Mont. Just to drive across Going-to-the-Sun Highway through Glacier is a memorable experience, but to camp in the park is even more rewarding. Besides the magnificent scenery, there's good fishing, a vast network of hiking and riding trails, good pack-tripping deeper into the high country, and abundant wildlife to study. Other scenic areas are within easy driving in Montana (Flathead Lake, Bob Marshall Wilderness) as well as in British Columbia and Alberta.

■ Michigan's Upper Peninsula. Midwesterners have long known about this cool and scenic portion of Michigan surrounded by the Great Lakes. But with the new Straits of Mackinac Bridge, it's available to anyone. The state has numerous campgrounds, and camping rights can be obtained on many private lands for a small fee. The Peninsula has hundreds of lakes with good fishing. The iron and copper ports along the Superior shore line are interesting. And Isle Royale National Park in Lake Superior must be reached from here.

■ Lassen Volcanic National Park, Calif. California's other parks (Yosemite, Sequoia, Kings Canyon) are far better known, but Lassen is an "undiscovered" bonanza for serious campers. It's an excellent outdoor laboratory to study geology and the structure of the earth. Extensive hiking trails lead to fishing lakes and vast sweeps of high country created by erupting volcanoes. Other fine facilities exist in National Forest lands just adjacent.

■ Padre Island, Tex. Here's an unbroken strip of land similar to Hatteras at the extreme southern tip of Texas—from Corpus Christi to Port Isabel. It offers unlimited camping but only one established camp site, at the southern end. Excellent fishing is available in Brazos Santiago Pass and in the Laguna Madre all year long. This is also a top-notch shell-collecting area, and there are many spots of interest nearby in the Rio Grande Valley.

■ Custer State Park, S. Dak. In their haste to reach more celebrated regions farther west, Eastern vacationers hurry past the Black Hills, where much history was made and where campers can have the time of their lives. It's great country for hiking and riding. There's good fishing in a number of lakes, and buffaloes still roam at large here. Also in the vicinity are the famous Mount Rushmore stone carvings and the colorful gold towns of Lead and Deadwood.

Any list of good camping areas must include Yellowstone National Park, a matchless area of natural beauty abounding with wildlife, but extremely crowded through the summer; Grand Teton National Park, exquisite mountain country, but often quite crowded; Uinta Mountains, Utah, with more than 1,000 lakes; strange Crater Lake, Ore., and surrounding National Forest lands; Olympic National Park, Wash., and surrounding forest lands; Lake Mead National Recreational Area, Nev., a top boating and fishing area, too; Zion and Bryce Canyon National Parks, Dinosaur National Monument, Utah.

Some of the East's best camping areas include Shenandoah National Park, Va., and the Blue Ridge Parkway, where campgrounds are available but frequently congested during midsummer; White Lake Campground, N. H.; Baxter State Park, Me., in a beautiful wilderness; West Virginia's state parks (Holly River, Watoga, Douthat); Everglades National Park, Fla.; Great Smoky Mountains National Park, best in early summer and fall, extremely crowded in July and August.

Robert Taylor—Outdoorsman

He's nearly 50 with much of the same youthful handsomeness that made him a film favorite; his secret?—hunting, fishing, flying, and spinning yarns about them all

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

ON AUG. 5 of this year actor Bob Taylor will celebrate his 50th birthday.

Conservatively speaking, he looks 40.

Much of the credit goes to a vigorous outdoor life, the love for which dates back to his youth in Filley, Neb.

"I rode horses almost as soon as I learned to walk," he says. "I shot my first jack rabbit when I was only nine years old."

His father, a doctor, had a lot of confidence in his only son. He simply wished him good luck when the boy left the house with a shotgun under his arm.

College and the beginning of a motion-picture career temporarily interrupted Bob's outdoor activities, but a chance meeting with Gary Cooper at Sun Valley, Idaho, not only rekindled his interest but sparked it to the point where nowadays, if it's during the hunting season, one needn't ask Bob's whereabouts when he isn't working.

"Coop never went anywhere without his guns," Bob recalled. "When we met in Sun Valley back in '39, he persuaded me to go with him on a pheasant hunt. I've been hunting ever since."

Bob admits a couple of close calls on his expeditions, the most frightening of which occurred a few years ago just north of Bakersfield, Calif., during the duck season.

He was using an over-and-under 12-gauge shotgun. In his coat, among his 12-gauge shells, he also had a 20-gauge shell left over from a previous hunting trip. Accidentally, he put it into the lower barrel.

"The first time I fired, nothing happened, so I put another shell into the chamber, this time a 12-gauge." The first shell had simply slipped down the barrel, and when Bob pulled the trigger again, both shells went off simultaneously—and the explosion ripped holes in both sides of the barrel.

"Fortunately," says Bob, "we were holding a flock of flying ducks in our sights, and I was just swinging the gun around when it happened. Had I been shooting straight on, the shot coming out of the side would have blown my companion's head off. It missed him by inches."

Still, Bob's hand quickly swelled to the size of a grapefruit. "Get back to the cabin and soak your hand," his companion, Harry Fleishman, ordered. "Then get another gun and come back."

"It was the best advice he could have given me," Bob recalls. "It's just like climbing back on a horse after you get thrown. If I hadn't done it, I might have been too scared to go hunting again."

Most of Bob's hunting is done on the property of a friend in north-central Wyoming, 30 miles out of Sheridan. "He let Ursula and me take over an old homestead cabin shortly after we were married," Bob explains. Then, to answer a still-unasked question, he adds, "Ursula has made a fine outdoorswoman. She doesn't particularly like to shoot anything, but she comes along to watch and isn't squeamish when an animal is killed."

His German-born wife also excels in helping Bob clean and dress game, start fires, and generally rough it in Wyoming, or wherever his love for the outdoors takes them. In fact, she's far more patient than Bob when it comes to at least one outdoor sport—fishing.

"I've fished since I was six years old," Bob says. "Almost every day after school I got on my pony to join a friend who lived in a cabin near the river. We used to catch grasshoppers and put them on a series of hooks which we left in the water overnight. Most of the time we caught carp too full of bones to be eaten. Once in a while we caught a catfish. They were delicious."

TODAY, Bob has one of the most complete assortments of fishing equipment of any star. And on a moment's notice he will go deep-sea fishing in the gulf of Baja, California, trout fishing in the Green River, or he'll saw a hole in the ice to throw a line in a lake near Pinedale, Wyo.

"The trouble is that if I can't catch anything, I soon lose my patience and quit," he admits.

Does fishing or hunting relax him?

"Not really," says Bob. "If I have a professional problem on my mind, I stay home and worry about it till it's taken care of. I guess hunting does provide some sort of therapy. While you are doing it, you can't really think of much else."

Bob's favorite outdoor pastime is flying. His twin-engine plane has become as much a means of transportation to Bob, Ursula, and their children (Terry, 5½, and Tessa, 1) as a car is to most families.

Bob first became interested in flying in 1939, when he was starring in the movie, "Flight Command." A year later he bought his own plane, then took lessons for a pilot's license.

During World War II, he was a flight instructor in the Navy. When he got out of the service, he progressed from a single-engine to a twin-engine plane because "it's a lot safer."

Today, he considers his recklessness during his

first years in the air as "pure foolishness."

He recalls the day he and a friend suddenly decided to fly to the Southern California-Notre Dame football game in Indiana. By the time they reached the airport to take off at 5 a.m., the fog was so thick they couldn't even see the runway.

"When I went out with a flashlight to look for the end of the runway," Bob says, "I found it only after I accidentally stepped off the pavement. My friend helped me look for the numerals which identified the center of the runway. When we found them, we lined up the plane according to the compass and, still unable to see more than a couple of feet ahead of us, climbed back into the cabin and called the tower over the radio."

"WHEN YOU GO BY, will you be flying or taxiing?" a voice inquired.

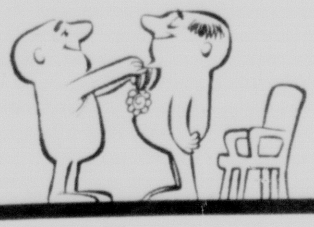
"Thanks to being older and having a family, I outgrew this sort of stupidity," says Bob.

Ursula likes flying, and so does daughter Tessa,



Quips and Quotes

A newlywed couple invited a friend over for his first visit to their new apartment and were giving instructions:

"It's the large apartment building near the bus stop. Our bell is on the right-hand side, near the bottom of the list. When you spot it, ring the bell with your elbow. When we press the downstairs-door buzzer, just push against the door with your shoulder."

The friend asked: "But why can't I use my hands to press the bell?"

"For goodness sake," the newlywed exclaimed, "you're not coming empty-handed, are you?" —Willis Shanty

The small boy dashed out of the house, but his mother called him back to ask where he was going. "I'm going out to play ball," he replied.

"With whom are you playing?"

"I'm going to play with God."

"You shouldn't joke about God," the mother replied, aghast.

"I'm not joking, Mom. I throw the ball up to Him, and He throws it back to me."

It was a very important job, and the president of the company was interviewing high-caliber young men. "What would you say your main pursuits in life are?" he asked one applicant sternly.

"It depends," the applicant replied.

"On what?" the executive persisted.

An American businessman was taking a visiting Japanese executive on a tour of a booming U.S. city. The Japanese was astonished at the wonders he saw. Pleased, the American concluded on a proud note: "And now I want you to see the Japanese garden we've built in our park."

"Beautiful! Beautiful!" the Japanese said when they entered the garden. "Oh, if we only had something like this in Japan!"

Today Everyone Can Go Boating!

The cost is down, the pleasure is up, and here's how your family can join in the waterway fun

By GUY W. HUGHES Executive Director, Outboard Boating Club of America

NOT LONG AGO a Chicago family was seeking an unusual vacation idea. Boating appealed to them, but they didn't own a boat and didn't feel ready to buy one.

Then they learned they could rent one. For $200, they spent seven idyllic days on an outboard-powered houseboat, cruising part of Lake Michigan and several small rivers, hiking, swimming, and skin-diving along the way.

A few years ago such an opportunity wouldn't have existed. But now, with the booming interest in boating, you can rent fishing boats, outboard cruisers, runabouts, and houseboats in every section of the country.

Even families of moderate means can now join in the waterway fun which 40 million Americans enjoy regularly. You and your family can fish in quiet lakes, cruise along fascinating rivers, swim, water-ski, skin-dive, or merely float lazily along in your boat, warm sun on your face, water lapping serenely against the hull.

You can discover the magic I first experienced in Missouri's Ozark country at age 6. There, with my father, I fished, camped, and learned the wonders of the outdoors from a boat.

We didn't have today's modern equipment. But the freshness of the air, the relaxation, and the spirit of adventure were unforgettable, as they still are for anyone who seeks pleasure on the water.

WHY DO I SAY anyone nowadays can go boating?

First, as any boater knows, because of the equipment revolution. Motorboats now are as easy to drive as cars. Only a shirttail relative to the balky, noisy, greasy engines of former years, modern outboards are lightweight, clean, safe, dependable, and quiet. Push a button, shift gears, and you're under way, guiding your sleek outboard with a steering wheel.

Wooden boat hulls now have a new design; metal or fiber-glass models entail little maintenance. You needn't even rent a mooring site: for as little as $100 you can buy a trailer, back it up to a launching ramp, and ease your boat into the water with the trailer's power or hand winch.

Able to seat five comfortably, this sleek outboard runabout drives as easily as a car, and its motor is a far cry from models of the past.

1. Put 10-oz. pkg. Frozen Strawberries (do not thaw), ⅓ cup PET Evaporated Milk (1 small can) and ⅓ cup Powdered Sugar into small bowl of electric mixer (or 1½-quart bowl).

In Texas, savings have been returned as dividends.

WHAT HAVE I DONE to deserve this?

A tangled jungle of office problems. A quarrel. An alienation of minds and understanding. A future which creeps onward but never upward. A procession of days, a nightmare of nights.

What have I done?

I am eating my breakfast beside the kitchen window. A sprinkling of birds seasons the sky. The oyster of dawn releases the pearl of sunlight.

There is no dawn in me. I resent my misfortunes. I am torn by my uncertainties. My confidence is shaken by the dismal circumstances of this dreary day.

How have I failed? Have I been too foolish, too wise?

The bacon and eggs are cold. The toast is limp. The bed is rumpled, and there is dust on my unmade heart.

I well remember that life creeps in its petty pace. I remember that most lead lives of quiet desperation. I recall the bell tolls for me.

PRESENTLY I will wash the dishes, make the bed, lock the door, and go out into the dawn. I will sit at my typewriter and perform the duties for which I am paid. Tonight I will unlock my door and cook my dinner and face again the night.

Is this all there is to be? Where is the bright promise of my springtime? Will I live my lifetime always reaching and never grasping?

Across this world there are millions of us who will. Why should I expect more?

Tonight before I lie in my bed it would be well for me to fall on my knees, neither in futility nor regret. For, if I never know the pinnacle, if I never solve the problem, if I am never more than a little life, there has been something more.

This morning at my breakfast table, the birds flew out of the depths of my self-pity, and across the meadow the dawn came to me.

Even when my eyes were blind to it, my heart remembered and was blessed.

A newlywed couple invited a friend over for his first visit to their new apartment and were giving instructions:

"It's the large apartment building near the bus stop. Our bell is on the right-hand side, near the bottom of the list. When you spot it, ring the bell with your elbow. When we press the downstairs-door buzzer, just push against the door with your shoulder."

The friend asked: "But why can't I use my hands to press the bell?"

"For goodness sake," the newlywed exclaimed, "you're not coming empty-handed, are you?" —Willis Shanty

The small boy dashed out of the house, but his mother called him back to ask where he was going. "I'm going out to play ball," he replied.

"With whom are you playing?"

"I'm going to play with God."

"You shouldn't joke about God," the mother replied, aghast.

"I'm not joking, Mom. I throw the ball up to Him, and He throws it back to me."

Today Everyone Can Go Boating!

New designs and mass production mean your family can have a new runabout in the 12- to 14-foot class for as little as $600 and an outboard motor of 7½ horsepower for as little as $250. Last year the average boater spent only $62 for the entire season!

Operating at a fraction of the cost of an auto, even a small outboard can offer sleeping and eating quarters for weekend trips or complete vacations. Even without kitchen facilities, you can carry a portable grill and ice chest; lacking a cabin with bunks, you can spread sleeping bags or air mattresses, or camp on shore near your boat.

WITH EIGHT MILLION families owning boats and a large proportion of them "trading up" to newer and larger ones each year, there's a booming used-boat market, too. By alert shopping, it's possible to obtain real bargains, the kind enabling you to get into boating far more easily than if new equipment were your only choice.

And as with other merchandise, boats and motors are available on time-payment plans. Many banks, in fact, offer financing for marine equipment more readily than for many other items. They've found that families with the means to own a boat usually are excellent credit risks, and that boats depreciate slowly.

You'd like to live on the water but can't afford a cottage?

Consider the new outboard-powered houseboats. A far cry from the old, ponderous craft of their type, they're sleek, compact, and comfortable, with the most modern equipment aboard. Most are transportable by boat trailer. Priced from $2,500, they're like a summer home afloat—at a fraction of the price of waterfront property.

Boating offers finer recreation than ever this season for other reasons, too. With today's trailers and superhighways, you're closer than ever to good boating waters—within 24 hours no matter where you live, and more likely within two or three hours. New marina and mooring facilities, under construction in increasing quantity, make overnight and weekend cruising convenient and inexpensive even for beginners.

Cruise organizations and the nation's 2,000 boating clubs provide more opportunities for group activity than ever before. One of many notable events, the Kissimmee Boat-a-Cade in Florida each autumn attracts boaters from many states. Increasingly, instead of stowing their boats for the winter, families take them South by trailer for such cruises or for their vacation.

THEN, TOO, it's easier than ever to learn the fine points of boating that enable you and your family to enjoy with safety spectacular adventures normally not recommended for small boaters—such as open-water cruising. The U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, U. S. Power Squadrons, boating clubs, and other organizations provided navigation and other advanced boat training to a quarter-million persons last year.

Visit a boat or outdoor show. See your local marine dealers, ask questions, browse among the equipment, take home basic data you'll need to know. And head for the nearest water to talk with boaters—among the most friendly, helpful people you'll find.

Boating has opened up wholesome new worlds of enjoyment to millions. This year why don't you and your family sample it?

Facts for the Beginning Boater

Cost: A typical pleasure boat, a 14-foot runabout with a 25-horsepower outboard motor, may carry a tag of $600 and up for the boat, $400 to $575 for the motor. A trailer, $125 and up.

Cruisers with living accommodations cost $2,000 and up, plus single or twin engines, available for $1,000 each in the 70-plus horsepower class.

Sailboats range from $300 (a small dinghy) to $3,000 or more. Inboard motorboats, $2,000 to as much as $1,000 or more per running foot (cruisers in the luxury class).

Registration fee (most states), $2 to $5 for the average boat; ordinary highway license fee for trailer.

Drydock, hauling, and storage cost: none if you use a trailer and space on your property; $100 and up per winter for commercial facilities.

Maintenance: Fiber-glass and aluminum hulls require little maintenance; wood, due to improved finishes, also very little. For outboard engines, maintenance is governed by size and age but usually costs far less per year than car maintenance.

Training and Orientation: No operator license required except on nontidal waters in New Jersey ($1.50). Copy of laws and instructions are free from dealers or Outboard Boating Club of America, 307 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago 1, Ill. Approved seamanship courses are taught by U. S. Power Squadrons, U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, OBC affiliates, others.

Which Outfit for You? For short-haul cruising (four-member family), popular models are 12- to 18-foot utility runabout; 5- to 80-horsepower motor. For lengthy cruising (four-member family), 17- to 22-foot cruiser; 40- to 80-horsepower motor.

For fishing: small outboard-powered rowboat, canoe, runabout, or cruiser; any horsepower motor. For water-skiing (towing one) 15-horsepower motor, minimum.

Today Everyone Can Go Boating!

The cost is down, the pleasure is up, and here's how your family can join in the waterway fun

By GUY W. HUGHES Executive Director, Outboard Boating Club of America

NOT LONG AGO a Chicago family was seeking an unusual vacation idea. Boating appealed to them, but they didn't own a boat and didn't feel ready to buy one.

Then they learned they could rent one. For $200, they spent seven idyllic days on an outboard-powered houseboat, cruising part of Lake Michigan and several small rivers, hiking, swimming, and skin-diving along the way.

A few years ago such an opportunity wouldn't have existed. But now, with the booming interest in boating, you can rent fishing boats, outboard cruisers, runabouts, and houseboats in every section of the country.

Even families of moderate means can now join in the waterway fun which 40 million Americans enjoy regularly. You and your family can fish in quiet lakes, cruise along fascinating rivers, swim, water-ski, skin-dive, or merely float lazily along in your boat, warm sun on your face, water lapping serenely against the hull.

You can discover the magic I first experienced in Missouri's Ozark country at age 6. There, with my father, I fished, camped, and learned the wonders of the outdoors from a boat.

We didn't have today's modern equipment. But the freshness of the air, the relaxation, and the spirit of adventure were unforgettable, as they still are for anyone who seeks pleasure on the water.

WHY DO I SAY anyone nowadays can go boating?

First, as any boater knows, because of the equipment revolution. Motorboats now are as easy to drive as cars. Only a shirttail relative to the balky, noisy, greasy engines of former years, modern outboards are lightweight, clean, safe, dependable, and quiet. Push a button, shift gears, and you're under way, guiding your sleek outboard with a steering wheel.

Wooden boat hulls now have a new design; metal or fiber-glass models entail little maintenance. You needn't even rent a mooring site: for as little as $100 you can buy a trailer, back it up to a launching ramp, and ease your boat into the water with the trailer's power or hand winch.

You don't even chill the PET Evaporated Milk—it whips up to a creamy pink cloud with just frozen berries and powdered sugar. And you don't even stir, once it's in your freezing tray. You could only make it with a milk as thick and rich as PET—the milk with twice the country cream in every drop! Thin milk just won't do. Try it soon—you'll make it often.

• • • • STRAWBERRY FRUIT FREEZE • • • •

1. Put 10-oz. pkg. Frozen Strawberries (do not thaw), ⅓ cup PET Evaporated Milk (1 small can) and ⅓ cup Powdered Sugar into small bowl of electric mixer (or 1½-quart bowl).

2. Break up fruit with a fork. Let stand a few minutes, just until fruit begins to thaw. Beat with electric mixer at medium speed just until blended.

3. Then beat at high speed 2 to 3 minutes, or until thick and creamy. Freeze in ice tray, about 2 to 3 hours. Makes about 1 quart.

I was just thinking . . .

WHAT HAVE I DONE to deserve this?

A tangled jungle of office problems. A quarrel. An alienation of minds and understanding. A future which creeps onward but never upward. A procession of days, a nightmare of nights.

What have I done?

I am eating my breakfast beside the kitchen window. A sprinkling of birds seasons the sky. The oyster of dawn releases the pearl of sunlight.

There is no dawn in me. I resent my misfortunes. I am torn by my uncertainties. My confidence is shaken by the dismal circumstances of this dreary day.

How have I failed? Have I been too foolish, too wise?

The bacon and eggs are cold. The toast is limp. The bed is rumpled, and there is dust on my unmade heart.

I well remember that life creeps in its petty pace. I remember that most lead lives of quiet desperation. I recall the bell tolls for me.

Five Sure Ways to Catch Fish

Here's something to stick in your tackle box along with those fancy lures and rods—some simple tips from men who've made angling a sporting science

By ROBERT G. DEINDORFER

SOME 25 MILLION Americans are addicted to the frustrating but satisfying pastime of fishing, which may mean that the whoppers they tell are larger than those they land.

For beginners and old-timers alike, fishing is a sport unto itself, yet too many enthusiasts are unsuccessful for all their cane poles, fly rods, casting and spinning tackle, live baits, spoons, and feathered lures.

What makes this adversity especially tragic is the blunt fact that there's little reason for it. With some ingenuity, virtually anyone can hook and land fish. Here are five sure-fire angling gimmicks developed by guides and wily old-timers to catch fish in the rivers and lakes of America.

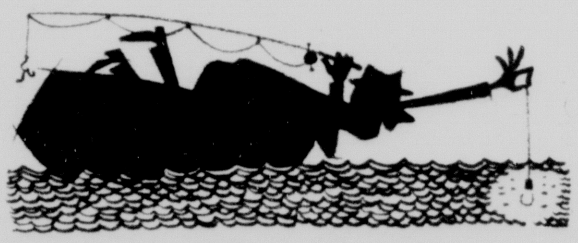
1. Feed the fish and flourish.

In some parts of Ohio, the real professionals have hit on a prize scheme to fill the frying pan. Despite an old suspicion that bait spilled into the water ruins fishing, these addicts deliberately dump live worms or minnows in the lake. Then they still-fish the same spot with similar baits.

Season after season, Ohio anglers bring home record catches by chumming with worms and minnows. Last summer, a fellow on Rockland Lake near Nyack, N.Y., got to wondering if the practice was confined to Ohio.

After dumping a can of worms over the side of the boat, he started fishing. He hadn't fished long before the rod quivered in his hands. Up boiled an angry bass, husky as a fullback. By the end of the afternoon, he had another bass, three catfish, and a nice mess of bluegills.

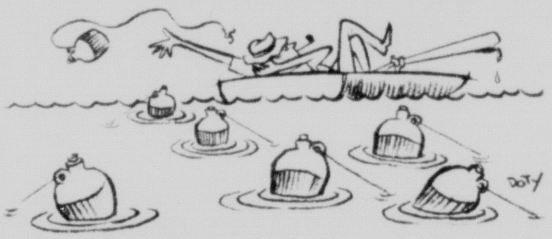
2. Fishing lights that fascinate.



If it's real hair-raising sport you yearn for, you might try the new night-fishing lights. As old-timers know, night is when many fish do their most serious feeding. And besides, all fish are bigger at night—or seem bigger.

"It's no trick at all to rig up the lights," says Jimmy Pfeiffer, a short, squat Illinois night fisherman. "All you have to do is hang the light just below the surface of the water. Fish seem addicted to light. You can develop a good backache pulling them in."

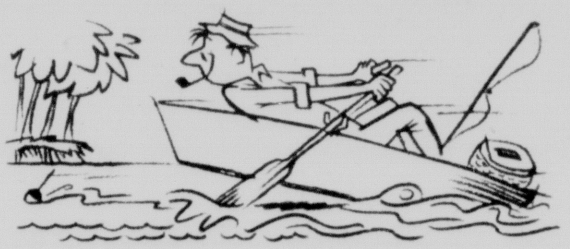
3. Fish without fuss—if legal.



For jaded anglers, an old art form developed in lower Missouri may be just the thing. It yields the sort of catches most people are apt to notarize with a camera.

In Missouri and in some other states where it's legal, lazy-bone fishermen set out with nothing more than hooks, lines, boats, and some gallon jugs. Baited lines are tied to the necks of these jugs, and the jugs are thrown into the lake. Any time one of the floating jugs starts to bob, the fishermen row the boat over, pull up the jug, and remove a fish. When two or three jugs in different spots get to bouncing at the same time, it's more exciting than a 10-pound catfish on a two-pound line.

4. Find where the fish are feasting.



Down in the rolling Tennessee Valley country, a lean, laconic bloke named Al Duke minds a general store.

It isn't flourishing commercial success that has caused Duke's reputation to spread far beyond the narrow boundaries of his town. Al Duke is a fisherman—maybe the best there is.

"It's as simple as rolling a cigarette," he says. "To catch fish, you have to find where the fish are feeding. Well, I let them show me."

One bright summery morning, Duke showed me what he meant. After fishing a few minutes, Al flopped a scrappy bluegill into the boat. He removed the hook gently, tied a long piece of line through the bluegill's mouth, strung a floating plastic bobber on the other end of the line, and threw the fish back into the lake.

As the bluegill swam somewhere down below, the red and white bobber moved across the surface 15 or 20 yards to some shaded water. We promptly moved the boat and settled down to some serious fishing. In an hour, our party had 51 bluegills, along with two nice bass.

As enthusiasts see it, it's important to keep moving around while fishing. In a boat or afoot along the shore, they constantly change positions, alter the depth they fish, and change from one bait or lure to another until the lunkers start hitting.

Few people know the technique better than Jack Butler, a tall, bespectacled Ohioan. Last spring on Dale Hollow Lake, Ky., he fished a live minnow at a depth of 10 feet without raising his blood pressure any. Next he fished it at a depth of five feet, then 15 feet. Every so often, he changed from minnows to nightcrawlers to frogs.

After he fished one area, Butler rowed his boat to another spot. With a shrewd guile, he worked Dale Hollow for nearly two hours before he found his spot. Fishing minnows at a depth of five feet near an overhanging tree, Butler caught himself eight bass in about the time it takes to read this.

What makes these five foolproof methods of catching fish so important? With another season under way, more and more fishermen will be after the prizes. By following these guides, you can get your share without lapsing into the traditional exaggerations of angling. The literal truth will be hard to improve on.

What's in His Right Hand? By Ragna Eskil

Put an array of small objects, such as a dried bean, a pea, a ring, a closed safety pin, etc., in a box. Pass the box around the circle of players, then ask one player who is in on the trick to select one object with his left hand. He must do this secretly, shut his hand tightly, and cover it with his right hand. Then ask the players to guess what is in his right hand. The answer is—his left hand!

Twig Twister By E. Witter

Cowboys have to keep their hands limber and quick, ready for the big lassoing jobs ahead. One way to do this and have fun, too, is to play a game using twigs that was taught to the white man by the Indians. Here it is:

Each cowboy stands up, stretches his hands out in front, palms down and close together. One player, who is the Indian, places six small twigs (about four inches long) on the backs of the cowboy's two hands. When the Indian says, "How!" the cowboy flips the twigs up in the air, twirls around in a complete circle, and tries to catch the twigs in his two palms as they fall. If he fails, he gets two more tries. The one who catches the most twigs is the Indian for the next round.

Five Sure Ways to Catch Fish

Here's something to stick in your tackle box along with those fancy lures and rods—some simple tips from men who've made angling a sporting science

By ROBERT G. DEINDORFER

SOME 25 MILLION Americans are addicted to the frustrating but satisfying pastime of fishing, which may mean that the whoppers they tell are larger than those they land.

For beginners and old-timers alike, fishing is a sport unto itself, yet too many enthusiasts are unsuccessful for all their cane poles, fly rods, casting and spinning tackle, live baits, spoons, and feathered lures.

What makes this adversity especially tragic is the blunt fact that there's little reason for it. With some ingenuity, virtually anyone can hook and land fish. Here are five sure-fire angling gimmicks developed by guides and wily old-timers to catch fish in the rivers and lakes of America.

1. Feed the fish and flourish.

In some parts of Ohio, the real professionals have hit on a prize scheme to fill the frying pan. Despite an old suspicion that bait spilled into the water ruins fishing, these addicts deliberately dump live worms or minnows in the lake. Then they still-fish the same spot with similar baits.

Season after season, Ohio anglers bring home record catches by chumming with worms and minnows. Last summer, a fellow on Rockland Lake near Nyack, N.Y., got to wondering if the practice was confined to Ohio.

After dumping a can of worms over the side of the boat, he started fishing. He hadn't fished long before the rod quivered in his hands. Up boiled an angry bass, husky as a fullback. By the end of the afternoon, he had another bass, three catfish, and a nice mess of bluegills.

2. Fishing lights that fascinate.

If it's real hair-raising sport you yearn for, you might try the new night-fishing lights. As old-timers know, night is when many fish do their most serious feeding. And besides, all fish are bigger at night—or seem bigger.

"It's no trick at all to rig up the lights," says Jimmy Pfeiffer, a short, squat Illinois night fisherman. "All you have to do is hang the light just below the surface of the water. Fish seem addicted to light. You can develop a good backache pulling them in."

3. Fish without fuss—if legal.

For jaded anglers, an old art form developed in lower Missouri may be just the thing. It yields the sort of catches most people are apt to notarize with a camera.

In Missouri and in some other states where it's legal, lazy-bone fishermen set out with nothing more than hooks, lines, boats, and some gallon jugs. Baited lines are tied to the necks of these jugs, and the jugs are thrown into the lake. Any time one of the floating jugs starts to bob, the fishermen row the boat over, pull up the jug, and remove a fish. When two or three jugs in different spots get to bouncing at the same time, it's more exciting than a 10-pound catfish on a two-pound line.

4. Find where the fish are feasting.

Down in the rolling Tennessee Valley country, a lean, laconic bloke named Al Duke minds a general store.

It isn't flourishing commercial success that has caused Duke's reputation to spread far beyond the narrow boundaries of his town. Al Duke is a fisherman—maybe the best there is.

"It's as simple as rolling a cigarette," he says. "To catch fish, you have to find where the fish are feeding. Well, I let them show me."

One bright summery morning, Duke showed me what he meant. After fishing a few minutes, Al flopped a scrappy bluegill into the boat. He removed the hook gently, tied a long piece of line through the bluegill's mouth, strung a floating plastic bobber on the other end of the line, and threw the fish back into the lake.

As the bluegill swam somewhere down below, the red and white bobber moved across the surface 15 or 20 yards to some shaded water. We promptly moved the boat and settled down to some serious fishing. In an hour, our party had 51 bluegills, along with two nice bass.

5. Fill up with a fishing formula.

As enthusiasts see it, it's important to keep moving around while fishing. In a boat or afoot along the shore, they constantly change positions, alter the depth they fish, and change from one bait or lure to another until the lunkers start hitting.

Few people know the technique better than Jack Butler, a tall, bespectacled Ohioan. What makes these five foolproof methods of catching fish so important? With another season under way, more and more fishermen will be after the prizes. By following these guides, you can get your share without lapsing into the traditional exaggerations of angling. The literal truth will be hard to improve on.
